North Platte — No reason at all

Those taped words from accused mass murderer Erwin Charles Simants were part of the tensest moments yet in his Lincoln County District Court trial Coming in a taped confession Tuesday afternoon they were his only explanation as to why he allegedly killed six persons and committed sex acts on a 10-year-old girl and her dead grandmother

Simants own recorded voice and that of Nebraska State Patrol interrogator Lt Donald Grieb were clearly heard throughout a hushed and packed courtroom Outside the door spectators waited in line for any seats to become available

Despite the drama to the occasion the 30-year old accused maintained the same outward calm as during the other seven days of the trial

Most of the 20-minute conversation recorded about an hour after Simants was apprehended in Sutherland the morning of Oct 19 was in the form of questions by Grieb Simants mostly gave short replies sometimes of only a word or two and almost never of more than a sentence

Objections Overruled

The recording was admitted over two defense objections and Judge Hugh Stuart also denied a subsequent defense motion that it be stricken Grieb who testified prior to the playback and remained on the witness stand said Simants agreed to the taping after making the admissions in another interrogation just before

Repeatedly advised of his Miranda rights both by Grieb and County Sheriff Gordon (Hop) Gilster before making the tape Simants readily admitted shooting to death six members of the Henry Kellie family He also acknowledged performing hand sex acts on both Florence Kellie 10 and 57 year-old Mrs Audrey Marie Kellie

But he denied any sex acts on Deanna Kellie 7 and insisted he didn t remember whether he had violated Florence beyond fondling her

Went With Rifle

Simants admitted in the recording that he forced Florence into the bedroom and evidently removed her clothing He said he had gone to the home the evening of Oct 18 carrying a loaded rifle from his quarters in his sister s home next door and found no one home but Florence after she admitted him

He said he shot the girl after she started crying but gave no reason for this or any of the other killing except that I had to Asked what the girl was doing at the time you were playing with her Simants replied

I don t know if she was dead or alive

According to the tape the girl s grandfather was shot when he walked in unexpectedly Simants said Henry Kellie didn t know he was in the house and was walking away

Vague About Details

The grandmother then returned home and according to Simants exclaimed Oh my God just before he pulled the trigger He acknowledged that he ripped at the dead woman s underclothing but was vague about whether he performed other sex acts on the body

Then them other ones came in Dave and his kids Simants related of the Kellies 32-year-old son and his two children He said he shot all three because I had to

Asked again by Grieb why he killed them he replied simply I don t know At another point he replied no reason at all as to his motivation

Blackouts Reported

The tape ended the main introduction of testimony by the prosecution but the defense immediately opened its phase of the case with significant testimony by the defendant s ex-wife Mrs Mary Olson of North Platte divorced from the defendant in 1971 after five years of marriage said Simants had blackouts once or twice a month during their marriage

He d stop whatever he was doing and just go out of the house and wander in the fields or down by the river she testified She said such episodes usually lasted from 15 minutes to an hour

She also said that after the death of their 3 year old daughter in 1970 her husband drank steadily and just went hog wild

Born with a spinal defect the child died after the couple gave their consent for her to be removed from a respirator in an Omaha hospital

Blamed Himself

[illegible] Mrs Olson continued He [illegible] family

The couple was separated prior to the child s death and the former wife blamed this mostly on a drinking problem she said Simants acquired when he turned 21 She said when he was sober he was not easily upset and did not have a temper

But when he was intoxicated she explained he could come home and would fight and I d get beat up She described him at other times as easy to get along with and a lot of fun

She also said she felt he needed psychiatric help The defendant has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to six first degree counts of premeditated murder and of murder while committing or attempting to commit sexual assault

Mrs Olson s sister Mrs Sandra Highsmith said the defendant had turned into a drunk a bum who didn t have much to do with life except to drink

Pullout By Israel Demanded

UNITED NATIONS N Y (AP) — Arab diplomats addressing the U N Security Council on Tuesday demanded that Israel withdraw from all occupied Arab land and that a Palestinian homeland be established

Ambassadors from Egypt Syria Jordan and the United Arab Emirates took the podium in the second day of the council s Middle East debate which Israel is boycotting because the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) is taking part

Syrian Ambassador Mouaffak Allaf charged that Israel s Zionist racist regime has not carried out a 1947 General Assembly resolution that would partition Palestine into Arab and Jewish states He said Israel also has ignored a 1948 resolution providing that Palestinians displaced by Israel should be permitted to return to their homes or receive compensation

A spokesman for the PLO who opened the debate Monday also referred to Israel as Zionist racist He was referring to a resolution passed by the 1975 General Assembly equating Zionism with racism

Zionism is the movement supporting a Jewish homeland in Palestine

Jordanian Ambassador Abdul Hamid Sharaf told the council it could open the way to peace if its program involves a timetable for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory seized in the 1967 Mideast war

Egypt called for an early resumption of the suspended Geneva peace conference with the PLO participating on an equal footing with the other parties

Egyptian Ambassador A Esmat Abdel Meguid said an invitation for the PLO to attend any new Geneva talks should be pressed once the Security Council has recognized the national rights of the Palestinian people

He said Israel s decision to boycott the debate could further isolate Israel

Israel accuses the PLO of being a terrorist group and has declared it will not participate in any conference that the PLO attends

The council debate was attacked by two Israeli government leaders at a meeting in Jerusalem with some 250 American and Canadian Jews who are fund raisers for Israeli government bonds

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said the debate could cause complete political chaos that will lead to stagnation — that will lead then to I don t know what

Shimon Peres Israeli defense minister told the visitors an extreme resolution by the Security Council would not leave room for other Arab countries to take a more moderate stand and could lead to war He added that the council s invitation to the PLO to join in the debate is a pity for our epoch and our generation which has lost its ability to discriminate between right and wrong

The council voted 11-1 Monday to invite the PLO to participate in the debate with all the rights of a U N member The United States was the only country in the 15-member council to vote against the invitation while Britain France and Italy abstained

In Israel soldiers shot and killed four Arab guerrillas that the Tel Aviv command said had infiltrated on a terror mission timed to coincide with the debate The command said leaflets on the bodies identified them as members of the Arab Rejection Front which opposes the PLO

In New York police found and disarmed a bomb early Tuesday in front of the mission of Iraq about three miles from U N headquarters Three pipe bombs were found Monday beneath the U N library building timed to go off just before the council debate began

Methods To Block Coal Slurry Noted

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Nebraska need not fear federal legislation to give the power to condemn land to a coal slurry pipeline according to John Kyle assistant secretary of the Department of Interior

There are all sorts of things a state can do to prevent the passage of a coal slurry pipeline through its area The first hurdle is the environmental impact statement, he said

Kyle referred to the potential for damage to the fragile ecology of the Nebraska sandhills

They need permits for roads for utilities and a lot of services for a pipeline You can obstruct them in many ways if you don t want them in your state he said

Kyle discussed the death of the Midstate Irrigation Project with newsmen Tuesday before his address to a joint convention of three resource groups in Lincoln

District Possible

If the voters say the project is dead then that is it But it could be possible to establish a district in that area he said

If I were doing it I would first present the best possible set of benefits in a truthful manner and then sit down with the opponents to see if their objections [illegible] the project could be met he said

Kyle said it was [illegible] water resources projects on the basis of irrigation alone

There is a tremendous need [illegible] water for [illegible] and for the projects themselves in the West The need is for irrigation for recreation for a coal slurry pipeline for a coal gasification plant and for people who are increasing in numbers each year he said

Recreation Important

Kyle noted that the Bureau of Reclamation projects had more visitors for recreation benefits than the park systems did in the last year Many of the recreation facilities are managed by parks people but this points up the importance of water needs in addition to irrigation he said

Of the 435 members in the U S House of Representatives only two have 25 [illegible] their population as farmers Not very many congressmen have a provincial interest in irrigation he said

Your representatives have done some kind of a selling job in Congress to get $500 000 to start the O Neill Project this fiscal year he said

Kyle added that the Bureau of Reclamation [illegible] contracts for that expenditure before June 3

Simants Gives 'No Reason' In Recording Of Confession

North Platte — "No reason at all . . ."

Those taped words from accused mass murderer Erwin Charles Simants were part of the tensest moments yet in his Lincoln County District Court trial. Coming in a taped confession Tuesday afternoon, they were his only explanation as to why he allegedly killed six persons and committed sex acts on a 10-year-old girl and her dead grandmother.

Simants' own recorded voice and that of Nebraska State Patrol interrogator Lt. Donald Grieb were clearly heard throughout a hushed and packed courtroom. Outside the door, spectators waited in line for any seats to become available.

Despite the drama to the occasion, the 30-year-old accussed maintained the same outward calm as during the other seven days of the trial.

Most of the 20-minute conversation, recorded about an hour after Simants was apprehended in Sutherland the morning of Oct. 19, was in the form of questions by Grieb. Simants mostly gave short replies, sometimes of only a word or two and almost never of more than a sentence.

Objections Overruled

The recording was admitted over two defense objections and Judge Hugh Stuart also denied a subsequent defense motion that it be stricken. Grieb, who testified prior to the playback and remained on the witness stand, said Simants agreed to the taping after making the admissions in another interrogation just before.

Repeatedly advised of his Miranda rights both by Grieb and County Sheriff Gordon (Hop) Gilster before making the tape, Simants readily admitted shooting to death six members of the Henry Kellie family. He also acknowledged performing hand sex acts on both Florence Kellie, 10, and 57-year-old Mrs. Audrey Marie Kellie.

But he denied any sex acts on Deanna Kellie, 7, and insisted he didn't remember whether he had violated Florence beyond fondling her.

Earlier testimony from pathologist Dr. Miles Foster indicated Florence had been raped.

Went With Rifle

Simants admitted in the recording that he forced Florence into the bedroom and "evidently" removed her clothing. He said he had gone to the home the evening of Oct. 18, carrying a loaded rifle from his quarters in his sister's home next door, and found no one home but Florence after she admitted him.

He said he shot the girl after she started crying, but gave no reason for this or any of the other killing except that "I had to." Asked what the girl was doing "at the time you were playing with her," Simants replied:

"I don't know if she was dead or alive."

According to the tape, the girl's grandfather was shot when he walked in unexpectedly. Simants said Henry Kellie didn't know he was in the house and "was walking away."

Vague About Details

The grandmother then returned home and, according to Simants, exclaimed "Oh, my God" just before he "pulled the trigger." He acknowledged that he ripped at the dead woman's underclothing but was vague about whether he performed other sex acts on the body.

"Then them other ones came in, Dave and his kids," Simants related of the Kellies' 32-year-old son and his two children. He said he shot all three because "I had to."

Asked again by Grieb why he killed them, he replied simply, "This I don't know." At another point he replied "no reason at all" as to his motivation.

'Blackouts' Reported

The tape ended the main introduction of testimony by the prosecution, but the defense immediately opened its phase of the case with significant testimony by the defendant's ex-wife. Mrs. Mary Olson of North Platte, divorced from the defendant in 1971 after five years of marriage, said Simants had "blackouts" once or twice a month during their marriage.

"He'd stop whatever he was doing and just go out of the house and wander in the fields or down by the river," she testified. She said such episodes usually lasted from 15 minutes to an hour.

She also said that after the death of their 3-year-old daughter in 1970, her husband drank steadily and "just went hog-wild."

Born with a spinal defect, the child died after the couple gave their consent for her to be removed from a respirator in an Omaha hospital.

'Blamed Himself'

"He seemed very hurt and blamed himself that she was born that way," Mrs. Olson continued. "He said it ran in his family."

The couple was separated prior to the child's death and the former wife blamed this mostly on a drinking problem she said Simants acquired "when he turned 21." She said when he was sober he was not easily upset and "did not have a temper."

But when he was intoxicated, she explained, "he would come home and we'd fight and I'd get beat up." She described him at other times as "easy to get along with and a lot of fun."

She also said she felt he needed psychiatric help. The defendant has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity to six first-degree counts of premeditated murder and of murder while committing or attempting to commit sexual assault.

Mrs. Olson's sister, Mrs. Sandra Highsmith, said the defendant had turned into "a drunk, a bum who didn't have much to do with life except to drink."

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — A banker's kidnaped wife was found fatally shot in the back of the head Tuesday a few hours after her husband paid a $25,000 ransom in a futile effort to buy her life, the FBI said.

The FBI said Marter then received telephone calls demanding ransom and giving directions for dropping it off.

The first two delivery efforts were aborted, officers said, and may have been simply ploys by the kidnaper in an effort to make sure police were not watching.

Walk On Water

Walter Robinson, 30, attempted Tuesday to walk across the Hudson River from New Jersey to Manhattan on 'shoes' made of fiberglass foam. Robinson, a U.S. Army specialist 5 from Fayetteville, N.C., was unable to complete his walk on the self-designed shoes because of thick ice floes. Kyle added that the Bureau of Reclamation will strive to let contracts for that expenditure before June 30.

Jail Takes Baby Steps Toward Civilian Control, More Changes

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln City Jail appears to be headed for a complete civilian takeover, with the police department giving up any control over the facility.

That may be the first recommendation followed from a host of studies on the jail, which, after much discussion, appears to be headed for a period of change.

The first step toward civilian control is being made with Police Chief George K. Hansen's decision to replace police officers in the jail with civilian corrections officers.

Removing administration of the jail from the police department is recommended by both a 1975 report from the Jail Study Committee and a 1973 report from HOC & Associates, a St. Louis architectural firm, which was commissioned by the Region II Crime Commission.

Recommendations Years away

Other recommendations may be years from reality, most notably a recommendation that a separate minimum-medium security jail be established for people serving sentences.

But more changes in the operation of the jail are coming this spring with the opening of the Juvenile Attention Center and the Alcohol Detoxification Center, and the continued operation of the pre-trial diversion program and the pre-trial release program.

What could signal the end of police control of the jail is a request for federal funds to hire a "corrections administration" who would be directly responsible to the mayor.

An earlier request for $37,500 to hire a "corrections coordinator" and two staffers was turned down last month by the State Crime Commission because the goals of the project were not clearly enough defined.

The coordinator would have conducted studies on the program and facility needs of the county, then worked to implement them.

Resubmit Application

Local officials, however, plan to resubmit a similar application this month to the Region II Crime Commission and are discussing the possibility of putting him to work immediately administering the operation of the jail.

That opportunity presented itself with the retirement last week of Inspector Robert Myer, who had been in charge of the jail for several years.

Even if those plans fall through, Police Chief Hansen said Tuesday he may reclassify the job and hire a person suited as a jail administrator, rather than move a police officer into the spot.

This would make transition easier in a future move transferring control of the jail to another agency, Hansen said.

From a philosophical point of view, Hansen said, he favors keeping the custodial and correctional functions separate from police functions.

On Back Burners

Recommendation to remodel the jail or establish a minimum-medium security facility are on bureaucratic back burners for now. Mayor Helen Boosalis said she generally agrees with recommendations of the jail studies, but feels placing the jail under civilian control is of higher priority.

Curt Snoberger, executive director of the Region II Crime Commission, said Tuesday it is already too late this fiscal year to seek federal funding for remodeling or establishing a different facility.

As to the future availability of federal funds for corrections, Snoberger said, "Your guess is as good as mine." As a general rule, he noted, the larger the sum of money being sought, the worse the chances.

While some changes are being postponed, other changes are taking place because of the establishment of a variety of programs which promise to reduce the jail population and transfer functions formerly carried out there to other locations.

Population Down

During the last year the Lancaster County Attorney's Office established a pre-trial diversion project in which some first-time offenders are diverted from the ordinary trial process into a supervised rehabilitation program.

Because of the program the jail population has been somewhat reduced. The jail population probably will undergo another reduction with the opening of the Juvenile Attention Center.

The tiny juvenile cells, smaller than any others in the jail, have been one of the most criticized aspects of the city jail.

This spring the Alcohol Detoxification Center will also open at Lincoln General Hospital. Persons arrested for intoxication will be given the opportunity of spending 72 hours at the center rather than going to jail.

Presenting this alternative to alcohol offenders "could change the jail population in a drastic way," Snoberger said.

The machine, a two-foot cube about the size of a desktop photocopier, speaks in a deliberate, expressionless voice. It is programmed to give some stress and pauses, though, to make sentences intelligible.

At the demonstration, the machine read aloud a printed copy of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. It also repeated a description of itself, typed by a reporter, that began: "Hello. I am a computer . . ."

With a keyboard lettered in Braille dots, the blind can slow the machine down or make it stop and spell out difficult words.

The machine took five years to develop, Kurzweil said. Some of the work was done under contract for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Kurzweil said the invention required two key technical breakthroughs — designing a system that can recognize the hundreds of different typefaces used in books and magazines and building a computer program that can determine the correct pronounciation of English words.

The National Federation of the Blind, which worked with Kurzweil in the development, will test the machine with blind people before it is put on sale.

Reagan Says He Used Figure Of $90 Billion As Illustration

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ronald Reagan said Tuesday the $90-billion figure he originally attached to his proposal to shift federal programs to state and local governments had been used merely to illustrate the size of programs that could be transferred.

Reagan said he is not suggesting $90 billion — a figure he used in introducing the plan last September — could be cut immediately from the federal budget and that his position on the subject had been distorted.

He said he had tried to explain his proposal at a news conference Monday in Bloomington, Ill. He said he told reporters at Bloomington that he regretted using the $90-billion illustration.

"Today, I am reading that I regretted proposing the plan," he said. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

The one-day, three-city tour through Wisconsin of the former California governor and candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was marred when a snowball and an egg were thrown at him in separate incidents at the Oshkosh campus of the University of Wisconsin.

A Secret Service man batted the snowball away; the egg splattered on the floor beside Reagan, but it was not clear whether it had hit him.

UAW Supports Carter In Florida

The United Auto Workers is mounting an effort in Florida to support Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter, who needs a victory there to derail Gov. George Wallace and propel his own candidacy.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock will campaign for Carter in Florida, where the UAW's political arm has endorsed the former Georgia governor in his showdown with Wallace, a union aide said Tuesday in Detroit.

Asked whether the move symbolized support for Carter or an attempt to head off Wallace in the South, the spokesman said, "You will have to draw your own conclusions on that one . . . it seems pretty evident." He said the international UAW has endorsed no candidate.

Fashion Probe Launched

New York — The Federal Trade Commission announced Tuesday that it had begun a nationwide investigation into the possibility of price fixing in the multibillion-dollar women's apparel industry. The commission said pricing violations could cost the public as much as $1 billion a year. The inquiry will focus on New York City, the industry's center.

Sub Project Abandoned

Washington — The Central Intelligence Agency has abandoned a $250 million project to raise a sunken Soviet submarine in the Pacific because the area is patrolled by Russian vessels. CIA officials confirmed press reports that the agency is trying to find new uses for the Glomar Explorer, the mysterious salvage vessel.

Dems Seek New Site

Washington — Democratic national officials are quietly exploring prospects of moving their national convention, set for New York City on July 11, to another city because of concern that it might coincide with revelations of party corruption there. For the record they insist there is no likelihood of a shift, but a prominent party official called Miami Beach convention officials a few days ago to see if the shift could be made.

Prison Changes Ordered

Montgomery, Ala. — A federal judge in Montgomery ordered Gov. George C. Wallace and other Alabama officials to put into effect within six months minimum constitutional standards for the state prison system. It was the first comprehensive federal court ruling in this field. Judge Frank M. Johnson referred to "rampant violence and jungle atmosphere" throughout the system and called for more guards for internal security. He said the force should reflect the racial and cultural composition of the prison population.

Africans Predict Wider U.S., Soviet Involvement In Angola

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Wider American and Soviet involvement in war-torn Angola was predicted by African diplomats Tuesday following failure of the Organization of African Unity to agree on a peace plan for the divided country.

The White House reacted to the OAU stalemate with an announcement that President Ford will ask Congress when it returns from vacation next week to lift a ban on U.S. assistance to Angola.

Leaders of all three Angolan factions said they were ready to prolong their civil war indefinitely, and in a dispatch from the Angolan capital of Luanda, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported heavy fighting in progress in Benguela, Lumbago and Port Mocamedes.

It said troops of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement, known as the MPLA, had seized the military airport of Toto and captured arms and 12 planes with Zaire markings.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that despite the plan to ask Congress to lift the aid ban, "The President still feels the best solution is a series of goals he set.

"These are cease-fire, an end of all foreign intervention, a withdrawal of all foreign forces and a government of national unity in Angola."

The State Department's leading African expert, William Schaufele, said the United States was not happy over the OAU's failure to reach agreement on what to do about Angola. He said the "only satisfaction is that some of the Africans . . . who share our views were able to block" any efforts to express support for the MPLA.

In Moscow, the official news agency Tass implied that last-minute "pressure from the United States and other imperialist forces" helped defeat an OAU summit resolution that would have given recognition to the MPLA.

Deep divisions at the summit blocked recognition of the MPLA as Angola's sole legitimate government. Two allied groups aided by the United States and South Africa, the National Front — FNLA — and the National Union — UNITA — also failed to get the OAU to renew its commitment to a three-sided coalition in the former Portuguese colony.

Most observers pictured the conference as a humiliation for Africa — the first time in 12 years that the OAU has been unable to find a compromise on an important continental issue.

Machine Can Read Printed Page To The Blind

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A desktop machine that can "read" printed material aloud to blind people was demonstrated here Tuesday by the small computer firm that developed it.

The machine speaks English in a halting, singsong voice with what sounds like a mild Swedish accent.

The compact computerized device can read books, magazines or almost any printed material in virtually any typeface, its developers said.

Raymond Kurzweil, 27, its inventor and president of Kurzweil Computer Products, Inc., said the device will be available to libraries and institutions in about 18 months. Blind people will be able to buy them for their homes in about four years.

The machine will cost about $25,000 when it first goes on the market, but within five years the price should be down to about $5,000 or $10,000, Kurzweil said.

James Gashel, chief of the Washington office of the National Federation of the Blind, demonstrated the machine at its first public showing Tuesday.

"I think we are going to have a truly effective reading machine for the blind," he said. "It isn't going to solve all of the problems of the blind. But it is a step forward so that the blind can compete with more equality."

To operate it, the blind person places an open book or other printed page on a glass-topped scanning device. Then the machine studies the material line by line, reading aloud at about 200 words a minute.

The machine, a two-foot cube about the size of a desktop photocopier, speaks in a deliberate, expressionless voice. It is programmed to give some stress and pauses, though, to make sentences intelligible.

At the demonstration, the machine read aloud a printed copy of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. It also repeated a description of itself, typed by a reporter, that began: "Hello. I am a computer . . ."

With a keyboard lettered in Braille dots, the blind can slow the machine down or make it stop and spell out difficult words.

The machine took five years to develop, Kurzweil said. Some of the work was done under contract for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Kurzweil said the invention required two key technical breakthroughs — designing a system that can recognize the hundreds of different typefaces used in books and magazines and building a computer program that can determine the correct pronounciation of English words.

The National Federation of the Blind, which worked with Kurzweil in the development, will test the machine with blind people before it is put on sale.

Mama Hilda, a polar bear at Overton Park Zoo in Memphis, Tenn., brought out her two cubs Monday for some fresh air. She used the normal polar-bear method of carrying them by their heads. The six-week-old cubs, named Snowflake and Snowball will be on display this summer after they are weaned.

Reagan Says He Used Figure Of $90 Billion As Illustration

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ronald Reagan said Tuesday the $90-billion figure he originally attached to his proposal to shift federal programs to state and local governments had been used merely to illustrate the size of programs that could be transferred.

Reagan said he is not suggesting $90 billion — a figure he used in introducing the plan last September — could be cut immediately from the federal budget and that his position on the subjct had been distorted.

He said he had tried to explain his proposal at a news conference Monday in Bloomington, Ill. He said he told reporters at Bloomington that he regretted using the $90-billion illustration.

"Today, I am reading that I regretted proposing the plan," he said. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

The one-day, three-city tour through Wisconsin of the former California governor and candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, was marred when a snowball and an egg were thrown at him in separate incidents at the Oshkosh campus of the University of Wisconsin.

A Secret Service man batted the snowball away; the egg splattered on the floor beside Reagan, but it was not clear whether it had hit him.

He added that the transfer of the programs should be orderly and they should be accompanied by a schedule for balancing the federal budget.

ACTION LINE

DIAL 477-2121

Or Write P.O. Box 81689, Lincoln, NE 68501

Where can I get some information on stair lifts or elevators for home use? Are there any firms in Lincoln that sell these products?

—Mrs. Lola Ulstrom, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Skip O'Keefe of O'Keefe Elevator Co., 2747 No. 33rd, says his company sells two models that might fill your need. The Ellevette is a small home-type elevator that is completely enclosed. Its price depends on the vertical distance the elevator must travel. A stair lift, sold under the brand name Stairlift, is available in four colors. It's priced at $1,295 and up, depending on the number of stairs to be climbed. O'Keefe said both are available for delivery about three days after you place your order and can be installed in less than two hours for an additional charge. A sales brochure is being mailed to you by Action Line from the O'Keefe company.

Just before Christmas, I read in the newspaper about a craft project for making little snow scenes in a jar. I was able to obtain all the ingredients called for except camphor flakes to make the snow. Where can I get them?

—Enid Soukup, Milford

ACTION LINE: Several Lincoln druggists contacted said camphor flakes rarely were available anymore since home remedies using them no longer are popular. Lancaster County Extension Agent Esther Weyant makes two suggestions: buy a small cake of camphor (available at most Lincoln pharmacies) and shave it to get camphor flakes, or simply substitute moth crystals for the flakes. Moth crystals, which can be purchased in most grocery stores, can be crushed if smaller "snowflakes" are desired.

Is there any place locally that offers classes in floral designing that could lead to a career in that field?

—Evelyn A. White, Arcadia

ACTION LINE: Courses in flower arranging are offered through Southeast Community College's Lincoln campus. A spokesman for the college said two adult noncredit classes on that subject began recently. She said it might not be too late for you to enroll for this session, but that the classes will be repeated this spring. The courses are designed for persons interested in a career in commercial floral design. For more information, contact the college office in Lincoln at 2240 Vine St.

When Nebraska plays Hawaii there next football season, what will be the date and kickoff time?

—Jim Hamilton, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The Nebraska Cornhuskers will take on Hawaii on Dec. 4, 1976. A spokesman in the Nebraska sports information office said the exact kickoff time hasn't been determined yet. Though many Big Red fans are expected to follow the team to the islands, a local sportswriter noted that devotees stuck at home will have to stay up late to get live reports on the game. He said the game is expected to start around 8 p.m. Honolulu time, which is midnight Lincoln time. That means the game won't be over until nearly 3 a.m. local time.

My husband I bought a Mortgomery Ward washer and dryer in Lincoln Oct. 16 for $479.76 plus tax. We were told it would be sent out in one or two weeks, but we still haven't received either. It is hard to be patient under the circumstances. What can we do?

—Mrs. K. C. Nienhueser, Seward

ACTION LINE: M. L. MacNabb, Lincoln Montgomery Ward appliance department manager, said a refund was mailed to you Monday morning, so you should receive it soon. He said the problem was that there was no production of your model in October, although one was promised for December. The machines are on order, he said, and he will call you when they arrive to find out whether you still are interested.

During the first part of October, I sent a movie camera to be serviced at the Argus Service Co., 511 Parson St., W. Columbia, S.C. 29169. I received a bill for $30, which I paid Nov. 1, but I still haven't gotten my camera back. Please look into this for me.

—Mrs. Loren Herr, Humboldt

ACTION LINE: Robert Isaacson, Argus Service Co. manager, said your camera was being worked on and would be mailed Tuesday if it passed inspection. You should receive it by the end of the week, he said. He said the company had been about 60 days behind in its repairs.

ACTION TIP: Has the coming of America's bicentennial year increased your curiosity about your family's history? If so, the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration has published a new booklet that can help you gather the information that will provide a picture of how your family lived in a bygone era. "Above Ground Archaeology" tells you how to organize a card file to make your historical digging more efficient and gives tips on the storage and preservation of photographs and negatives. For your copy, send 80¢ to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 80, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Everybody Else Is Out Of Step

To heck with what the official minutes, news reports and people who were in the audience say, members of the revisionist Lincoln City Council insist that they approved Housing Authority plans for construction of a six-story structure in east Lincoln, not a five-story building.

Council members said Monday that if people think the council approved a five-story building last June, they are victims of a "misunderstanding."

The minutes of the meeting, specifying a five-story building, are incorrect, the council says, as are news reports of the meeting and the recollections of people in attendance The council said it knew what it was doing even if nobody else did.

This should be charitably viewed as a rare coincidence in which everybody but the council was confused We really don't think there is a conscious conspiracy afoot to change history. Lincoln council members wouldn't agree among themselves to say they did something they didn't do And the issue at hand really is not important in the over-all scheme of things, although residents of the Taylor Park area in east Lincoln would perhaps feel differently

But a precedent has been set which could be used by unscrupulous city fathers in the future to facilitate the changing of minds and/or conditions.

Imagine a council president telling the press the following:

—"Despite what the minutes, the news reports and everybody else who was in the chamber said, we voted a 50% increase in LES rates last month, not a 5% increase.

—"You idiots in the press added a word. We voted to widen 48th St. We did not vote to not widen it.

—"Our policy on eastward expansion of the city has always been misunderstood by the city clerk and the press. Our decision today approving a 6,000-unit housing development and regional shopping center in the Stevens Creek watershed is consistent with past council actions.

—"What previous decision? We're going nuclear.

—"And if you don't quit disputing what the council says, I'll have Chief Adams remove you."

Ford Jokes Fade

The hatchet job being done on President Ford by the media and the entertainment world seems to have abated somewhat in the past few days. The irrelevancies and other nonsense items printed and broadcast about Ford have subsided in number since the Vail vacation ended. Comics perhaps perceive that their poor-taste jokes about Bozo the Clown reached the saturation point.

It isn't that Americans have lost the ability to laugh at themselves or one another. We can still do that, but without malice. When the ridicule and the jokes become malicious, as they did with Ford, fair-minded people lose their sense of humor and they begin to question those who see laughs or news in a human being evidencing human characteristics.

Ford has been pictured tumbling down the stairs from Air Force One and tumbling through the snow with his skis on, like a windmill. The media breathlessly brings a bored nation reports of Ford backing into the ski lift or getting his legs entangled in the dogs' leashes.

But compare him to his predecessor or some of the challengers for the White House and an entirely different picture emerges: a healthy, energetic, athletic, even graceful 60-year-old man who is in better shape than most younger people.

Ford might trip over his tongue once in a while, but it is not because he is lying — which was the problem with a former president who stuttered and mumbled through most of his public utterances in the last year of his presidency because he knew how little truth his words contained. That same president was stiff and ill at ease around people anyway; no more animated than a campaign poster. Compared to him, Ford is a public relation man's dream. And aside from bowling an occasional line and an infrequent fling at the keyboard, not much was known of Nixon's leisure time or how much he took.

Mr. Ford's most immediate threat, Ronald Reagan, is said to baby himself. He goes to bed early and gets up when he darn well pleases — a routine that would have to change were he to become president. It will be pointed out that the job is full-time. Nor does Reagan project the vigor of the Kennedys or Ford.

We're not defending the President's politics or necessarily his competence, but we do know that Gerald Ford is not a bumbling, clownish, uncoordinated fool. What we have is an active President, a skier, swimmer, dancer, golfer, who sets a good example — lousy jokes and nonsense reporting to the contrary.

RUSSELL BAKER

Hugs And Kisses

NEW YORK — The news photographs showed President Ford and Ronald Reagan kissing babies the other day. This means they are looking for work. The only time you see a politician kissing a baby is when he is running for office

Americans seem to expect it of politicians in election years, but not at any other time If a president were to stop in the middle of the State of the Union address to Congress to kiss a baby who was rushed down the aisle to him, Americans would suppose he had gone daft There is really no need for presidents to kiss babies, and a president who spent two or three hours a week in the Oval Office kissing babies would soon be accused of eccentric behavior

Reporters and cynics have high sport with the political baby kisser but it is unfair In fact, most politicians dislike kissing babies Some detest it I have seen distinguished candidates for president flinch in horror at suddenly having a damp bundle obviously in need of diaper service thrust under their noses for inhaling and kissing but I have seen very few who refuses to do their duty

Curiously, babies are the only variety of humanity politicians are expected to kiss if they want to win. The rules of osculation are fairly rigid and they are imposed by the people. Candidates may kiss their wives, but only on the cheek. It's the same for other female relatives. Kissing males is taboo if they have progressed beyond diapers. The correct form with a 4-year-old male toddler in short pants is a handshake just as with a county chairman

Embraces must also be handled cautiously The candidate's wife may be embraced, but only with one arm, never with both. This embracing arm must be drooped limply around the waist and only for a brief moment Afterward, it is dropped, signaling the wife to go to a folding chair, receive a bundle of flowers, sit down and gaze at the candidate in rapt adoration.

The embracing arm is then waved high over the head in synchronization with the non-embracing arm to create a figure of triumphal confidence. Whereupon, the members of the audience, interpreting the signal to mean that they will all get jobs soon after election day, leap to their feet emitting cries of ecstasy.

This scene can be followed by embraces of males Again, as with wives only one arm may be wrapped around the embraced male but two males may be embraced at the same time — one with the right arm one with the left Males who may be embraced in this manner include growing sons and such small political chaff as vice presidential candidates party chairmen, congressmen and celebrated movie actors

Males of this variety may be embraced more tightly than wives The candidate is supposed to get a good finger grip on the spare tire just above the embraced politico's belt to indicate that everybody is in this campaign together The rule with wives by contrast is no finger pressure Richard Nixon in fact usually embraced his wife without touching her simply wrapping an arm around the empty space she would have occupied if she had been six sizes bigger

Now that women are becoming candidates in larger numbers a new set of conventions will doubtless evolve governing kisses and hugging. We cannot guess what these will be, since no woman has yet managed to become a front-rank presidential candidate. Recent political setbacks for women's liberation measures, however, suggest that success in politics will not necessarily result from their following the same code as the men.

Kissing a proferred baby, for example, may be considered an inadequate or even incompetent gesture from a woman candidate for president. It may be necessary for her to take the infant in hand right there at the airport and change its diaper. It's hard to say. Since these conventions make no sense in the first place, it is impossible to reason how new ones might develop.

The interesting question about the conventions is not why politicians observe them with such easy predictability but why the electorate insists on their being observed The recent publicity about President Kennedy's liaison with a woman not his wife and other disclosures about the private and not so correct love-lives of other modern presidents suggest that even presidents behave very much like human beings when the photographers aren't around

Is this a flaw that should disqualify them for office? If so, perhaps they are driven to it by a doting public which insists that they never kiss their wives except on the cheek, nor embrace them in both arms

There may be something to be said for a convention however There usually is Perhaps a president who can kiss anybody's baby with equanimity really does have a better temperament for getting along with Congress and the Pentagon than most men

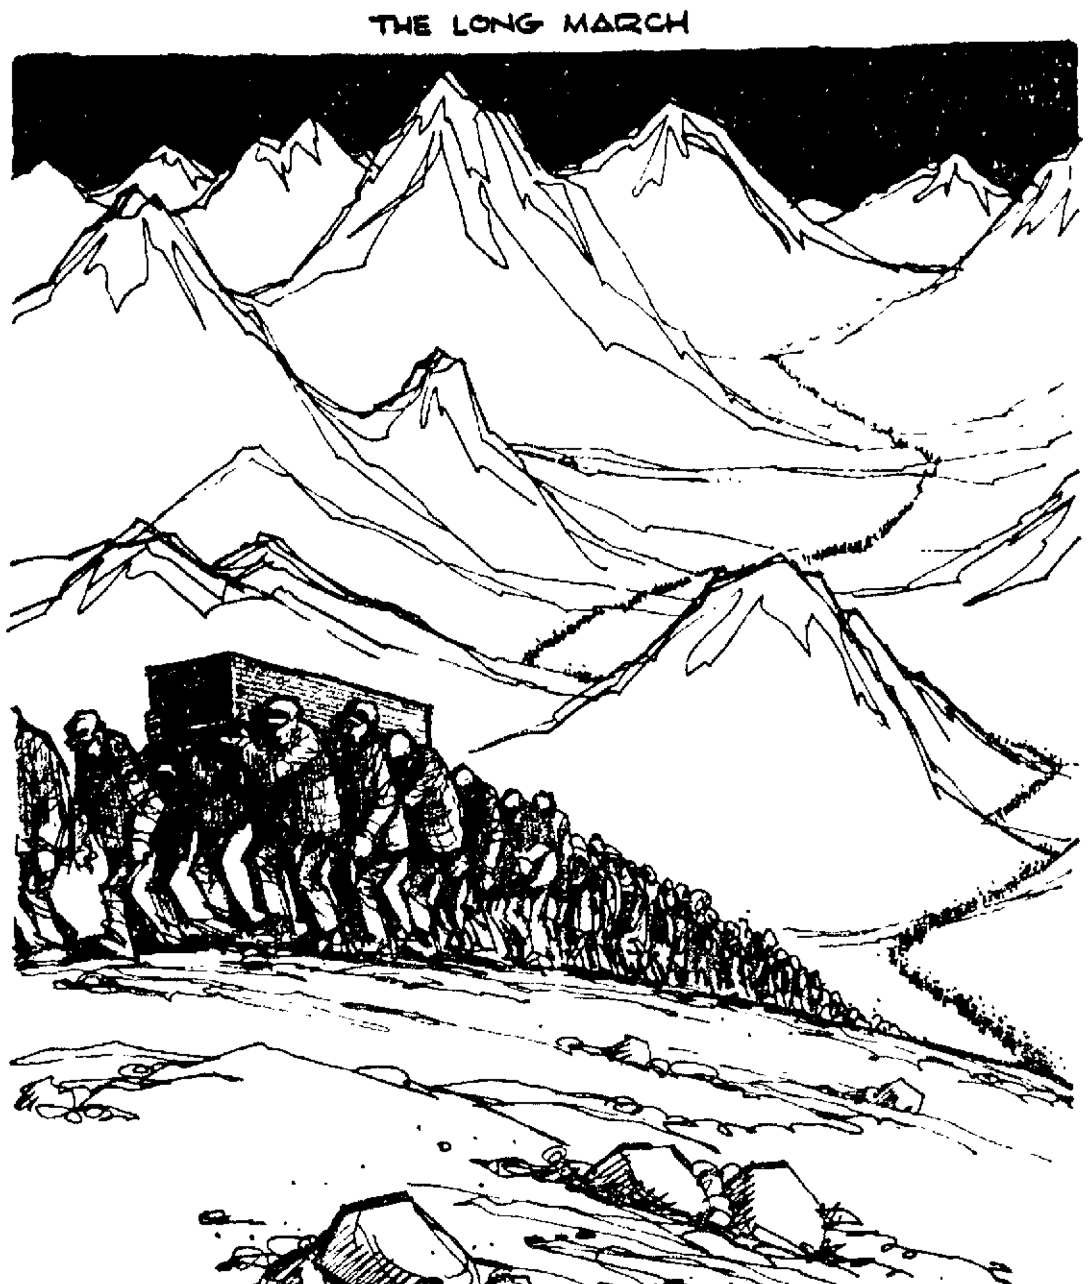
The Chinese Line Of Succession



PARIS — China's leadership problem has neither been complicated nor moved nearer to definitive solution by the death of the indomitable, elegant Chou En-lai. Chairman Mao Tse-tung, although very old and frail, remains so powerful a symbol of revolutionary continuity that all Chinese, even those likely to contest the succession, dare speak only in his name.

But this does not mean the question of who will lead Maoism's second generation has been answered, or in which direction it will head. The fact that Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was brought back from disgrace to direct daily government during Chou's terminal illness doesn't necessarily imply the road to ultimate power lies open to him.

The young Wang Hung-wen, or Chang Chun-Chiao and Yao Wen-yuan are still redoubtable figures in the background. And there is a continuing possibility that some recently restored military commanders or high functionaries whose views on Russia are less harsh than Mao's and Chou's might emerge on top.

One must never forget that the post-Lenin power contest in Soviet Russia's more scrutable society and the more protracted one following Stalin's death were by no means predictable as to outcome. Furthermore, in each case, foreign policy implications were enormous.

Although Trotsky, who preached the "permanent revolution," seemed a more brilliant, charismatic figure and although Lenin had himself warned against Stalin's brutality, Stalin coldly triumphed. He exiled Trotsky, finally had him murdered, and discarded Trotsky's concepts in order to build a firm communist base in isolated Russia.

After Stalin, committee-rule sought to govern the USSR, but one group after another was dissolved. Beria was murdered, Molotov and Malenkov disgraced, then Khrushchev eased out Bulganin and was himself ousted by a party-army faction from which Brezhnev emerged as boss.

The eventual consequences of these leadership changes produced an uneasy new effort to improve relations with the United States and a simultaneous break with China. For the last decade and a half the Sino-Soviet clash has dominated diplomatic thinking in both Moscow and Peking.

Many observers (and these included Premier Chou) speculate the Russians hope to stir trouble in China after the Maoist leadership dies in order ultimately to encourage the chances of successors they might consider more amenable.

Indeed, some months before his health finally collapsed, Chou told me: "The only purpose of the bilateral negotiations they (the Russians) suggest for a non-aggression pact (with China) is to drag the matter on and on without settlement, while waiting for other opportunities."

Chou deeply suspected present Soviet policy aims and in this he echoed Mao's opinions. "In Europe, if Russia wishes to expand, it is not only in East Europe but also in West Europe, to dominate everywhere it can." he said. "And this is also true with respect to China and elsewhere in Asia . . . They are expanding on land, at sea and in the air That is their international aim.

"From Khrushchev through Breznnev, the ruling clique of the Soviet Union has changed its nature . . . It is following a policy of foreign expansionism and domestic fascism . . . The Russians never ceased sending in agents, spies and subversives (everywhere) . . . China is among those which would never accept such stuff because China, under the leadership of Chairman Mao, would never submit."

Since Mao and Chou recognized China's present weaknesses they welcomed the chance to improve relations with the West, above all, the United States They even shelved the Taiwan argument to enhance the possibility of friendship. They urged the United States and NATO to maintain vigilance and military strength with respect to Russia

This has been Peking's policy for approximately four years but there is no assurance it will continue so indefinitely Is some kind of internal argument among aspiring leaders now taking place on this issue?

China unexpectedly released the crew of a Soviet helicopter after long internment — and obliquely apologized to Moscow. Shortly afterward Mao himself took the occasion of a visit by Nixon's daughter and Eisenhower's grandson to associate his personal prestige with the young Americans. A propaganda movie is being prepared on their reception.

Any such disagreement, of course, would be taking place covertly. But the succession problem has not yet been settled by Teng's present importance or by the disappearance of Chou.

At least as many shadowy figures — perhaps some, as Teng had been, still in disgrace — are possibly stirring in a curtained-off Peking After all, such was the case in Moscow during Bolshevism's own two great contests for power

TODAY'S MAIL

Stamp Prices A Financial Go-Round

Postage Increase And Results

Lincoln, Neb.

A Jan. 5 item titled, "Once A Week Not Enougn," shook me up a bit. I have been cogitating on the enormity of the avalanche of mail piled helter-skelter in every nook and corner, others mislaid, lost, and packages also. The mail carriers who delivered once a week could never make it. Extra men would have to be hired. None could make a living wage with only one day's work a week.

Big business will be using their own men to deliver monthly bills. All will be revolting against the raise in postage rates.

In another front page story, it told that even the government has got its back up. Social Security will begin to send pensioners their payments directly to the bank of choice by electronic transfer.

So the Post Office will be further cutting off their nose to spite their face. The more mail they lose, the higher postage will hit the public. So in the long-run, the supposed needs of the "big wheels" had better simmer down.

Let the mail flow gently to the multitude, where business runs smoothly and parents wait anxiously to hear from families far away.

Reporters shouldn't cook up such a witch's brew. The Post Office might get weird ideas.

Football Matters

Omaha, Neb.

I have known what "blitzing" is since the second world war, but what did football people call "stunting" before they called it stunting? Isn't it a new name for something that has always been?

In regard to football recruiting and a strong bench, it helps to have top reserves ready to fill in week after week for others who have bumps and bruises, but for one given game such as the loss to Arizona State, the strong bench can't help much. If the best eleven can't win, the others on the bench can only watch and wait

The proposed college football play-off is a sin because unlike professional football, colleges can't afford to recruit heavy reserve strength. A few key injuries toward the end of the season could make a mockery of a play-off system A few injuries during a bowl game could ruin a team for a play-off championship

Also, I would like to see the Top Ten ratings in college football abolished altogether The standings in league play is one thing, but the national rating serves no good purpose

The 'Child Coaches'

Lincoln, Neb

I would like to congratulate Alfred N Patterson, Jr of Demopolis, Ala , since he was kind enough to congratulate Coaches Switzer and Osborne for actually being two children posing as coaches Also the press — who should have known better — and the fans, who don't know a damn thing

I have always been a Bear Bryant admirer He is a real fine coach I cannot say much for the Alabama fans however I also have a lot of respect for Coaches Osborne and Switzer, even if they are two children posing as coaches

I hope Mr Patterson will join the rest of the Big Eight coaches and the Midwest fans in prayer as I am sure that none of us want Coach Switzer to grow up Any coach who has 31 wins 1 tie, 1 loss, two national football titles and a Coach of the Year award in his first three years as head coach does not need any pointers from Papa Bear Bryant or anyone else

Child Coach Osborne did not do too badly with the Huskers, either as they won their first 10 games losing only the last two and these to the No 1 and No 2 ranked teams in the nation Osborne and his fine coaching staff won't be needing any of Papa Bear Bryant's help either

As for Penn State's being an easy team to play this may not have been the issue Any team in the top 20 may not be easy to beat The real issue was that Bear Bryant picked Penn State for his opponent and this wasn't Bryant's first time to pick his team to play in the bowl games It seems to be a yearly practice

Let's put an end to these cheap shots or at least until we grow up enough to know what we're talking about

ONE OF THE MIDWEST TRASH

Lincoln, Neb.

Before Easter of 1975, the B.N. Railroad laid off employes at our Havelock shop. They have all been called back to work as of Jan. 1, 1976. But for the railroad's coal-hauling business, they would not have been called back, and more would have been laid off.

If any senator, member of Congress, farmer, merchant, grain dealer or worker thinks there is any plus economics to a coal slurry pipeline, it seems to me they just have to ignore reality.

The B.N. runs 71 coal unit trains per week on the entire system — to the west, south and Great Lakes area. It takes 200 gallons of water to force one ton of pulverized coal through a pipeline. To move the 13,000 tons of coal per unit train we move by rail would require 113,600,000 gallons of precious water per week.

Arkansas, a state where a proposed power plant is to be located, according to reports, has a law that says, "NONE of this water can be dumped as run off," but must be evaporated From an energy standpoint, it appears to me, it would be counter-productive to heat 113,6000,000 gallons of water per week to the evaporation point.

It has come to our attention, that some of the coal slurry advocates are using excess propaganda by stating that by 1980, without the slurry pipeline, there will be a coal unit train through Lincoln every six minutes. — Simple arithmetic at 24 hours per day, equals 1,440 minutes; so that would mean about 240 unit trains per day through Lincoln instead of the 71 per week in all directions on entire system. If you really want to get silly, this is 1,680 trains per week through Lincoln according to their allegations.

I have always taken a dim view of those who try to use scare tactics to appeal to one's emotions and lack of knowledge. I for one will not blindly accept this inaccurate data

Contributors To Fund

Lincoln, Neb.

I cannot understand how so many citizens could be willing to shell out contributions in connection with the Rod Loos fund, just because they are afraid to admit that law-enforcement CAN do wrong

I believe it's getting pretty bad when you can't trust law-enforcement to act as protectors rather than assailants And it burns me to know that people are so reluctant to sign their names to a petition for the late Sherdell Lewis in an attempt to uncover the truth concerning his death

Tradition Of Escort

Lincoln, Neb

Once again our family has found it necessary to call on the services of the Lincoln Police Department

The funeral escort that is taken for granted in this city but charged for in other cities is a very touching and comforting tribute to those citizens of this community who have preceded us in death

Our heartfelt thanks to our new police chief George K Hansen for carrying on with the fine traditions of the Lincoln Police Department and to the distinguished officers of L P D for their dignified and sympathetic response during this time of sorrow

Bomb Kills Four In Belfast Arcade

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A powerful bomb killed four persons and wounded 20 in a crowded Belfast shopping arcade Tuesday, authorities said.

The explosion in a hardware store was the first fatal bombing in Northern Ireland this year and came only hours after Protestant and Catholic militants rejected Britain's latest bid to find a political solution to end the country's civil war

In London senior political authorities said the Special Air Service (SAS) contingent dispatched last week to South Armagh County numbered no more than 11 men, although reports at the time suggested it was to be much larger.

The small size of the group opened to question the British government's portrayal of the SAS deployment — amid considerable fanfare — as a measure of Britain's resolve to end violence in the province

The SAS men are specially trained for counterterrorist operations

The arcade bomb, containing about 50 pounds of explosives, went off without warning, killing two men and two women One of the dead was blown through a wall and landed 50 yards away in a car park

It brought the number of deaths since Jan. 1 to 23 and the toll since the violence began in 1969 to at least 1,413.

The area where the bomb was planted is barred to cars, and shoppers enter through turnstile gates to be searched by troops

Britain refused Monday night to bow to the demands of the Protestant majority in the province for a return to majority rule there

Majority rule in Northern Ireland was suspended nearly four years ago when the British government took over direct rule in the province because of worsening violence

Merlyn Rees, Britain's secretary of state for Northern Ireland, announced Monday a last effort to persuade the Protestants to accept power-sharing with the Roman Catholic minority as the basis for any future government in the province

Rees said he was reconvening Ulster's 78-member constitutional convention for a month from Feb 3 to think again and agree to some form of power-sharing

Rees said the British government rejected the recommendation of the dominant Protestant faction in the convention that majority rule should be restored

Protestant hardliners, who have been threatening civil war and industrial chaos if the British government turned down their demands, warned they would wreck the convention when it reconvenes

Japan To Go Ahead With China Treaty

The New York Times

Tokyo — Prime Minister Takeo Miki, in a major policy shift, made clear Tuesday that the Japanese government was ready to conclude a peace treaty with China to end World War II formally despite Soviet warnings against it

Miki, in a news conference just hours after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko ended a visit here, indicated that Japan would accede to a Chinese demand that the pact include a provision stating that both countries oppose the efforts of any third nation to achieve "hegemony" in Asia

Russian officials contend that the provision is aimed at the Soviet Union, and until Tuesday the Japanese had resisted Chinese efforts to include it in the treaty to avoid being caught in the struggle between the two Communist nations

Gromyko warned Miki Monday that Moscow might "reconsider" its relations with Tokyo if Japan agreed with China on a treaty the Soviet Union considered antagonistic

Japan's new readiness to conclude a treaty with Peking containing an anti-Soviet provision appeared immediately after Gromyko refused to concede anything on the Japanese demand for the return of four northern islands seized by the Soviet Union at the end of World War II

Bus Hijacked; Riders Robbed

CHICAGO (AP) — Shades of Jesse James

Five gunmen hijacked a Chicago Transit Authority bus and robbed 26 passengers of $465 in cash

They also took watches, rings, and topcoats in the robbery Monday night on the Madison Street line

Three suspects were arrested Tuesday None of the loot was recovered, police said

The bus driver, Cedric Wright, 24, told police the five men boarded at 10 45 p m and sat apart from each other A few minutes later, the five arose on cue and one put a pistol to the driver's head

"Stay cool and take off" the driver was told The other four robbed the passengers

After a while, Wright was ordered to stop the bus Police said he was struck on the head and the five men fled

Police were notified by someone in the area who noticed the bus was not on its regular route

Government Said Neglecting Prepaid Health Plans

The New York Times

Washington — The president of the Group Health Association of America, an organization of prepaid health maintenance plans charged Tuesday that the prepaid health movement was suffering from government neglect

The prepaid health movement is "like a very hearty plant that has not been watered but continues branching and growing in spite of that," said the president, Dr John G. Smillie

"The movement would flower if it were watered," he said, "and I don't mean money All it really needs is a signal from the administration that prepaid group plans are part of the nation's health policy"

Smillie, an official of the Kaiser-Permanente plans of California, assessed the stagnation of the prepaid health movement in an interview at the final session of the association's two-day meeting here

The meeting brought together state and local officials, health administrators and representatives of labor to hear government officials discuss the implementation of two new health laws national health planning and the mandatory offering of prepaid plans by employers

Prepaid plans permit a family to pay one fixed fee for all their health services rather than pay out-of-pocket for each doctor's visit

They have had an uneven history since 1971 when former President Richard M Nixon called for their expansion to cover one-fifth of the population

Administration support waned and last year the Department of Health, Education and Welfare spent only half of the plans $45 million budget This year, the administration has asked for only $18 million to continue the planning of more centers

Smillie says he is not concerned as much about the money as he is the lack of official interest

He said the hundreds of plans across the country, serving about 5% of the population, had been developed over the years by nonprofit groups like Kaiser and Blue Cross, which has invested some $50 million and by private insurance companies that have invested over $60 million

He said that since health maintenance organizations work in competition with the existing health delivery system they are in the best tradition of the country Organized medicine, included the American Medical Association has opposed their expansion because they often require doctors to work for fixed salaries rather than a fee

The government by inaction, continues to support a health care delivery system that is a monopoly and does not really allow the American people the freedom of choice I believe it should he said

This factor could change, in time because of new government rules that require 400.000 employers with more than 25 workers to offer prepaid insurance in their benefits if a government-approved plan is available in the area The current standards for approval are so high that the House has passed — and the Senate is considering — a change so that plans can be competitive

Despite the obstacles and even without support prepaid plans will continue to expand slowly, Smillie predicted

"Why will they grow?" he asks rhetorically "Because it is right, that's why"

Everybody Else Is Out Of Step

To heck with what the official minutes, news reports and people who were in the audience say, members of the revisionist Lincoln City Council insist that they approved Housing Authority plans for construction of a six-story structure in east Lincoln, not a five-story building.

Council members said Monday that if people think the council approved a five-story building last June, they are victims of a "misunderstanding."

The minutes of the meeting, specifying a five-story building, are incorrect, the council says, as are news reports of the meeting and the recollections of people in attendance. The council said it knew what it was doing even if nobody else did.

This should be charitably viewed as a rare coincidence in which everybody but the council was confused. We really don't think there is a conscious conspiracy afoot to change history. Lincoln council members wouldn't agree among themselves to say they did something they didn't do. And the issue at hand really is not important in the over-all scheme of things, although residents of the Taylor Park area in east Lincoln would perhaps feel differently.

But a precedent has been set which could be used by unscrupulous city fathers in the future to facilitate the changing of minds and/or conditions.

Imagine a council president telling the press the following:

—"Despite what the minutes, the news reports and everybody else who was in the chamber said, we voted a 50% increase in LES rates last month, not a 5% increase.

—"You idiots in the press added a word. We voted to widen 48th St. We did not vote to not widen it.

—"Our policy on eastward expansion of the city has always been misunderstood by the city clerk and the press. Our decision today approving a 6,000-unit housing development and regional shopping center in the Stevens Creek watershed is consistent with past council actions.

—"What previous decision? We're going nuclear.

Ford Jokes Fade

The hatchet job being done on President Ford by the media and the entertainment world seems to have abated somewhat in the past few days. The irrelevancies and other nonsense items printed and broadcast about Ford have subsided in number since the Vail vacation ended. Comics perhaps perceive that their poor-taste jokes about Bozo the Clown reached the saturation point.

It isn't that Americans have lost the ability to laugh at themselves or one another. We can still do that, but without malice. When the ridicule and the jokes become malicious, as they did with Ford, fair-minded people lose their sense of humor and they begin to question those who see laughs or news in a human being evidencing human characteristics.

Ford has been pictured tumbling down the stairs from Air Force One and tumbling through the snow with his skis on, like a windmill. The media breathlessly brings a bored nation reports of Ford backing into the ski lift or getting his legs entangled in the dogs' leashes.

But compare him to his predecessor or some of the challengers for the White House and an entirely different picture emerges: a healthy, energetic, athletic, even graceful 60-year-old man who is in better shape than most younger people.

Ford might trip over his tongue once in a while, but it is not because he is lying — which was the problem with a former president who stuttered and mumbled through most of his public utterances in the last year of his presidency because he knew how little truth his words contained. That same president was stiff and ill at ease around people anyway; no more animated than a campaign poster. Compared to him, Ford is a public relation man's dream. And aside from bowling an occasional line and an infrequent fling at the keyboard, not much was known of Nixon's leisure time or how much he took.

Mr. Ford's most immediate threat, Ronald Reagan, is said to baby himself. He goes to bed early and gets up when he darn well pleases — a routine that would have to change were he to become president. It will be pointed out that the job is full-time. Nor does Reagan project the vigor of the Kennedys or Ford.

We're not defending the President's politics or necessarily his competence, but we do know that Gerald Ford is not a bumbling, clownish, uncoordinated fool. What we have is an active President, a skier, swimmer, dancer, golfer, who sets a good example — lousy jokes and nonsense reporting to the contrary.

Hugs And Kisses

NEW YORK — The news photographs showed President Ford and Ronald Reagan kissing babies the other day. This means they are looking for work. The only time you see a politician kissing a baby is when he is running for office.

Americans seem to expect it of politicians in election years, but not at any other time. If a president were to stop in the middle of the State of the Union address to Congress to kiss a baby who was rushed down the aisle to him, Americans would suppose he had gone daft. There is really no need for presidents to kiss babies, and a president who spent two or three hours a week in the Oval Office kissing babies would soon be accused of eccentric behavior.

Reporters and cynics have high sport with the political baby kisser, but it is unfair. In fact, most politicians dislike kissing babies. Some detest it. I have seen distinguished candidates for president flinch in horror at suddenly having a damp bundle obviously in need of diaper service thrust under their noses for inhaling and kissing, but I have seen very few who refused to do their duty.

Curiously, babies are the only variety of humanity politicians are expected to kiss if they want to win. The rules on osculation are fairly rigid, and they are imposed by us, the people. Candidates may kiss their wives, but only on the cheek. It's the same for other female relatives. Kissing males is taboo if they have progressed beyond diapers. The correct form with a 4-year-old male toddler in short pants is a handshake, just as with a county chairman.

Embraces must also be handled cautiously. The candidate's wife may be embraced, but only with one arm, never with both. This embracing arm must be drooped limply around the waist and only for a brief moment. Afterward, it is dropped, signaling the wife to go to a folding chair, receive a bundle of flowers, sit down and gaze at the candidate in rapt adoration.

The embracing arm is then waved high over the head in synchronization with the non-embracing arm to create a figure of triumphal confidence. Whereupon, the members of the audience, interpreting the signal to mean that they will all get jobs soon after election day, leap to their feet emitting cries of ecstasy.

This scene can be followed by embraces of males. Again, as with wives, only one arm may be wrapped around the embraced male, but two males may be embraced at the same time — one with the right arm, one with the left. Males who may be embraced in this manner include growing sons and such small political chaff as vice presidential candidates, party chairmen, congressmen and celebrated movie actors.

Males of this variety may be embraced more tightly than wives. The candidate is supposed to get a good finger grip on the spare tire just above the embraced politico's belt, to indicate that everybody is in this campaign together. The rule with wives, by contrast, is: no finger pressure. Richard Nixon, in fact, usually embraced his wife without touching her, simply wrapping an arm around the empty space she would have occupied if she had been six sizes bigger.

Now that women are becoming candidates in larger numbers, a new set of conventions will doubtless evolve governing kisses and hugging. We cannot guess what these will be, since no woman has yet managed to become a front-rank presidential candidate. Recent political setbacks for women's liberation measures, however, suggest that success in politics will not necessarily result from their following the same code as the men.

Kissing a proferred baby, for example, may be considered an inadequate or even incompetent gesture from a woman candidate for president. It may be necessary for her to take the infant in hand right there at the airport and change its diaper. It's hard to say. Since these conventions make no sense in the first place, it is impossible to reason how new ones might develop.

The interesting question about the conventions is not why politicians observe them with such easy predictability, but why the electorate insists on their being observed. The recent publicity about President Kennedy's liaison with a woman not his wife and other disclosures about the private and not so correct love-lives of other modern presidents suggest that even presidents behave very much like human beings when the photographers aren't around.

Is this a flaw that should disqualify them for office? If so, perhaps they are driven to it by a doting public which insists that they never kiss their wives except on the cheek, nor embrace them in both arms.

There may be something to be said for a convention, however. There usually is. Perhaps a president who can kiss anybody's baby with equanimity really does have a better temperatent for getting along with Congress and the Pentagon than most men.

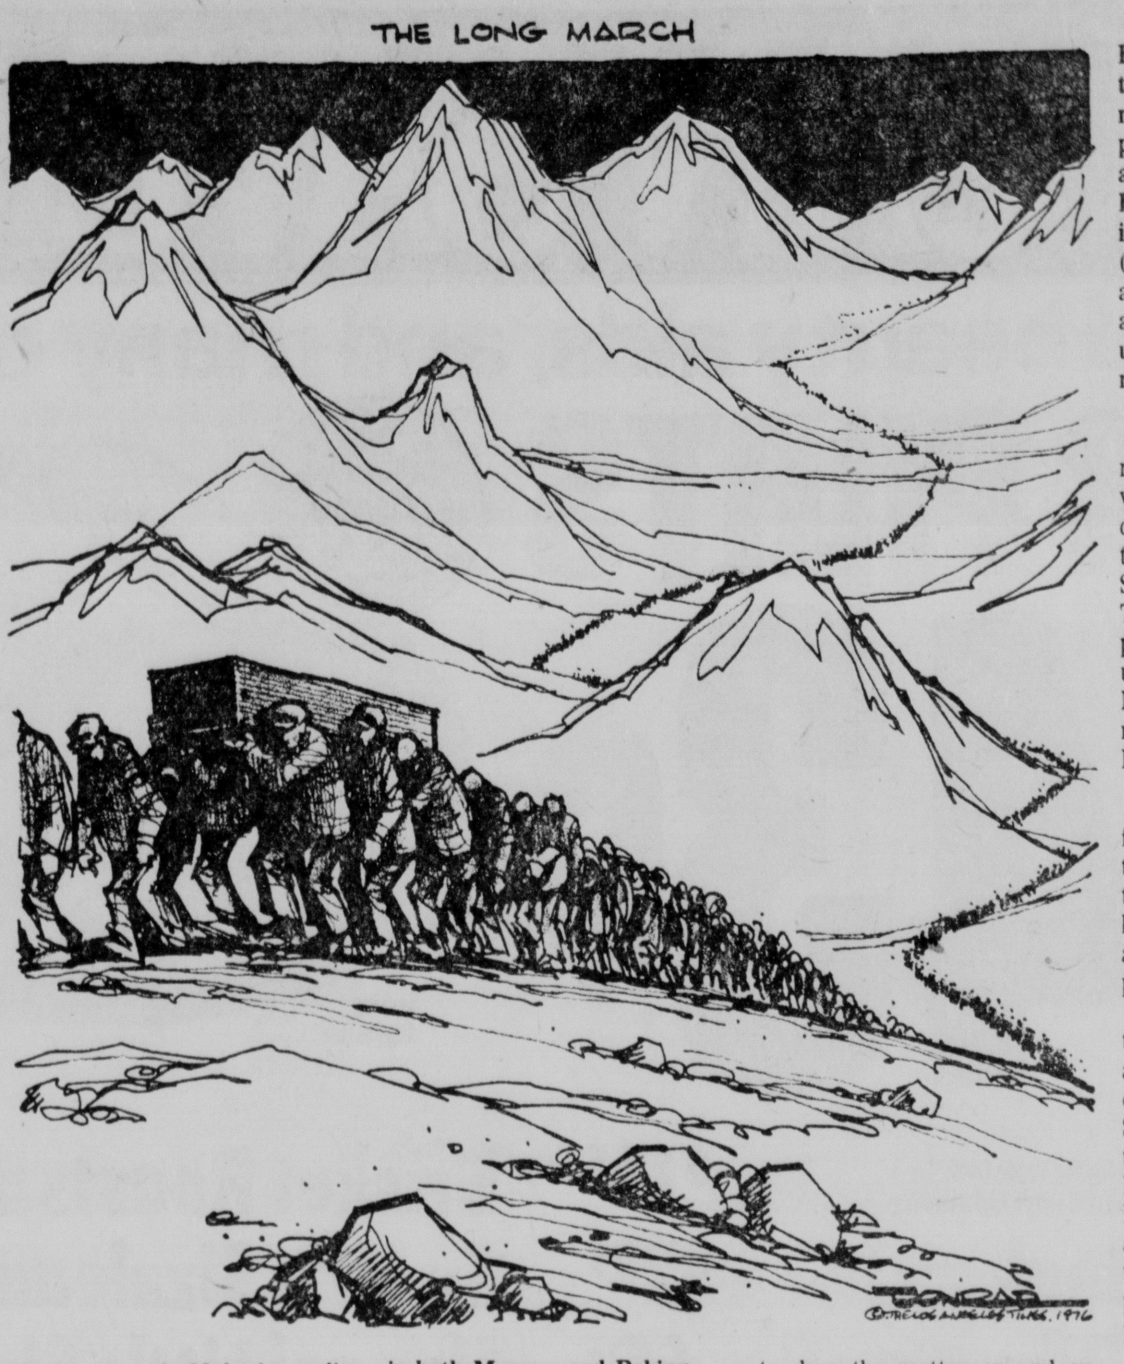
The Chinese Line Of Succession



PARIS — China's leadership problem has neither been complicated nor moved nearer to definitive solution by the death of the indomitable, elegant Chou En-lai. Chairman Mao Tse-tung, although very old and frail, remains so powerful a symbol of revolutionary continuity that all Chinese, even those likely to contest the succession, dare speak only in his name.

But this does not mean the question of who will lead Maoism's second generation has been answered; or in which direction it will head. The fact that Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was brought back from disgrace to direct daily government during Chou's terminal illness doesn't necessarily imply the road to ultimate power lies open to him.

The young Wang Hung-wen, or Chang Chun-Chiao and Yao Wen-yuan are still redoubtable figures in the background. And there is a continuing possibility that some recently restored military commanders or high functionaries whose views on Russia are less harsh than Mao's and Chou's might emerge on top.

One must never forget that the post-Lenin power contest in Soviet Russia's more scrutable society and the more protracted one following Stalin's death were by no means predictable as to outcome. Furthermore, in each case, foreign policy implications were enormous.

Although Trotsky, who preached the "permanent revolution," seemed a more brilliant, charismatic figure and although Lenin had himself warned against Stalin's brutality, Stalin coldly triumphed. He exiled Trotsky, finally had him murdered, and discarded Trotsky's concepts in order to build a firm communist base in isolated Russia.

After Stalin, committee-rule sought to govern the USSR, but one group after another was dissolved. Beria was murdered, Molotov and Malenkov disgraced; then Khrushchev eased out Bulganin and was himself ousted by a party-army faction from which Brezhnev emerged as boss.

The eventual consequences of these leadership changes produced an uneasy new effort to improve relations with the United States and a simultaneous break with China. For the last decade and a half the Sino-Soviet clash has dominated diplomatic thinking in both Moscow and Peking.

Many observers (and these included Premier Chou) speculate the Russians hope to stir trouble in China after the Maoist leadership dies in order ultimately to encourage the chances of successors they might consider more amenable.

Indeed, some months before his health finally collapsed, Chou told me: "The only purpose of the bilateral negotiations they (the Russians) suggest for a non-aggression pact (with China) is to drag the matter on and on without settlement, while waiting for other opportunities."

Chou deeply suspected present Soviet policy aims and in this he echoed Mao's opinions. "In Europe, if Russia wishes to expand, it is not only in East Europe but also in West Europe, to dominate everywhere it can," he said. "And this is also true with respect to China and elsewhere in Asia . . . They are expanding on land, at sea and in the air. That is their international aim.

"From Khrushchev through Brezhnev, the ruling clique of the Soviet Union has changed its nature . . . It is following a policy of foreign expansionism and domestic fascism . . . The Russians never ceased sending in agents, spies and subversives (everywhere) . . . China is among those which would never accept such stuff because China, under the leadership of Chairman Mao, would never submit."

Since Mao and Chou recognized China's present weaknesses they welcomed the chance to improve relations with the West, above all, the United States. They even shelved the Taiwan argument to enhance the possibility of friendship. They urged the United States and NATO to maintain vigilance and military strength with respect to Russia.

This has been Peking's policy for approximately four years but there is no assurance it will continue so indefinitely. Is some kind of internal argument among aspiring leaders now taking place on this issue?

China unexpectedly released the crew of a Soviet helicopter after long internment — and obliquely apologized to Moscow. Shortly afterward Mao himself took the occasion of a visit by Nixon's daughter and Eisenhower's grandson to associate his personal prestige with the young Americans. A propaganda movie is being prepared on their reception.

Any such disagreement, of course, would be taking place covertly. But the succession problem has not yet been settled by Teng's present importance or by the disappearance of Chou.

At least as many shadowy figures — perhaps some, as Teng had been, still in disgrace — are possibly stirring in a curtained-off Peking. After all, such was the case in Moscow during Bolshevism's own two great contests for power.

TODAY'S MAIL

Stamp Prices A Financial Go-Round

Lincoln, Neb.

A Jan. 5 item titled, "Once A Week Not Enough," shook me up a bit. I have been cogitating on the enormity of the avalanche of mail piled helter-skelter in every nook and corner, others mislaid, lost, and packages also. The mail carriers who delivered once a week could never make it. Extra men would have to be hired. None could make a living wage with only one day's work a week.

Big business will be using their own men to deliver monthly bills. All will be revolting against the raise in postage rates.

In another front page story, it told that even the government has got its back up. Social Security will begin to send pensioners their payments directly to the bank of choice by electronic transfer.

So the Post Office will be further cutting off their nose to spite their face. The more mail they lose, the higher postage will hit the public. So in the long-run, the supposed needs of the "big wheels" had better simmer down.

Let the mail flow gently to the multitude, where business runs smoothly and parents wait anxiously to hear from families far away.

Reporters shouldn't cook up such a witch's brew. The Post Office might get weird ideas.

Football Matters

Omaha, Neb.

I have known what "blitzing" is since the second world war, but what did football people call "stunting" before they called it stunting? Isn't it a new name for something that has always been?

In regard to football recruiting and a strong bench, it helps to have top reserves ready to fill in week after week for others who have bumps and bruises, but for one given game such as the loss to Arizona State, the strong bench can't help much. If the best eleven can't win, the others on the bench can only watch and wait.

The proposed college football play-off is a sin because unlike professional football, colleges can't afford to recruit heavy reserve strength. A few key injuries toward the end of the season could make a mockery of a play-off system. A few injuries during a bowl game could ruin a team for a play-off championship.

Also, I would like to see the Top Ten ratings in college football abolished altogether. The standings in league play is one thing, but the national rating serves no good purpose.

The 'Child Coaches'

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to congratulate Alfred N. Patterson, Jr. of Demopolis, Ala., since he was kind enough to congratulate Coaches Switzer and Osborne for actually being two children posing as coaches. Also, the press — who should have known better — and the fans, who don't know a damn thing.

I have always been a Bear Bryant admirer. He is a real fine coach. I cannot say much for the Alabama fans, however. I also have a lot of respect for Coaches Osborne and Switzer, even if they are two children posing as coaches.

I hope Mr. Patterson will join the rest of the Big Eight coaches and the Midwest fans in prayer, as I am sure that none of us want Coach Switzer to grow up. Any coach who has 31 wins, 1 tie, 1 loss, two national football titles and a "Coach of the Year" award in his first three years as head coach does not need any pointers from Papa Bear Bryant or anyone else.

Child Coach Osborne did not do too badly with the Huskers, either, as they won their first 10 games, losing only the last two and these to the No. 1 and No. 2 ranked teams in the nation. Osborne and his fine coaching staff won't be needing any of Papa Bear Bryant's help, either.

As for Penn State's being an easy team to play, this may not have been the issue. Any team in the top 20 may not be easy to beat. The real issue was that Bear Bryant picked Penn State for his opponent, and this wasn't Bryant's first time to pick his team to play in the bowl games. It seems to be a yearly practice.

Let's put an end to these cheap shots, or at least until we grow up enough to know what we're talking about.

ONE OF THE MIDWEST TRASH

Lincoln, Neb.

Before Easter of 1975, the B.N. Railroad laid off employes at our Havelock shop. They have all been called back to work as of Jan. 1, 1976. But for the railroad's coal-hauling business, they would not have been called back, and more would have been laid off.

If any senator, member of Congress, farmer, merchant, grain dealer or worker thinks there is any plus economics to a coal slurry pipeline, it seems to me they just have to ignore reality.

The B.N. runs 71 coal unit trains per week on the entire system — to the west, south and Great Lakes area. It takes 200 gallons of water to force one ton of pulverized coal through a pipeline. To move the 13,000 tons of coal per unit train we move by rail would require 113,600,000 gallons of precious water per week.

Arkansas, a state where a proposed power plant is to be located, according to reports, has a law that says, "NONE of this water can be dumped as run off," but must be evaporated. From an energy standpoint, it appears to me, it would be counter-productive to heat 113,6000,000 gallons of water per week to the evaporation point.

It has come to our attention, that some of the coal slurry advocates are using excess propaganda by stating that by 1980, without the slurry pipeline, there will be a coal unit train through Lincoln every six minutes. — Simple arithmetic at 24 hours per day, equals 1,440 minutes; so that would mean about 240 unit trains per day through Lincoln instead of the 71 per week in all directions on entire system. If you really want to get silly, this is 1,680 trains per week through Lincoln according to their allegations.

I have always taken a dim view of those who try to use scare tactics to appeal to one's emotions and lack of knowledge; I for one will not blindly accept this inaccurate data.

Contributors To Fund

Lincoln, Neb.

I cannot understand how so many citizens could be willing to shell out contributions in connection with the Rod Loos fund, just because they are afraid to admit that law-enforcement CAN do wrong.

I believe it's getting pretty bad when you can't trust law-enforcement to act as protectors rather than assailants. And it burns me to know that people are so reluctant to sign their names to a petition for the late Sherdell Lewis in an attempt to uncover the truth concerning his death.

Tradition Of Escort

Lincoln, Neb.

Once again our family has found it necessary to call on the services of the Lincoln Police Department.

The funeral escort that is taken for granted in this city but charged for in other cities is a very touching and comforting tribute to those citizens of this community who have preceded us in death.

Our heartfelt thanks to our new police chief, George K. Hansen, for carrying on with the fine traditions of the Lincoln Police Department and to the distinguished officers of L.P.D. for their dignified and sympathetic response during this time of sorrow.

Leftist Paper Says List Names 32 CIA Agents

Paris (UPI) — The press in Western Europe has unmasked dozens of alleged CIA agents in recent weeks and reportedly plans to reveal dozens more in the near future

In Washington, the State Department condemned the disclosures as "extremely irresponsible" and the CIA conceded it was "naturally concerned" about them

In the latest revelations, the left-wing Paris newspaper Liberation published Tuesday a list of what it said were 32 CIA agents

The newspaper said its reporters compiled the list with the help of CIA defectors "disgusted by clandestine intervention of their government throughout the world"

Liberation said Italian newspapers will soon publish the names of 45 CIA operatives in Italy

It said similar lists would be made public in Mexico, Britain, Portugal and Sweden in a coordinated drive by left-wing groups to unmask the CIA

Richard Welch, the CIA's station chief in Greece, was assassinated Dec 23 a month after the Athens News identified him and other American intelligence agents

Last Friday, the Madrid news magazine Cambio 16 published the names of nine CIA officers in Madrid

Experience has shown that the printing of such lists is extremely irresponsible," a State Department spokesman said in Washington "We view this kind of thing as contemptible and inflammatory"

A CIA spokesman said the agency is "naturally concerned at the publication by any foreign journal of any list of persons who are either identified correctly or incorrectly as having served as CIA employes"

Diplomatic sources said some of the names listed by Liberation were genuine names of U S embassy employes

Others were not known to embassy insiders while half a dozen of those mentioned by Liberation have long since been transferred to other positions

"We are not police informants and we don't wish anyone to meet death," Liberation said, referring to Welch s death

The paper, which campaigns against the influence of both the United States and the Soviet Union, promised to publish a list of Soviet agents if the CIA provides it

No Signs Of Infiltration Found

Washington (UPI) — Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Tuesday the Senate Intelligence Committee has found no evidence that the CIA again has infiltrated news, educational, religious and cultural organizations

Church categorically denied press reports that the committee has uncovered evidence the CIA — in defiance of guidelines established in 1967 — "has continued to use this nation's private institutions for clandestine purposes"

"I can flatly state that the committee has no evidence for such a charge," he said in a statement "Indeed, what we have seen suggests that the CIA has scrupulously adhered to the 1967 guidelines laid down by President Johnson which prohibited covert relationships, direct or indirect, with any of our nation's private institutions"

Church said the committee's inquiry, which is still under way, has gone carefully into the issue of CIA covert relationships with educational and cultural institutions, the press and publishing houses, and religious groups

"The committee has been particularly attentive to this subject because the integrity and independence of such institutions is clearly essential to our own free society," Church said "This inquiry is well advanced and in due course the committee will make known its findings."

Four Rail Unions OK Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief negotiator for four railway shopcraft unions announced Tuesday membership ratification of the new three-year agreement with the nation's railroads.

President James E. Yost of the AFL-CIO Railway Employes Department, with which the unions are affiliated, said the tentative settlement reached Dec. 4 won overwhelming approval from the unions' 70,000 members.

The contract includes a 10 per cent wage hike retroactive to Jan 1, 1975, an additional 5 per cent hike retroactive to Oct. 1, and a 12-cent-an-hour cost-of-living increase retroactive to Jan. 1. In all, the unions won a 41 per cent boost in wages and benefits for their members who averaged $5 75 an hour under the contract which ran out Dec. 31, 1974. The nex pact expires Dec. 31, 1977.

The four unions covered under the agreement are the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the International Brotherhood of Boilermarkers, and the Brotherhood Firemen and Oilers.

3 Million Visit Greece

Athens (UPI) — Nearly three million tourists visited Greece in the first 10 months of 1975, bringing more than $500 million of foreign exchange into the country, according to the statistical service American tourists headed the list with 409,747 arrivals, followed by 376,851 West Germans.

Kelley Says FBI Lacks Evidence Of Plans To Disrupt Bicentennial

Washington (UPI) — Director Clarence Kelley said Tuesday the FBI was preparing for terrorist attempts to "blow out the candles" on America's bicentennial celebration, even though hard evidence of such terrorism plans is lacking

Kelley emphasized the FBI was not going to break any laws in keeping a watch over such activity, although he said "unusual methods" must be used

The FBI chief added he was not aware of foreign-trained terrorists working in the United States. He specifically denied knowledge of members of the Palestine Liberation Organization operating here.

Kelley, speaking to a news media meeting sponsored by the American Security Council, said the bombing of LaGuardia Airport in New York City and Monday's discovery of three bombs at the United Nations were cause for concern as the nation opened its bicentennial year

He said the FBI has received information of threats to "disrupt" the bicentennial celebrations

"We cannot say who this was, that this was a real threat," he said "No, I don't have any hard facts, hard evidence that they will fulfill these threats"

Kelley added he was unable to say whether the LaGuardia bombing was by a terrorist group. "At this point we don't know," he said

"But at this time we are going to prepare for the worst the boast that 'we are going to blow out the candles'," Kelley said

Kelley emphasized terrorist activity was the "ultimate evil" in the United States, but said few Americans are concerned until their lives are involved.

He said there were 89 bombings attributable to terrorist activity in the United States last year, up from 45 in 1974, and 24 in 1973

Such activity killed 11 persons and injured 72 others last year and brought property damage to more than $2.7 million.

Bomb Kills Four In Belfast Arcade

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A powerful bomb killed four persons and wounded 20 in a crowded Belfast shopping arcade Tuesday, authorities said.

The explosion in a hardware store was the first fatal bombing in Northern Ireland this year and came only hours after Protestant and Catholic militants rejected Britain's latest bid to find a political solution to end the country's civil war.

In London senior political authorities said the Special Air Service (SAS) contingent dispatched last week to South Armagh County numbered no more than 11 men, although reports at the time suggested it was to be much larger.

The small size of the group opened to question the British government's portrayal of the SAS deployment — amid considerable fanfare — as a measure of Britain's resolve to end violence in the province.

The SAS men are specially trained for counterterrorist operations.

The arcade bomb, containing about 50 pounds of explosives, went off without warning, killing two men and two women. One of the dead was blown through a wall and landed 50 yards away in a car park.

It brought the number of deaths since Jan. 1 to 23 and the toll since the violence began in 1969 to at least 1,413.

The area where the bomb was planted is barred to cars, and shoppers enter through turnstile gates to be searched by troops.

Britain refused Monday night to bow to the demands of the Protestant majority in the province for a return to majority rule there.

Majority rule in Northern Ireland was suspended nearly four years ago when the British government took over direct rule in the province because of worsening violence.

Merlyn Rees, Britain's secretary of state for Northern Ireland, announced Monday a last effort to persuade the Protestants to accept power-sharing with the Roman Catholic minority as the basis for any future government in the province.

Rees said he was reconvening Ulster's 78-member constitutional convention for a month from Feb. 3 to think again and agree to some form of power-sharing.

Rees said the British government rejected the recommendation of the dominant Protestant faction in the convention that majority rule should be restored.

Protestant hardliners, who have been threatening civil war and industrial chaos if the British government turned down their demands, warned they would wreck the convention when it reconvenes.

Japan To Go Ahead With China Treaty

©The New York Times

Tokyo — Prime Minister Takeo Miki, in a major policy shift, made clear Tuesday that the Japanese government was ready to conclude a peace treaty with China to end World War II formally despite Soviet warnings against it.

Miki, in a news conference just hours after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko ended a visit here, indicated that Japan would accede to a Chinese demand that the pact include a provision stating that both countries oppose the efforts of any third nation to achieve "hegemony" in Asia.

Russian officials contend that the provision is aimed at the Soviet Union, and until Tuesday the Japanese had resisted Chinese efforts to include it in the treaty to avoid being caught in the struggle between the two Communist nations.

Gromyko warned Miki Monday that Moscow might "reconsider" its relations with Tokyo if Japan agreed with China on a treaty the Soviet Union considered antagonistic.

Japan's new readiness to conclude a treaty with Peking containing an anti-Soviet provision appeared immediately after Gromyko refused to concede anything on the Japanese demand for the return of four northern islands seized by the Soviet Union at the end of World War II.

Bus Hijacked; Riders Robbed

CHICAGO (AP) — Shades of Jesse James.

Five gunmen hijacked a Chicago Transit Authority bus and robbed 26 passengers of $465 in cash.

They also took watches, rings, and topcoats in the robbery Monday night on the Madison Street line.

Three suspects were arrested Tuesday. None of the loot was recovered, police said.

The bus driver, Cedric Wright, 24, told police the five men boarded at 10:45 p.m. and sat apart from each other. A few minutes later, the five arose on cue and one put a pistol to the driver's head.

"Stay cool and take off," the driver was told. The other four robbed the passengers.

After a while, Wright was ordered to stop the bus. Police said he was struck on the head and the five men fled.

Police were notified by someone in the area who noticed the bus was not on its regular route.

Government Said Neglecting Prepaid Health Plans

©The New York Times

Washington — The president of the Group Health Association of America, an organization of prepaid health maintenance plans, charged Tuesday that the prepaid health movement was suffering from government neglect.

The prepaid health movement is "like a very hearty plant that has not been watered but continues branching and growing in spite of that," said the president, Dr. John G. Smillie.

"The movement would flower if it were watered," he said, "and I don't mean money. All it really needs is a signal from the administration that prepaid group plans are part of the nation's health policy."

Smillie, an official of the Kaiser-Permanente plans of California, assessed the stagnation of the prepaid health movement in an interview at the final session of the association's two-day meeting here.

The meeting brought together state and local officials, health administrators and representatives of labor to hear government officials discuss the implementation of two new health laws: national health planning and the mandatory offering of prepaid plans by employers.

Prepaid plans permit a family to pay one fixed fee for all their health services, rather than pay out-of-pocket for each doctor's visit.

They have had an uneven history since 1971, when former President Richard M. Nixon called for their expansion to cover one-fifth of the population.

Administration support waned and last year the Department of Health, Education and Welfare spent only half of the plans' $45 million budget. This year, the administration has asked for only $18 million to continue the planning of more centers.

Smillie says he is not concerned as much about the money as he is the lack of official interest.

He said the hundreds of plans across the country, serving about 5% of the population, had been developed over the years by nonprofit groups like Kaiser and Blue Cross, which has invested some $50 million, and by private insurance companies that have invested over $60 million.

He said that since health maintenance organizations work in competition with the existing health delivery system, they are in the best tradition of the country. Organized medicine, included the American Medical Association, has opposed their expansion because they often require doctors to work for fixed salaries rather than a fee.

"The government, by inaction, continues to support a health care delivery system that is a monopoly and does not really allow the American people the freedom of choice I believe it should," he said.

This factor could change, in time, because of new government rules that require 400,000 employers with more than 25 workers to offer prepaid insurance in their benefits if a government-approved plan is available in the area. The current standards for approval are so high, that the House has passed — and the Senate is considering — a change so that plans can be competitive.

Despite the obstacles, and even without support, prepaid plans will continue to expand slowly, Smillie predicted.

"Why will they grow?" he asks rhetorically. "Because it is right, that's why."

Leftist Paper Says List Names 32 CIA Agents

Paris (UPI) — The press in Western Europe has unmasked dozens of alleged CIA agents in recent weeks and reportedly plans to reveal dozens more in the near future.

In Washington, the State Department condemned the disclosures as "extremely irresponsible" and the CIA conceded it was "naturally concerned" about them.

In the latest revelations, the left-wing Paris newspaper Liberation published Tuesday a list of what it said were 32 CIA agents.

The newspaper said its reporters compiled the list with the help of CIA defectors "disgusted by clandestine intervention of their government throughout the world."

Liberation said Italian newspapers will soon publish the names of 45 CIA operatives in Italy.

It said similar lists would be made public in Mexico, Britain, Portugal and Sweden in a coordinated drive by left-wing groups to unmask the CIA.

Richard Welch, the CIA's station chief in Greece, was assassinated Dec. 23 a month after the Athens News identified him and other American intelligence agents.

Last Friday, the Madrid news magazine Cambio 16 published the names of nine CIA officers in Madrid.

"Experience has shown that the printing of such lists is extremely irresponsible," a State Department spokesman said in Washington. "We view this kind of thing as contemptible and inflammatory."

A CIA spokesman said the agency is "naturally concerned at the publication by any foreign journal of any list of persons who are either identified correctly or incorrectly as having served as CIA employes."

Diplomatic sources said some of the names listed by Liberation were genuine names of U.S. embassy employes.

Others were not known to embassy insiders while half a dozen of those mentioned by Liberation have long since been transferred to other positions.

"We are not police informants and we don't wish anyone to meet death," Liberation said, referring to Welch's death.

The paper, which campaigns against the influence of both the United States and the Soviet Union, promised to publish a list of Soviet agents if the CIA provides it.

No Signs Of Infiltration Found

Washington (UPI) — Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Tuesday the Senate Intelligence Committee has found no evidence that the CIA again has infiltrated news, educational, religious and cultural organizations.

Church categorically denied press reports that the committee has uncovered evidence the CIA — in defiance of guidelines established in 1967 — "has continued to use this nation's private institutions for clandestine purposes."

"I can flatly state that the committee has no evidence for such a charge," he said in a statement. "Indeed, what we have seen suggests that the CIA has scrupulously adhered to the 1967 guidelines laid down by President Johnson which prohibited covert relationships, direct or indirect, with any of our nation's private institutions."

Church said the committee's inquiry, which is still under way, has gone carefully into the issue of CIA covert relationships with educational and cultural institutions, the press and publishing houses, and religious groups.

"The committee has been particularly attentive to this subject because the integrity and independence of such institutions is clearly essential to our own free society," Church said. "This inquiry is well advanced and in due course the committee will make known its findings."

State Rep. Frank DeGroat of Lake Park, a Republican in his 14th year in the Minnesota Legislature, said he won't seek re-election because state lawmakers have turned to "passing junk" and he no longer wants to be part of it.

Four Rail Unions OK Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief negotiator for four railway shopcraft unions announced Tuesday membership ratification of the new three-year agreement with the nation's railroads.

President James E. Yost of the AFL-CIO Railway Employes Department, with which the unions are affiliated, said the tentative settlement reached Dec. 4 won overwhelming approval from the unions' 70,000 members.

The contract includes a 10 per cent wage hike retroactive to Jan. 1, 1975, an additional 5 per cent hike retroactive to Oct. 1, and a 12-cent-an-hour cost-of-living increase retroactive to Jan. 1. In all, the unions won a 41 per cent boost in wages and benefits for their members who averaged $5.75 an hour under the contract which ran out Dec. 31, 1974. The nex pact expires Dec. 31, 1977.

The four unions covered under the agreement are the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the International Brotherhood of Boilermarkers, and the Brotherhood Firemen and Oilers.

3 Million Visit Greece

Athens (UPI) — Nearly three million tourists visited Greece in the first 10 months of 1975, bringing more than $500 million of foreign exchange into the country, according to the statistical service. American tourists headed the list with 409,747 arrivals, followed by 376,851 West Germans.

Kelley Says FBI Lacks Evidence Of Plans To Disrupt Bicentennial

Washington (UPI) — Director Clarence Kelley said Tuesday the FBI was preparing for terrorist attempts to "blow out the candles" on America's bicentennial celebration, even though hard evidence of such terrorism plans is lacking.

Kelley emphasized the FBI was not going to break any laws in keeping a watch over such activity, although he said "unusual methods" must be used.

The FBI chief added he was not aware of foreign-trained terrorists working in the United States. He specifically denied knowledge of members of the Palestine Liberation Organization operating here.

Kelley, speaking to a news media meeting sponsored by the American Security Council, said the bombing of LaGuardia Airport in New York City and Monday's discovery of three bombs at the United Nations were cause for concern as the nation opened its bicentennial year.

He said the FBI has received information of threats to "disrupt" the bicentennial celebrations.

"We cannot say who this was, that this was a real threat," he said. "No, I don't have any hard facts, hard evidence that they will fulfill these threats."

Kelley added he was unable to say whether the LaGuardia bombing was by a terrorist group. "At this point we don't know," he said.

"But at this time we are going to prepare for the worst: the boast that 'we are going to blow out the candles'," Kelley said.

Kelley emphasized terrorist activity was the "ultimate evil" in the United States, but said few Americans are concerned until their lives are involved.

He said there were 89 bombings attributable to terrorist activity in the United States last year, up from 45 in 1974, and 24 in 1973.

Such activity killed 11 persons and injured 72 others last year and brought property damage to more than $2.7 million.

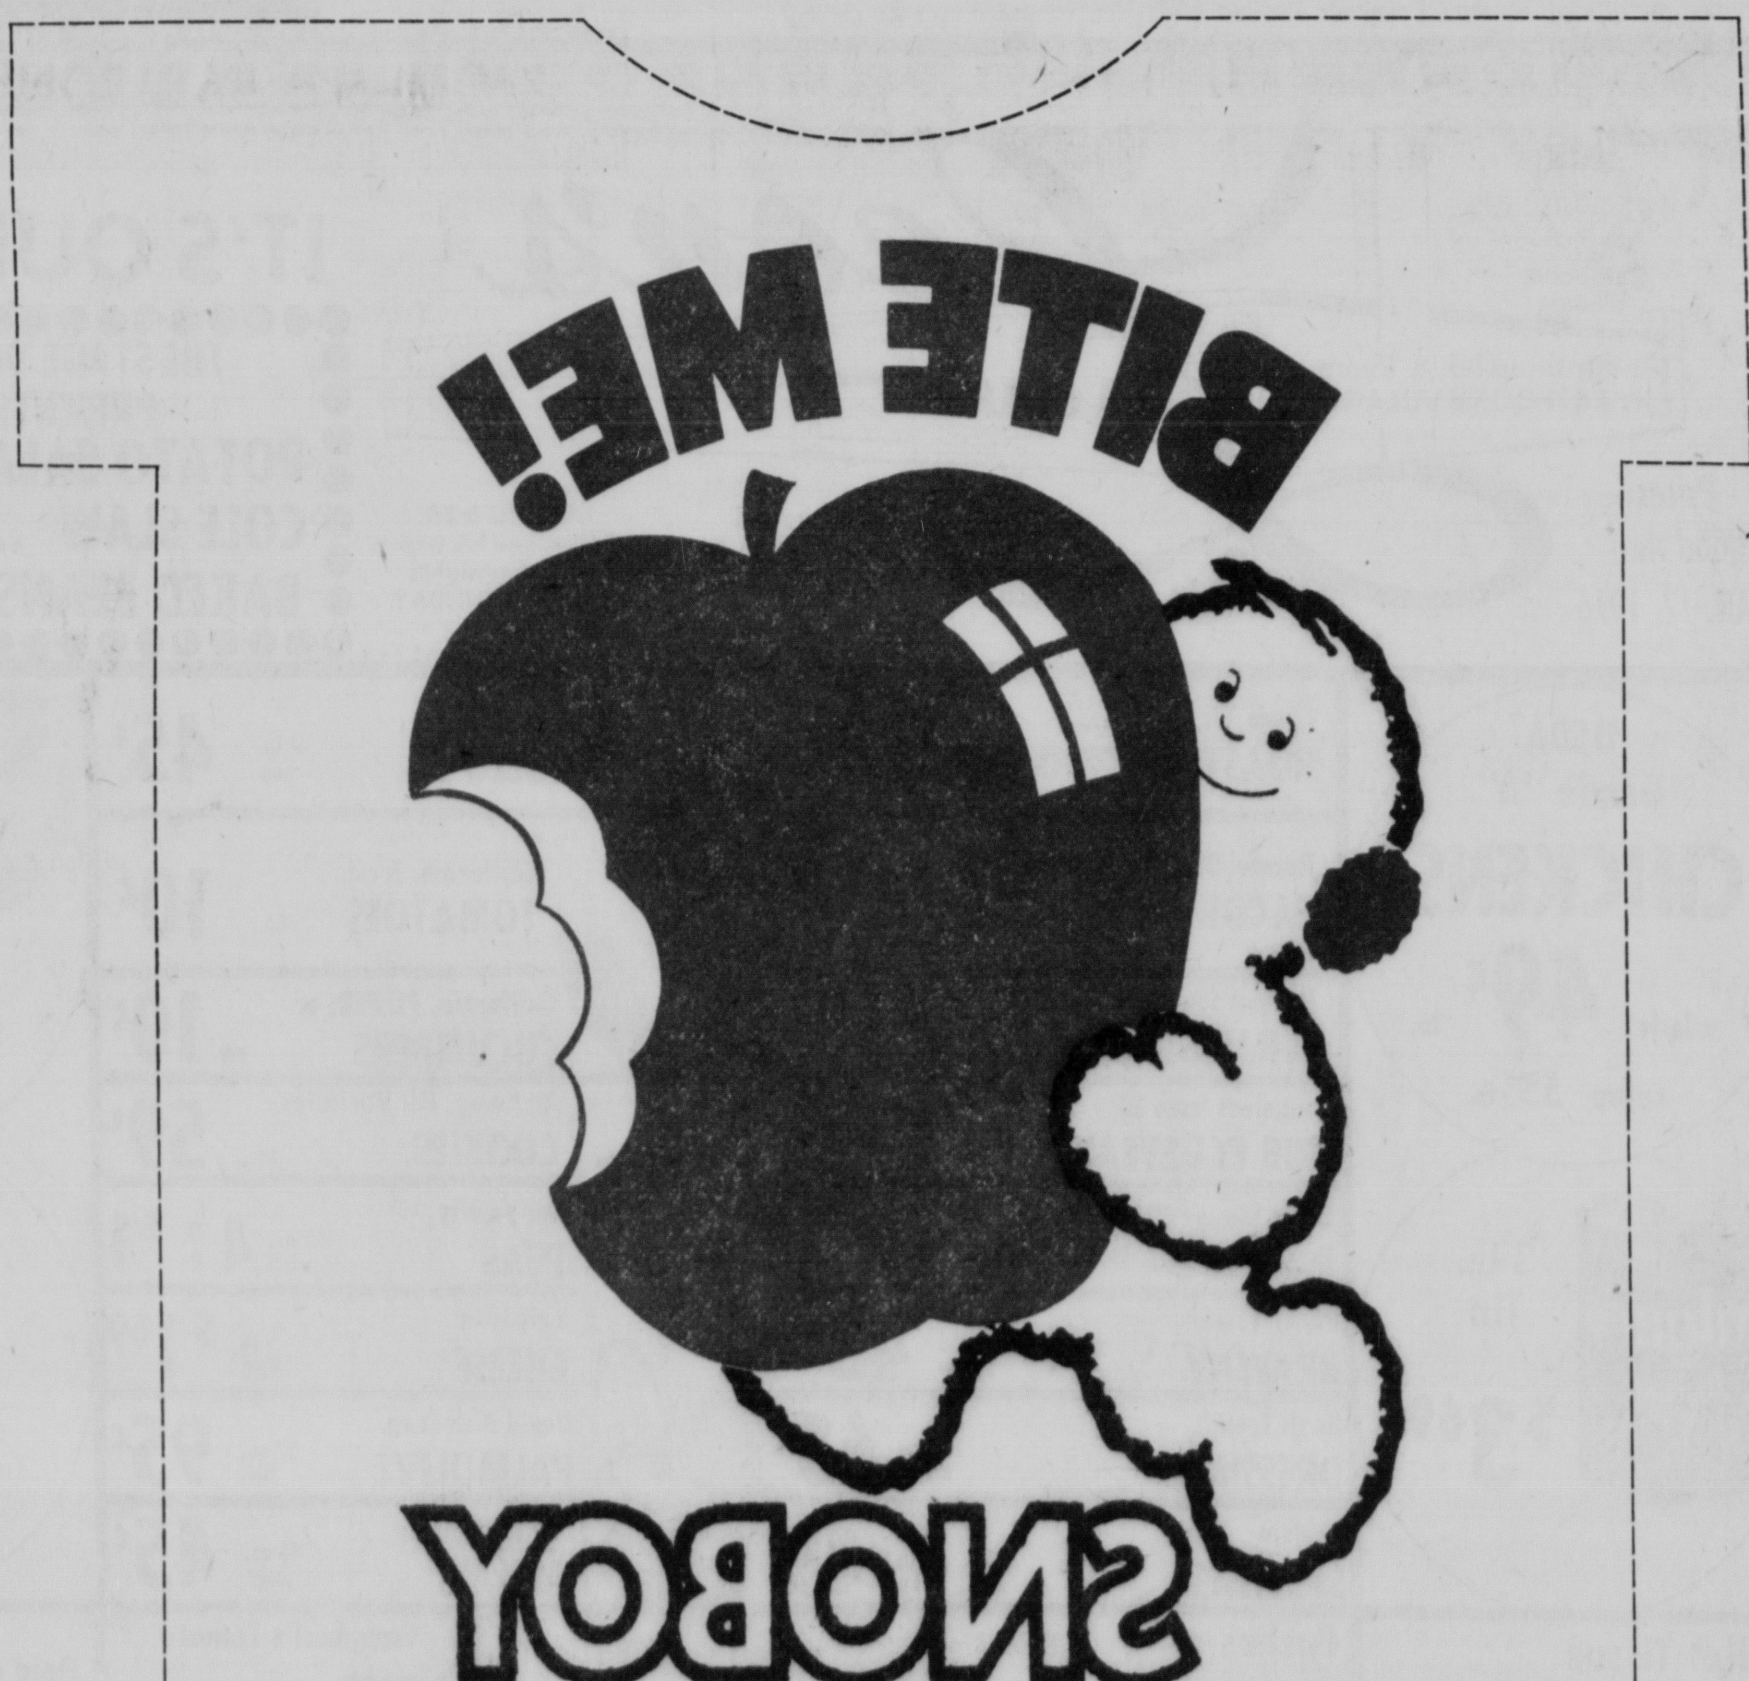
SNOBOY IRON-ON!

(Follow easy instructions below and put it on your T-shirt!)



INSTRUCTIONS

1. Use permanent press materials of 50% cotton and 50% polyester. (100% cotton materials will not hold color after repeated washings.)

2. Place a cover of plain, notebook or bonded typing paper over your ironing board to protect it from staining. Do not use porous papers such as tissue or paper towels as they will allow the ink to leak through.

3. Slip T-shirt over end of ironing board so that the portion of the T-shirt you wish to print on is directly over the protective paper.

4. Cut out SNOBOY iron-on along the dotted lines. Place face down on the area of T-shirt you wish to decorate. Pin the pattern securely to the shirt so it won't slide when ironing. Place another piece of plain, notebook or bonded typing paper over the design to protect the iron. (Don't use too heavy paper as this will prevent the proper heat transfer of your pattern.)

5. Set iron to "cotton" and allow it to heat up. Use dry iron, not steam. When iron is hot, iron across the design with firm, even pressure for one minute. Be sure to iron over entire design area. Allow T-shirt to cool for at least one minute before removing pattern.

LAUNDERING

Wash and dry with other permanent press clothes. Do not use chlorine bleach. After first washing colors will fade slightly, but will not wash out if application instructions were carefully followed. (CAUTION: While this iron-on has been designed and tested to provide good results when applied in accordance with the above instructions, SNOBOY cannot be held responsible for damages to garments and other materials when instructions have not been followed correctly.)

Dancing Not Only For Young

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Move over Fred and Ginger!

The Baker's Dozen is about to knock you right out of your shoes — tap shoes, that is.

Although they haven't quite attained the dancing ability and grace of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, they're working at it.

After all, they're just beginners.

Not first graders about to embark on a decade or so of dancing lessons. More like their mothers.

Once A Week

The 13 foot-tapping, heel-kicking students are homemakers who have a once a week date for an hour of exercise, satisfaction . . . and frustration.

Many at or approaching 40, they sandwich their tap class at the Academy of Dance Arts between car pooling, cooking, cleaning, shopping and meetings.

"The hardest part was getting out on the floor in those leotards," admitted one of the novice tap dancers. There's the problem of letting the curves, not always in the right places, show. In front of all those mirrors.

Exercises First

First come the warm-ups, exercises aimed at limbering up, relaxing, toning the muscles. "Slowly rotate ankles, neck, torso:"

While their classmates join in, a few of the women — all of whom insisted on the strictest anonymity — sit this one out. "Not all of us can do the exercises," one explained. "My doctor says they aggravate my arthritis."

"One and two and three and four and five and six, ball change, turn, shuffle," the phonograph blares out instructions. The women practice their steps. "Shuffle, hop, toe, shuffle, hop, toe, ball change, turn."

They concentrate — all in their own way. One chomps on her gum — always to the music's tempo. Another mutters the instructions to herself. Some keep a watchful eye on Suzi Clair's feet. (Ms. Clair, the youngest in the room, is instructor of the homemakers class.) The rest watch their own images in the mirrors.

Toddlers Underfoot

Preschoolers wander in and out, looking for a hint of progress.

A toddler, trying to follow her mother, gets underfoot. "I couldn't get a babysitter," the mother apologizes. To avoid misfortune, the mother carries the little one around while she goes through her paces. "Heel, toe, shuffle, ball change."

To really get things going, Ms. Clair runs her students through the paces of their "old dance." They step, buffalo, ball change, heel and toe to the old, familiar "Buck and Wing."

Then comes the moment of truth. The time to tackle a new dance.

"What do you mean our new dance?" asks one. "I didn't know our old dance. Some os us need remedial help."

'They Try Hard'

'No so, says Ms. Clair. "They try really hard . . . they aren't shy about asking questions."

Asked to do an intricate step while moving their arms just so, one complains, "That's like rubbing your stomach and patting your head." Says another, "She forgets there's about 60 children involved here and we're too old to do those things."

But they still keep trying.

What does the future hold for this troupe of novices?

Odds are they will appear in their school's May recital. They haven't reached a consensus yet, but the vote is improving daily.

That may just be the beginning of a new stage career.

A handful hinted that they may tackle show business . . . if they can find babysitters for the kids, cooks for the husbands, someone to clean the house — and the bookings.

EXERCISES . . . designed to loosen aging muscles.

GROWING

You planted
the hard yellow kernel
in the dark soil
of half a milk carton
pushing the seed into the black earth
wih your no-longer chubby finger.

You watered
and watched and watered
and watched impatiently waiting for the green growth
you had been told would miraculously Lazarus forth.

You bore
with proud and beaming face
the green-white sprout
to me for shared joy and approval and then returned it
to its sacred sunny shelf.

While you were in school today
and I was making your bed
I saw it again
parched with thirst
wilted beyond return
in a wink of unintended neglect
and I wondered if I had ever forgotten
even for a short time
you.

FIRST QUAIL HUNT

My father and I,
shotguns baby-cradled but death-ready,
are walking the crooked paths
among the mesquite brush
dotting the wild, knee-deep grass,
the result of a rainy Texas spring.

His eyes,
honed razor-keen over the years,
try to sharpen my dull ones
to spy the quail twenty yards ahead
and running on the ground.

Those outdistancing the gun, safe,
take whirring blurring flight;
those closer crouch dead-still in a clump of grass
until almost trod upon.
Those in flight,
he had told me,
are quicker but within easier range,
and I gather one of these into my sights
and, unflinching—
My father will be proud of me—
pull the trigger
and that brick wall
slaps him from the back in midair
and he tumbles to the ground—
half-hit, first-timer—
and runs to hide where my father says I must find him.

Searching diligently, I do,
and he tells me that to shoot
such a small bird again
would ruin the meat
and that I should
"Just pull his head off!"

Picking up the bruised body, warm soft feathers and pounding heart and frightened eyes,
I, only ten at the time,
make the mistake of looking into those tiny brown eyes
and feeling the fluttering heartbeat
and finally, guiltily,

What's Wrong With Lunch At A Topless Restaurant?

DEAR ABBY: I don't know why that lady was upset because her husband ate lunch at a topless restaurant.

What difference does it make where he gets his appetite as long as he comes home to eat?

BROAD-MINDED BROAD IN YAKIMA

DEAR BROAD: Maybe she's afraid he'll work up such a hunger at the restaurant that he'll go back for dinner.

DEAR ABBY: This is my second year as a school teacher. I teach third grade in a very good public school. At the beginning of the semester I received the following letter from the mother of one of my pupils:

Dear Ms. G:

I understand that there is a rule at Danny's school stating that the teachers are not allowed to hit the kids.

Well, I am giving you permission to hit my son, Danny, whenever you think he needs it. He is mouthly, stubborn and very mean, and the only thing he understands is a good hit. (Not in the head, please.) I know him better than you do.

Please keep this letter in case you hit him. It will relieve you of all responsibility in case Danny tries to get away with something. He told me he can do whatever he wants at school because if the teacher lays a hand on him she will get fired. Thank you.

Mrs. T.J.McD.

Abby, is the above letter legal and binding? And should I hit Danny if I think it's necessary?

MS. G-

DEAR MS.G: A lawyer I'm not. The advice from here is: Do not hit Danny or any other child.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were watching the news on television the other evening, and along came an announcement that a 41-year-old woman had just given birth to a full-term baby only a few minutes after learning that she was pregnant.

The newscaster said that the woman had gained 30 pounds in the last few months, but she didn't know why. But here's the payoff in case you're thinking that the woman was either uneducated or very dumb. She had been working in a doctor's office for the last 17 years!

My husband said it was probably just an attempt at humor on the part of the newscaster. I said it wasn't.

What do you say?

CURIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR CURIOUS: I say truth is stranger than fiction. It actually happened.

DEAR ABBY: I have a key employee who does an excellent job for the company, but he presents a problem that I cannot for the life of me solve.

He has extremely bad breath and body odor, too, which leads me to believe that he doesn't bathe often enough. I know it is very offensive to those who work with him. In all other regards, he is a wonderful person and a very hard worker.

Any suggestions as to how to handle this problem will be greatly appreciated.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: A key employee who does an excellent job for the company is worth saving.

Bad breath and body odor are not uncommon problems. (Witness the amount of advertising for products to remedy them.)

Take this "wonderful" man aside and tell him frankly but plainly. It would be a kindness.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opening lead — king of spades.

In many deals, declarer finds it more dangerous to have one opponent on lead than the other. Consequently, declarer will often try to shape his play so as to keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

Consider this deal where West leads the king of spades. If South plays without giving the hand much thought, he wins with the ace and either leads hearts right away or attempts to establish dummy's diamonds. Either way, assuming best defense, he goes down at least one.

But a really careful declarer winds up making the contract. He does a most peculiar thing at trick one. He ducks the opening lead of the king of spades!

This unusual play pays excellent dividends. West can do no better than lead another spade at trick two. Declarer discards a diamond on the ace, cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond.

South then plays a low club to the eight and ruffs another diamond, thus establishing three diamond tricks in dummy. Declarer next draws the missing trumps, ending in dummy, discards three hearts on the J-9-8 of diamonds, and so makes the contract. His only losers are a spade and a heart.

The reason the spade duck at trick one succeeds so well is that it permits declarer to establish dummy's diamonds without East's ever gaining the lead for the killing heart return.

It costs declarer nothing to duck the spade, because he merely substitutes a spade loser for an otherwise inevitable diamond loser. But the more than coincidental effect of the exchange is that South makes the contract instead of going down one, and the exchange therefore serves a highly worthwhile purpose.

ONE OF TOUGHEST HURDLES . . . was putting on leotards and getting out in front of all those mirrors.

Dancing Not Only For Young

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Move over Fred and Ginger!

The Baker's Dozen is about to knock you right out of your shoes — tap shoes, that is.

Although they haven't quite attained the dancing ability and grace of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, they're working at it.

After all, they're just beginners.

Not first graders about to embark on a decade or so of dancing lessons. More like their mothers.

Once A Week

The 13 foot-tapping, heel-kicking students are homemakers who have a once a week date for an hour of exercise, satisfaction . . . and frustration.

Many at or approaching 40, they sandwich their tap class at the Academy of Dance Arts between car pooling, cooking, cleaning, shopping and meetings.

"The hardest part was getting out on the floor in those leotards," admitted one of the novice tap dancers. There's the problem of letting the curves, not always in the right places, show. In front of all those mirrors.

Exercises First

First come the warm-ups, exercises aimed at limbering up, relaxing, toning the muscles. "Slowly rotate ankles, neck, torso:"

While their classmates join in, a few of the women — all of whom insisted on the strictest anonymity — sit this one out. "Not all of us can do the exercises," one explained. "My doctor says they aggravate my arthritis."

"One and two and three and four and five and six, ball change, turn, shuffle," the phonograph blares out instructions. The women practice their steps. "Shuffle, hop, toe, shuffle, hop, toe, ball change, turn."

They concentrate — all in their own way. One chomps on her gum — always to the music's tempo. Another mutters the instructions to herself. Some keep a watchful eye on Suzi Clair's feet. (Ms. Clair, the youngest in the room, is instructor of the homemakers class.) The rest watch their own images in the mirrors.

Toddlers Underfoot

Preschoolers wander in and out, looking for a hint of progress.

A toddler, trying to follow her mother, gets underfoot. "I couldn't get a babysitter," the mother apologizes. To avoid misfortune, the mother carries the little one around while she goes through her paces. "Heel, toe, shuffle, ball change."

To really get things going, Ms. Clair runs her students through the paces of their "old dance." They step, buffalo, ball change, heel and toe to the old, familiar "Buck and Wing."

Then comes the moment of truth. The time to tackle a new dance.

"What do you mean our new dance?" asks one. "I didn't know our old dance. Some os us need remedial help."

'They Try Hard'

'No so, says Ms. Clair. "They try really hard . . . they aren't shy about asking questions."

Asked to do an intricate step while moving their arms just so, one complains, "That's like rubbing your stomach and patting your head." Says another, "She forgets there's about 60 children involved here and we're too old to do those things."

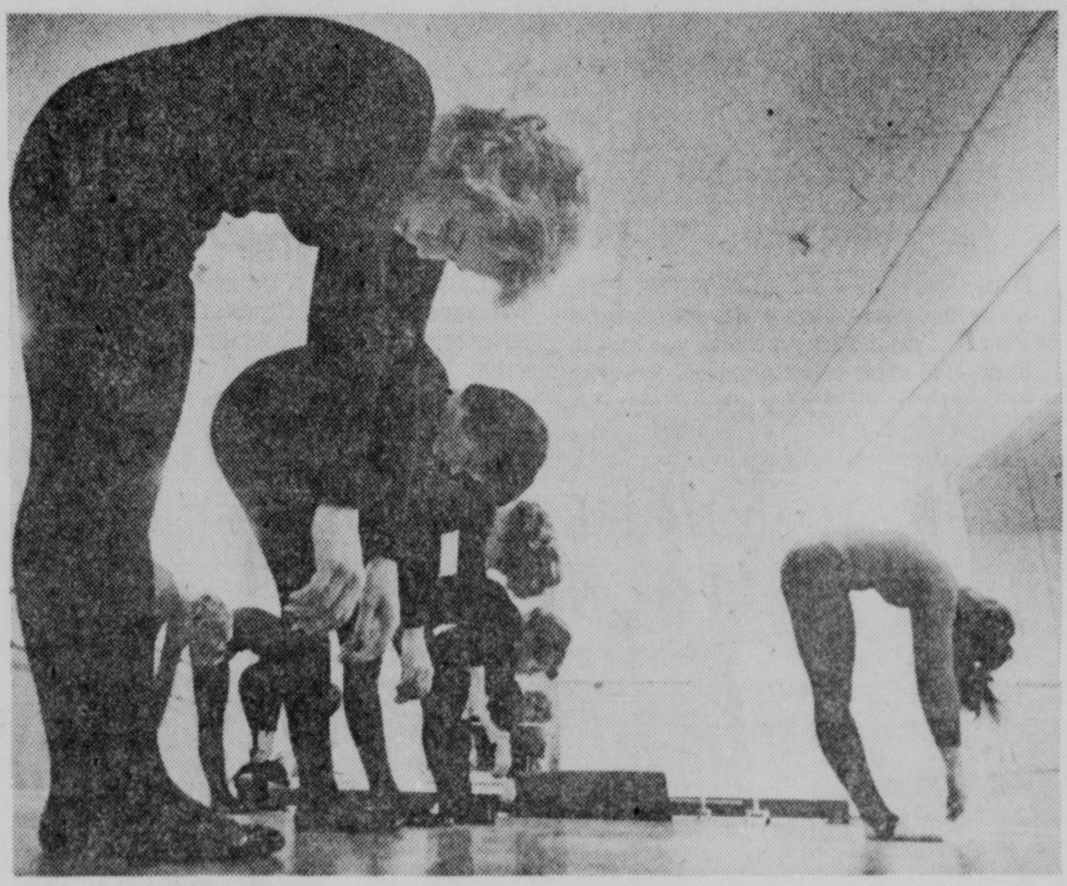
But they still keep trying.

What does the future hold for this troupe of novices?

Odds are they will appear in their school's May recital. They haven't reached a consensus yet, but the vote is improving daily.

That may just be the beginning of a new stage career.

A handful hinted that they may tackle show business . . . if they can find babysitters for the kids, cooks for the husbands, someone to clean the house — and the bookings.



EXERCISES . . . designed to loosen aging muscles.

GROWING

You planted
the hard yellow kernel
in the dark soil
of half a milk carton
pushing the seed into the black earth
wih your no-longer chubby finger.

You watered
and watched and watered
and watched impatiently waiting for the green growth
you had been told
would miraculously Lazarus forth.

You bore
with proud and beaming face
the green-white sprout
to me for shared joy and approval
and then returned it
to its sacred sunny shelf.

While you were in school today
and I was making your bed
I saw it again
parched with thirst
wilted beyond return
in a wink of unintended neglect
and I wondered if I had ever forgotten
even for a short time
you.

FIRST QUAIL HUNT

My father and I,
shotguns baby-cradled but death-ready,
are walking the crooked paths
among the mesquite brush
dotting the wild, knee-deep grass,
the result of a rainy Texas spring.

His eyes,
honed razor-keen over the years,
try to sharpen my dull ones
to spy the quail twenty yards ahead
and running on the ground.

Those outdistancing the gun, safe,
take whirring blurring flight;
those closer crouch dead-still in a clump of grass
until almost trod upon.
Those in flight,
he had told me,
are quicker but within easier range,
and I gather one of these into my sights
and, unflinching—
My father will be proud of me—
pull the trigger
and that brick wall
slaps him from the back in midair
and he tumbles to the ground—
half-hit, first-timer—
and runs to hide where my father says I must find him.

Searching diligently, I do,
and he tells me that to shoot
such a small bird again
would ruin the meat
and that I should
"Just pull his head off!"

Picking up the bruised body,
warm soft feathers and pounding heart and frightened eyes,
I, only ten at the time,
make the mistake of looking into those tiny brown eyes
and feeling the fluttering heartbeat
and finally, guiltily,
I do.

Three More Bodies Found In Hotel Debris

Fremont (AP) — The charred ruins of the Pathfinder Hotel, which was ripped by a powerful explosion and fire last Saturday, yielded three more bodies Tuesday, raising the confirmed death toll to 16.

In all, the bodies of nine women and seven men had been recovered, all but four of them from the basement area, where the explosion is believed to have occurred.

Dodge County Atty. and Coroner F. A. Gossett III, identified the three bodies recovered Tuesday as being those of Virginia Kettleson, 63, a maid and resident at the hotel; Sue Hokamp, 23, a secretary for a certified public accounting firm which had its offices on the second floor of the hotel, and Delores Fritz, no age given, a worker in a drug store on the hotel's main floor.

Some members of Mrs. Hokamp's family had stood a lonely vigil since shortly after the explosion.

Mrs. Hokamp had given birth to a child just eight weeks ago, according to her father-in-law, Albert Hokamp.

Meanwhile, firemen continued their search for the remaining two persons known to have been in the hotel at the time of the blast. They remained among the unknown number of persons unaccounted for three days after the blast, and there was no hope held for finding them alive. Searchers have been stopping at nightfall because of a fear of falling debris in the darkness, but much of the heavy wreckage was cleared from the basement cavity area Tuesday, and Fire Chief Howard Schneider said his men will continue to search until the bodies of all known victims are removed.

Authorities said there also may be other bodies trapped in the twisted rubble of the six-story, 50-year-old building, which had been the home for a large number of elderly and retired persons.

Because of the transient nature of the hotel, officials say they really don't know exactly how many people were in the building when the explosion occurred. They have estimated at about 100 persons, possibly more, may have been in the hotel when the blast rocked the city.

However, Gossett said he was becoming "less and less concerned" about the fate of one man who might have been in the hotel.

More than 40 persons injured in the explosion were treated at a local hospital, and many others suffered minor injuries which were treated at the scene.

Traveler Returns, Finds Dad Is Dead

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Fremont — John Hruska boarded a jet in New York City Sunday for the last lap of a return trip to Nebraska after a 15-day excursion in Europe.

"I got on the plane and someone behind me had a copy of the New York Times — just a short story — with something about an explosion at the Hotel Pathfinder — just that some people were killed," he said Tuesday.

His father Louis owned a barber shop in the hotel and worked there six days a week for 20 years.

"There's nothing you can do on a plane — what can you do?" he said. "I tried to hope it wasn't him."

As the flight dragged on toward home, the University of Nebraska at Omaha student had time for another thought.

"I knew my step-mother meets him everyday for coffee at 9:30, and I was afraid she would be there."

When the flight landed, the young Hruska was met by friends who told him his father was killed, but his step-mother was safe.

State Seeks Hotel Blast Victims Aid

The state is looking into the possibility of helping victims of Saturday's explosion in Fremont.

Since many of the victims were elderly residents of the hotel, the Nebraska Commission on Aging may be able to help out, said Norm Otto, aide to Gov. J. James Exon.

Fund To Aid Victims

Omaha (AP) — A former Fremont man has donated $50 toward a fund to raise money for persons and businesses affected by the explosion at the Pathfinder Hotel.

The organizer and first contributor to the fund is Ed Jaksha, who lived in Fremont for 17 years before moving to Omaha in 1969.

He said he organized the drive to help the scores of persons who lost businesses or friends in the explosion and fire at the hotel Saturday.

Jaksha is a past president of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce, which will distribute the collected funds.

He said he knows of several persons who were "wiped out" by the explosion and who will be unable to rebuild without some public assistance.

The Chamber of Commerce was one of the offices destroyed.

What's Wrong With Lunch At A Topless Restaurant?

DEAR ABBY: I don't know why that lady was upset because her husband ate lunch at a topless restaurant.

What difference does it make where he gets his appetite as long as he comes home to eat?

BROAD-MINDED BROAD

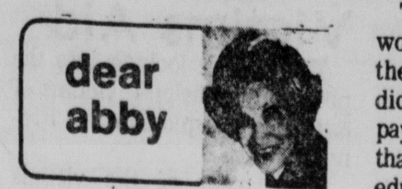
DEAR BROAD: Maybe she's afraid he'll work up such a hunger at the restaurant that he'll go back for dinner.



DEAR ABBY: This is my second year as a school teacher. I teach third grade in a very good public school. At the beginning of the semester I received the following letter from the mother of one of my pupils:

Dear Ms. G:

I understand that there is a rule at Danny's school stating that the teachers are not allowed to hit the kids.

Well, I am giving you permission to hit my son, Danny, whenever you think he needs it. He is mouthly, stubborn and very mean, and the only thing he understands is a good hit. (Not in the head, please.) I know him better than you do.

Please keep this letter in case you hit him. It will relieve you of all responsibility in case Danny tries to get away with something. He told me he can do whatever he wants at school because if the teacher lays a hand on him she will get fired. Thank you.

Mrs. T.J.McD.

Abby, is the above letter legal and binding? And should I hit Danny if I think it's necessary?

MS. G-

DEAR MS.G: A lawyer I'm not. The advice from here is: Do not hit Danny or any other child.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were watching the news on television the other evening, and along came an announcement that a 41-year-old woman had just given birth to a full-term baby only a few minutes after learning that she was pregnant.

The newscaster said that the woman had gained 30 pounds in the last few months, but she didn't know why. But here's the payoff in case you're thinking that the woman was either uneducated or very dumb. She had been working in a doctor's office for the last 17 years!

My husband said it was probably just an attempt at humor on the part of the newscaster. I said it wasn't.

What do you say?

CURIOUS IN N.Y.

DEAR CURIOUS: I say truth is stranger than fiction. It actually happened.

DEAR ABBY: I have a key employee who does an excellent job for the company, but he presents a problem that I cannot for the life of me solve.

He has extremely bad breath and body odor, too, which leads me to believe that he doesn't bathe often enough. I know it is very offensive to those who work with him. In all other regards, he is a wonderful person and a very hard worker.

Any suggestions as to how to handle this problem will be greatly appreciated.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: A key employee who does an excellent job for the company is worth saving.

Bad breath and body odor are not uncommon problems. (Witness the amount of advertising for products to remedy them.)

Take this "wonderful" man aside and tell him frankly but plainly. It would be a kindness.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opening lead — king of spades.

In many deals, declarer finds it more dangerous to have one opponent on lead than the other. Consequently, declarer will often try to shape his play so as to keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead.

Consider this deal where West leads the king of spades. If South plays without giving the hand much thought, he wins with the ace and either leads hearts right away or attempts to establish dummy's diamonds. Either way, assuming best defense, he goes down at least one.

But a really careful declarer winds up making the contract. He does a most peculiar thing at trick one. He ducks the opening lead of the king of spades!

This unusual play pays excellent dividends. West can do no better than lead another spade at trick two. Declarer discards a diamond on the ace, cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond.

South then plays a low club to the eight and ruffs another diamond, thus establishing three diamond tricks in dummy. Declarer next draws the missing trumps, ending in dummy, discards three hearts on the J-9-8 of diamonds, and so makes the contract. His only losers are a spade and a heart.

The reason the spade duck at trick one succeeds so well is that it permits declarer to establish dummy's diamonds without East's ever gaining the lead for the killing heart return.

It costs declarer nothing to duck the spade, because he merely substitutes a spade loser for an otherwise inevitable diamond loser. But the more than coincidental effect of the exchange is that South makes the contract instead of going down one, and the exchange therefore serves a highly worthwhile purpose.

Catholic Schools Agree Not To Become Refuge

Omaha (UPI) — Superintendents of Catholic schools in Omaha and Louisville, Ky., agreed Tuesday they will hold to their freeze on enrollments in the face of court-ordered public school integration in both cities.

The Rev. Joseph M. McGee, head of schools for the archdiocese of Louisville, conferred with Omaha archdiocesan officials to "share advice because we have very similar situations."

Father McGee and the Rev. Thomas F. O'Brien, his Omaha counterpart, said at a news conference their schools would not become havens for pupils, Catholic or non-Catholic, who wish only to escape integration.

3 Classifications

Father McGee said Louisville Catholic schools, which have a total enrollment of 22,000, have established three priorities for permitting new enrollments.

They are those families who have been using Louisville Catholic schools and support their parishes, those families moving into the city who have supported Catholic schools in their former cities and "exceptional cases." The latter involve private or personal situations between a family and a parish pastor, he said.

Father O'Brien, whose schools have total enrollment of 17,000 said Catholic schools in Omaha have been established up to 60 years and "we don't want to be identified with any school springing up now" in the face of public school integration.

Father McGee said private, "more or less underground schools" have opened in Louisville and some families have moved out of the area covered by the court order, many to Indiana communities across the river.

8,000 Apply

He said Louisville Catholic schools had received 8,000 applications since integration became an issue in that city. Only 400 to 500 have been accepted, following the three priorities, he said.

Father O'Brien said there were no firm figures on Omaha applications, but said "many calls came in" last month when the freeze on enrollments was announced. The freeze permits no expansion of programming or classroom space, he said.

He said the Omaha archdiocese was opposed to letting Catholic pupils from parishes with overcrowded schools to enroll in inner city Catholic schools which have space available.

Would Upset Balance

Some of the inner city schools, he said, have been stabilizing factors in integrated neighborhoods. To permit mostly white students from the suburbs to enroll would only upset the present racial balance in the inner city schools, he said.

Father McGee said unrest in Louisville had settled down after a flurry of violent demonstrations and most opposition to public school integration programs was being channeled to the courts.

Omaha's public school integration is to be accomplished by next fall under order of the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Omaha Tech Launches White Recruitment Plan

Omaha (AP) — Technical High School's student recruitment program, which the Omaha School District hopes will prevent mandatory reassignment of students, was underway Tuesday.

Principal Odra Bradley presented a report to a board of education committee in which he outlined the school's plans for attracting about 400 more white students for the next school year.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis has ordered full integration of the Omaha School District next fall. Board members hope that at the high school level integration can be accomplished by voluntary transfers.

Bradley said the Tech campaign will involve such things as visits to the school by white junior and senior high school students, and a Tech High team of students and teachers plans to make appearances at schools urging students to attend Tech in the fall.

Tech High, which now is 18% white, must enroll up to 50% white to hope to satisfy court guidelines.

Arts Council To Open Dialogue

A statewide effort to find out what Nebraskans want in the way of the arts will be launched Feb. 16 with an hour-long television program to be aired on the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

The project, entitled "Dialog on the Arts," is sponsored by the Nebraska Arts Council.

Town meetings in more than 30 Nebraska communities will take place in conjunction with the broadcast. Meeting participants will watch the program — scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. — and then discuss the issues.

They will also be asked to select two delegates per town to attend regional conferences on the arts.

Following the regional conferences, a two-day statewide planning workshop will be held in Hastings. During the May 6-8 meeting, delegates from the regional conferences, Arts Council members and staff, and representatives from arts organizations will formulate long-range plans for the arts in Nebraska.

The initial town meetings will be held in Omaha, Lincoln, Beatrice, Bellevue, Broken Bow, Chadron, Columbus, Falls City, Fremont, Grand Island, Hastings, Holdrege, Kearney, Lexington, McCook, Nebraska City, Norfolk, North Platte, Ogallala, Scottsbluff, Seward, Sidney, South Sioux City, Tekamah, Valentine, Wakefield and York.

Regional conferences are scheduled in: Lincoln, 2 p.m., March 6, Lincoln Community Playhouse; Kearney, 2 p.m., March 13, Public Library; Norfolk, 2 p.m., March 20, Trinity Episcopal Church; North Platte, 3 p.m., March 26, North Platte Station, University of Nebraska; Scottsbluff, 2 p.m., March 27, Panhandle Station, University of Nebraska; Ainsworth, 2 p.m., April 10, City Hall.

The project is being planned by the Arts Council long-range planning committee, chaired by Wallace Richardson of Lincoln. It is partially funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Sen. Hruska Re-Enters Hospital

Washington (AP) — Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., has re-entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center hospital because of discomfort stemming from recent surgery, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Hruska, who has announced his retirement at the end of his current term, talked with the doctors Monday night about the discomfort and they asked him to come back to the hospital "for a day or two" of observation, the aide said.

"It's nothing serious," the aide said.

Author Warns Farmers To Get Their Debts Paid

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"Agribusiness had better get its debts paid," warned Morgan Masfield, author of "Economic Meteorology", in an address before the 100 young farm couples attending the Nebraska Agricultural Progress Conference Monday evening.

"Take a hard look at the agricultural economy. If you have a debt, clear your books and get ready for some tough times," he said.

Masfield predicted an election year boom in 1976 followed by very poor economic conditions for agriculture in 1977 and 78.

Masfield attributed his statement to an economic theory based on a swinging pendulum caused by deficit spending aimed at boosting the economy in an election year. He also cited embargoes on the sale of farm commodities as a factor in the theory.

"Embargoes always have a slight short-term benefit and a long-term disaster effect. The ban on soybean sales spurred Japan to develop soybean farms in Brazil. This will destroy our markets," he warned.

Masfield told the young farm couples they must learn to watch crop conditions around the world in making their marketing decisions.

"The snow cover on wheat in Russia has a tremendous effect on the price of wheat in America," he said.

Masfield said there were lessons to be learned from the economic problems of New York City. "They got to the point where they had to agree to whatever the federal government wanted or accept bankruptcy," he said.

Masfield suggested that it would be necessary to curb the power of labor unions, curb government spending and remodel welfare programs to prevent the U.S. from going down the same financial drain.

"Welfare reform should be based on the theory of the Jesuits. Those who cannot work must be helped but he who won't work cannot eat. I think the labor people will support it because government is taking 43% of your income. That must stop," he said.

Pork Producers Raise Budget

Grand Island — The budget for the Nebraska Pork Producers Association took another step up here as members of the organization approved a record $95,350 for 1976. That tops an $86,704 budget in 1975 and expenditures of $76,000 in 1974.

An estimated $80,000 of the pork producers' income will be derived from a checkoff program where five cents are voluntarily deducted from each hog sale. On the expense side of the ledger, the major portion of money will go either directly or indirectly into pork promotion.

Reelected to their posts were Carson Rogers of Ord, president; Walt Crook of Rising City, first vice president, and Frank Murphy of Stuart, second vice president. Rogers was chosen to succeed Gerald Beattie of Sumner as Nebraska's representative on the National Pork Producers Council.

Members also voted to combine their annual business meeting and fall awards banquet into a two-day affair January 1977. This means there will be no awards banquet in 1976. The West Central Area Group, centered around North Platte, won the bid to host the 1977 event.

In an adjoining room, members of the Nebraska Porkettes conducted their business meeting and special ceremonies in honor of their 10th anniversary.

Installation of new officers saw Clifford succeeded by Dee Muth of Creston, who becomes "chairman" rather than president under a change in by-laws. Vice chairman for 1976 is Carolyn Schroll of Litchfield; treasurer is Charlene Skutchan of Dorchester; and secretary is Corrine Kruse of Cedar Bluffs.

The Porkettes concluded their meeting by presenting top area group awards to the Blue Valley (first), Southeast Quad County (second) and West Central (third) area groups. Marge Harouff, director of home economics in the State Department of Education, was also recognized as an honorary porkette

Three More Bodies Found In Hotel Debris

Fremont (AP) — The charred ruins of the Pathfinder Hotel, which was ripped by a powerful explosion and fire last Saturday, yielded three more bodies Tuesday, raising the confirmed death toll to 16.

In all, the bodies of nine women and seven men had been recovered, all but four of them from the basement area, where the explosion is believed to have occurred.

Dodge County Atty. and Coroner F. A. Gossett III, identified the three bodies recovered Tuesday as being those of Virginia Kettleson, 63, a maid and resident at the hotel; Sue Hokamp, 23, a secretary for a certified public accounting firm which had its offices on the second floor of the hotel, and Delores Fritz, no age given, a worker in a drug store on the hotel's main floor.

Some members of Mrs. Hokamp's family had stood a lonely vigil since shortly after the explosion.

Mrs. Hokamp had given birth to a child just eight weeks ago, according to her father-in-law, Albert Hokamp.

Meanwhile, firemen continued their search for the remaining two persons known to have been in the hotel at the time of the blast. They remained among the unknown number of persons unaccounted for three days after the blast, and there was no hope held for finding them alive. Searchers have been stopping at nightfall because of a fear of falling debris in the darkness, but much of the heavy wreckage was cleared from the basement cavity area Tuesday, and Fire Chief Howard Schneider said his men will continue to search until the bodies of all known victims are removed.

Authorities said there also may be other bodies trapped in the twisted rubble of the six-story, 58-year-old building, which had been the home for a large number of elderly and retired persons.

Because of the transient nature of the hotel, officials say they really don't know exactly how many people were in the building when the explosion occurred. They have estimated at about 100 persons, possibly more, may have been in the hotel when the blast rocked the city.

However, Gossett said he was becoming "less and less concerned" about the fate of one man who might have been in the hotel.

More than 40 persons injured in the explosion were treated at a local hospital, and many others suffered minor injuries which were treated at the scene.

Traveler Returns, Finds Dad Is Dead

By TOM COOK
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Fremont — John Hruska boarded a jet in New York City Sunday for the last lap of a return trip to Nebraska after a 15-day excursion in Europe.

"I got on the plane and someone behind me had a copy of the New York Times — just a short story — with something about an explosion at the Hotel Pathfinder — just that some people were killed," he said Tuesday.

His father Louis owned a barber shop in the hotel and worked there six days a week for 20 years.

"There's nothing you can do on a plane — what can you do?" he said. "I tried to hope it wasn't him."

As the flight dragged on toward home, the University of Nebraska at Omaha student had time for another thought.

"I knew my step-mother meets him everyday for coffee at 9:30, and I was afraid she would be there."

When the flight landed, the young Hruska was met by friends who told him his father was killed, but his step-mother was safe.

State Seeks Hotel Blast Victims Aid

The state is looking into the possibility of helping victims of Saturday's explosion in Fremont.

Since many of the victims were elderly residents of the hotel, the Nebraska Commission on Aging may be able to help out, said Norm Otto, aide to Gov. J. James Exon.

Fund To Aid Victims

Omaha (AP) — A former Fremont man has donated $50 toward a fund to raise money for persons and businesses affected by the explosion at the Pathfinder Hotel.

The organizer and first contributor to the fund is Ed Jaksha, who lived in Fremont for 17 years before moving to Omaha in 1969.

He said he organized the drive to help the scores of persons who lost businesses or friends in the explosion and fire at the hotel Saturday.

Jaksha is a past president of the Fremont Chamber of Commerce, which will distribute the collected funds.

He said he knows of several persons who were "wiped out" by the explosion and who will be unable to rebuild without some public assistance.

Dyas Begins Lincoln Phase Of Attempt For Senate Seat

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Handing out leaflets on a sunny January noon hour in front of the University of Nebraska's student union, Hess Dyas Tuesday embarked on the Lincoln phase of his campaign for the U.S. Senate.

It is too early to know where he and his Democratic primary opponent, Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, will differ on issues, since Zorinsky has not yet outlined an issue platform, Dyas said.

"We'll begin developing issues as we go along," he said.

"My emphasis right now is to set the tone for my campaign — to go directly to the people to talk to them personally about their concerns," Dyas said.

"Hi, I'm Hess Dyas, a candidate for the Senate," he interrupted to greet passersby, handing out a one-page excerpt from his campaign announcement statement.

Several stopped to engage him in brief conversation.

"People need more personal contact with their senator," he said.

"We need to talk specifics about monopoly power, unfair tax laws, jobs, prices."

It's his guess, Dyas said, that "it will take some time to draw comparisons (with Zorinsky) with regard to issues."

Dyas, the 1974 First District Democratic congressional nominee, opened his Senate campaign in Omaha Monday.

Tuesday's Lincoln schedule began at 6:45 a.m., and included visits to the Havelock shops, insurance companies, campuses, shopping centers, a senior citizens meeting and the Goodyear plant.

Dyas took time out to complete his filing as a candidate at the Statehouse and visit with Gov. J. James Exon.

Dyas Going West

During the remainder of the month, he plans to campaign in 65 western Nebraska communities.

"The people are not in control of their government," he said in a formal announcement statement.

"The government is wasteful, it is unresponsive and it operates under the wrong set of priorities.

"And the cost for this government falls too heavily on the middle-income taxpayer and too lightly on the rich and powerful who have managed to twist tax laws for their own benefit."

Dyas said the people need to "control the monopolies and the excessive economic power of the huge multi-national corporations."

Decries Money's Clout

Too often, in government, he said, "the influence of big money has been greater than the influence of public opinion."

Government needs to act to help provide jobs, hold down prices, place a ceiling on "outrageous" interest rates, restore "some equity" to the tax system and hold down government expenditures," Dyas said.

Hess Dyas

"I believe in a free market, full production economy for America's farmers," he said, with establishment of on-farm grain reserves with 90% loan guarantees.

"If I should win," Dyas said, "I think I could bring to the task the sense of outrage, mission and hope needed to do a difficult, but necessary, job."

At stake is the Senate seat being vacated by Republican Sen. Roman Hruska.

'No Comment' On Pet Board's Personnel

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Humane Society Board President Dr. Robert White said he had "no comment" Tuesday on whether board members debated whether to fire Humane Society Director Bernard Patton.

Dr. White declined to comment on whether the board even discussed personnel problems of any kind at its monthly meeting.

Dr. White, a dentist, reportedly has been trying to make some changes in the way the Humane Society operates since he took office last summer.

City Councilman Dick Baker repeatedly has told fellow lawmakers that Dr. White "is trying to make changes out there, but he's not getting any support from his board."

Baker, a frequent critic of Patton, was instrumental in setting up a committee to study the city's animal control problems. That committee recently recommended that the city take over many duties now being handled by the Humane Society, a private organization.

Two former Humane Society employes are going to attend Tuesday's meeting to voice their concerns over how Patton handles employes and the public.

Steve Gans and Chris Hollers said they were barred from attending the meeting, however, after being told by Dr. White not to come.

The former employes, both of whom say they were dismissed by Patton, said the meeting place was suddenly changed from the regular place, the Richman-Gordman department store.

Dr. White said the meeting was at the Red Rooster restaurant instead. He said he was not instrumental in seeking a change in meeting places. Dr. White declined to elaborate on why the meeting place was changed.

Gans and Ms. Hollers contend the change was made to keep the public from attending.

Dr. White said he told Gans and Ms. Hollers not to attend because a lawsuit was pending against Patton and he felt it would be inappropriate for the matter to be discussed "at this time."

"I don't think we have any business passing judgment on anything until the court has decided," Dr. White said.

Ms. Hollers filed that lawsuit in Municipal Court charging that Patton pushed her through a doorway at the Humane Society shelter.

Patton has pleaded not guilty to those assault charges. A Jan. 27 trial date has been set.

DeCamp May Run For Congress

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh says he is seriously considering a bid for the Republican nomination to the House from the 3rd District because "the district needs to be more effectively represented."

DeCamp, a 34-year-old attorney, is thinking of challenging Rep. Virginia Smith of Chappell, who will seek a second term on the GOP ticket.

Another state senator, Richard Lewis of Holbrook, also is considering challenging Mrs. Smith in the primary. Lewis said Tuesday he had not made a final decision.

Richard Lewis

Considers Contest

DeCamp said he was "giving very serious thought" to the bid, but said he would not likely enter the race if Lewis did, since a crowded primary ballot would give the incumbent an advantage.

DeCamp filed for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate in 1972. He switched his party affiliation to Republican later.

DeCamp was re-elected to a second Unicameral term in 1974, thus his seat would not be in jeopardy if he ran for the House.

Murder Trial Date For Peery Set

Wesley Peery, accused of the June 6 shooting death of Marianne Mitzner, pleaded innocent to first degree murder and robbery, during a Tuesday morning arraignment in Lancaster County District Court.

Both charges stem from the death of Mrs. Mitzner and a robbery at the Havelock Coin Shop which she managed.

Judge Dale Fahrnbruch set Peery's trial for the two-week jury term beginning Feb. 23.

It was the second time that Peery was arraigned on the two charges. Last August, District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt ruled that there was not enough evidence that Peery might have committed the crimes to bind him over the district court.

The charges were refiled and a second preliminary hearing was held in Lancaster County Court.

Judge Fahrnbruch will rule later on an oral motion that a bond be set for Peery. Peery is currently being held without bond at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Power Agency Name Approved

Grand Island (UPI) — The name of the board which will run the proposed 150 megawatt power plant for Hastings and Grand Island is the Great Plains Power Agency.

The city councils in the cities approved the name during their regular meetings Monday.

The council at Grand Island also approved the letting of bids for the nearly $8 million turbo-generator for the plant and an engineering services contract on the facility.

Utilities director Bob Olson said the contract with Lutz, Daily and Brain of Shawnee Mission, Kan., is for 5% of the total project cost, estimated at $68 million.

Proud Says He Opposes Gun Control

Omaha (AP) — Former State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate, says he is against gun control, with the possible exception of "Saturday night specials."

Proud said he believes gun control legislation would disarm the citizens and arm the criminals.

"I likewise look with disfavor upon gun registration laws because they are the first step to gun control," said Proud.

Debt-Ridden GI Mall Sale Set Next Month By Court

Grand Island (UPI) — Ownership of the Conestoga Mall may change in February but it probably will be sold in June.

Hall County District Judge Donald Weaver has ruled the mall should be sold Feb. 17 to pay more than $450,000 in mechanic liens owed to Platte Valley Construction Co. and Watson Construction Co.

Weaver said the sale will be subject to liens and other encumbrances of record.

That means whoever buys the mall next month will have to pay more than $3 million in debts to Union America Trust and Mortgage Co. of Omaha by June 17.

Last year, Weaver ruled in favor of the finance company in its foreclosure action.

Catholic Schools Agree Not To Become Refuge

Omaha (UPI) — Superintendents of Catholic schools in Omaha and Louisville, Ky., agreed Tuesday they will hold to their freeze on enrollments in the face of court-ordered public school integration in both cities.

The Rev. Joseph M. McGee, head of schools for the archdiocese of Louisville, conferred with Omaha archdiocesan officials to "share advice because we have very similar situations."

Father McGee and the Rev. Thomas F. O'Brien, his Omaha counterpart, said at a news conference their schools would not become havens for pupils, Catholic or non-Catholic, who wish only to escape integration.

3 Classifications

Father McGee said Louisville Catholic schools, which have a total enrollment of 22,000, have established three priorities for permitting new enrollments.

They are those families who have been using Louisville Catholic schools and support their parishes, those families moving into the city who have supported Catholic schools in their former cities and "exceptional cases." The latter involve private or personal situations between a family and a parish pastor, he said.

Father O'Brien, whose schools have total enrollment of 17,000 said Catholic schools in Omaha have been established up to 60 years and "we don't want to be identified with any school springing up now" in the face of public school integration.

Father McGee said private, "more or less underground schools" have opened in Louisville and some families have moved out of the area covered by the court order, many to Indiana communities across the river.

8,000 Apply

He said Louisville Catholic schools had received 8,000 applications since integration became an issue in that city. Only 400 to 500 have been accepted, following the three priorities, he said.

Father O'Brien said there were no firm figures on Omaha applications, but said "many calls came in" last month when the freeze on enrollments was announced. The freeze permits no expansion of programming or classroom space, he said.

He said the Omaha archdiocese was opposed to letting Catholic pupils from parishes with overcrowded schools to enroll in inner city Catholic schools which have space available.

Would Upset Balance

Some of the inner city schools, he said, have been stabilizing factors in integrated neighborhoods. To permit mostly white students from the suburbs to enroll would only upset the present racial balance in the inner city schools, he said.

Father McGee said unrest in Louisville had settled down after a flurry of violent demonstrations and most opposition to public school integration programs was being channeled to the courts.

Omaha's public school integration is to be accomplished by next fall under order of the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals.

Omaha Tech Launches White Recruitment Plan

Omaha (AP) — Technical High School's student recruitment program, which the Omaha School District hopes will prevent mandatory reassignment of students, was underway Tuesday.

Principal Odra Bradley presented a report to a board of education committee in which he outlined the school's plans for attracting about 400 more white students for the next school year.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis has ordered full integration of the Omaha School District next fall. Board members hope that at the high school level integration can be accomplished by voluntary transfers.

Bradley said the Tech campaign will involve such things as visits to the school by white junior and senior high school students, and a Tech High team of students and teachers plans to make appearances at schools urging students to attend Tech in the fall.

Tech High, which now is 18% white, must enroll up to 50% white to hope to satisfy court guidelines.

Arts Council To Open Dialogue

A statewide effort to find out what Nebraskans want in the way of the arts will be launched Feb. 16 with an hour-long television program to be aired on the Nebraska Educational Television Network.

The project, entitled "Dialog on the Arts," is sponsored by the Nebraska Arts Council.

Town meetings in more than 30 Nebraska communities will take place in conjunction with the broadcast. Meeting participants will watch the program — scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. — and then discuss the issues.

They will also be asked to select two delegates per town to attend regional conferences on the arts.

Following the regional conferences, a two-day statewide planning workshop will be held in Hastings. During the May 6-8 meeting, delegates from the regional conferences, Arts Council members and staff, and representatives from arts organizations will formulate long-range plans for the arts in Nebraska.

The initial town meetings will be held in Omaha, Lincoln, Beatrice, Bellevue, Broken Bow, Chadron, Columbus, Falls City, Fremont, Grand Island, Hastings, Holdrege, Kearney, Lexington, McCook, Nebraska City, Norfolk, North Platte, Ogallala, Scottsbluff, Seward, Sidney, South Sioux City, Tekamah, Valentine, Wakefield and York.

Regional conferences are scheduled in: Lincoln, 2 p.m., March 6, Lincoln Community Playhouse; Kearney, 2 p.m., March 13, Public Library; Norfolk, 2 p.m., March 20, Trinity Episcopal Church; North Platte, 3 p.m., March 26, North Platte Station, University of Nebraska; Scottsbluff, 2 p.m., March 27, Panhandle Station, University of Nebraska; Ainsworth, 2 p.m., April 10, City Hall.

The project is being planned by the Arts Council long-range planning committee, chaired by Wallace Richardson of Lincoln. It is partially funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Sen. Hruska Re-Enters Hospital

Washington (AP) — Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., has re-entered Walter Reed Army Medical Center hospital because of discomfort stemming from recent surgery, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Hruska, who has announced his retirement at the end of his current term, talked with the doctors Monday night about the discomfort and they asked him to come back to the hospital "for a day or two" of observation, the aide said.

"It's nothing serious," the aide said.

Author Warns Farmers To Get Their Debts Paid

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"Agribusiness had better get its debts paid," warned Morgan Masfield, author of "Economic Meteorology", in an address before the 100 young farm couples attending the Nebraska Agricultural Progress Conference Monday evening.

"Take a hard look at the agricultural economy. If you have a debt, clear your books and get ready for some tough times," he said.

Masfield predicted an election year boom in 1976 followed by very poor economic conditions for agriculture in 1977 and 78.

Masfield attributed his statement to an economic theory based on a swinging pendulum caused by deficit spending aimed at boosting the economy in an election year. He also cited embargoes on the sale of farm commodities as a factor in the theory.

"Embargoes always have a slight short-term benefit and a long-term disaster effect. The ban on soybean sales spurred Japan to develop soybean farms in Brazil. This will destroy our markets," he warned.

Masfield told the young farm couples they must learn to watch crop conditions around the world in making their marketing decisions.

"The snow cover on wheat in Russia has a tremendous effect on the price of wheat in America," he said.

Masfield said there were lessons to be learned from the economic problems of New York City. "They got to the point where they had to agree to whatever the federal government wanted or accept bankruptcy," he said.

Masfield suggested that it would be necessary to curb the power of labor unions, curb government spending and remodel welfare programs to prevent the U.S. from going down the same financial drain.

"Welfare reform should be based on the theory of the Jesuits. Those who cannot work must be helped but he who won't work cannot eat. I think the labor people will support it because government is taking 43% of your income. That must stop," he said.

Pork Producers Raise Budget

Grand Island — The budget for the Nebraska Pork Producers Association took another step up here as members of the organization approved a record $95,350 for 1976. That tops an $86,704 budget in 1975 and expenditures of $76,000 in 1974.

An estimated $80,000 of the pork producers' income will be derived from a checkoff program where five cents are voluntarily deducted from each hog sale. On the expense side of the ledger, the major portion of money will go either directly or indirectly into pork promotion.

Reelected to their posts were Carson Rogers of Ord, president; Walt Crook of Rising City, first vice president, and Frank Murphy of Stuart, second vice president. Rogers was chosen to succeed Gerald Beattie of Sumner as Nebraska's representative on the National Pork Producers Council.

Members also voted to combine their annual business meeting and fall awards banquet into a two-day affair January 1977. This means there will be no awards banquet in 1976. The West Central Area Group, centered around North Platte, won the bid to host the 1977 event.

In an adjoining room, members of the Nebraska Porkettes conducted their business meeting and special ceremonies in honor of their 10th anniversary.

Installation of new officers saw Clifford succeeded by Dee Muth of Creston, who becomes "chairman" rather than president under a change in by-laws. Vice chairman for 1976 is Carolyn Schroll of Litchfield; treasurer is Charlene Skutchan of Dorchester; and secretary is Corrine Kruse of Cedar Bluffs.

The Porkettes concluded their meeting by presenting top area group awards to the Blue Valley (first), Southeast Quad County (second) and West Central (third) area groups. Marge Harouff, director of home economics in the State Department of Education, was also recognized as an honorary porkette

Panel Urged To Secure Funds

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Members of a special mental retardation panel were urged Tuesday to take an active role in securing funds for community programs for the retarded.

That request was made by representatives of the six regional programs for the retarded during the second meeting of a five-member panel established under a court agreement to direct the state's retardation efforts.

Linda Glenn, executive director of community programs in the five-county Omaha area, referred to resistance by state senators and Gov. J. James Exon to requests for more money, and told the panel, "you're the only clout we've got."

Roger Harper, executive director of community programs in the Hastings region, said, "I do think the panel has a part in the fiscal process."

A cutback in federal funds distributed by the state and Exon's refusal to commit more state money to the programs have forced cutbacks in staff and programs.

Such funding problems have cropped up periodically, Harper said, and have hurt the stability of the community programs.

The community programs, which reportedly work with 2,500 retarded persons, are seeking a $3 million deficit appropriation to get them through the year.

Harper said the funding crisis has left programs "in a shambles — we've lost momentum."

Several months ago Harper's Region 3 programs won accreditation from a joint evaluating team.

"If the joint accreditation committee came back today, we'd lose accreditation immediately," Harper said.

Ms. Glenn agreed, saying the quality of some ENCOR programs has dropped greatly in recent months.

The panel is charged with devising a plan for identifying retarded persons now at Beatrice State Home and other state institutions who could be better served in community programs and with directing the switch from institutions to community settings.

As part of a settlement in a lawsuit regarding the rights of the retarded to treatment, a goal was set for reducing the number of retarded at Beatrice within three years from more than 1,000 to 250 residents.

That settlement has stirred opposition from advocates of the retarded, who say Beatrice is the best place for many retarded individuals.

Ms. Glenn said she has no doubts that the community programs could care for more retarded in community programs as foreseen by the settlement.

Questions about the availability of medical services for the multiple-handicapped retarded in areas outside Lincoln and Omaha aren't valid, she said.

"That's a big ogre that's been raised," she said.

Harper said adequate medical personnel are available in Scottsbluff, North Platte, Grand Island, Hastings and Norfolk. However, Dr. Patricia Stivrins, a Lincoln pediatrician and panel member, questioned Harper's statements by pointing to the lack of pediatricians outstate.

Harper also urged the panel to confront the issue of whether parental consent should be required to move a retarded person from Beatrice to a community program.

He said many retarded people at Beatrice could benefit from community programs but cannot because parents prefer Beatrice.

Funding questions and the fact the Legislature is not bound by the panel's actions, Harper said, give him "the ominous feeling that we'll find ourselves back in court."

Douglas: Homes For Veterans On Welfare

Disabled veterans who are not dependent on public welfare will find it more difficult to get admitted to a state veterans' home as a result of a State Justice Department opinion released Tuesday.

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas said a veteran with personal resources cannot be admitted to a state veterans' home unless the veterans' home offers a type of care needed but not available elsewhere.

State Public Institutions Director Jack Cleavenger requested the opinion to settle questions about who can be admitted to a state veterans home.

Cleavenger said some of the 600 or so disabled veterans now in the homes at Grand Island, Norfolk and Scottsbluff may have sufficient personal resources that they don't qualify.

"There may be some in there," Cleavenger said. "But I don't know how you'd kick them out."

In the future, Cleavenger said the department will follow the Justice Department advice for new admissions.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Terry Schaaf, who wrote the opinion, said, "It has been indicated ... that applicants are attempting to qualify for admission on a showing that care provided by the veterans' home is more desirable than care provided elsewhere ...

"It is our opinion that the (law) ... refers to the nature of the care as opposed to solely the quality or desirability of the care. Therefore, it would appear that the veterans home could require a showing by an applicant ... that he is in need of a specific type of care and that such care cannot be obtained in the private sector."

Burrows Calls For Probe Of High Officials Of NFO

By United Press International

Nebraska State Sen. George Burrows of Adams Tuesday asked the state Justice Department to conduct an investigation into the management of the National Farmers Organization, saying worthwhile NFO goals should not stand in the way of a good close look.

"The most worthy and high goals of the National Farmers Organization cannot justify sweeping under the rug incompetence, mismanagement, false promises and other activities that are not of the high standards demanded by this state," the lawmaker said.

Burrows singled out specifically for investigation the activities of NFO President Oren Lee Staley as well as other national officers, directors and officers of trusts and custodial accounts in the name of the NFO.

Iowa Trust Cited

The state senator made the request of Attorney General Paul Douglas saying it was "due to the manner in which the above (referring to Staley and other officials) have conducted their activities (that) substantial amounts of money were lost in the Iowa Trust."

Even though it was technically an Iowa Trust, Burrows said Nebraskans shared in the losses.

"Some estimates of this loss to Nebraska farmers exceed $1 million," he said. "Therefore, special emphasis should be made on the activities involved in the management of the Iowa Trust."

Burrows also said there were also some problems with the Minnesota Trust and therefore Douglas should conduct an investigation and take "appropriate corrective actions to assure similar deficiencies do not occur in the state of Nebraska" itself.

Protection Provided

The senator said Nebraska law does provide some protections for NFO members, but those protections are not there.

"Because of the uncooperative attitude and lack of cooperation in accomplishing bonding and accountability procedures under (the law), the members may not yet be receiving the adequate protection through competent business management," he said.

Burrows also said he understood the NFO was interfering with the rights of its members to testify.

"It has come to my attention that allegations were made that testifying at Department of Agriculture and legislative hearings constitute cause for expulsion from the National Farmers Organization through kangaroo court proceedings in Corning, Iowa," he said, adding, "these allegations were made by a national director outside the state of Nebraska."

Burrows declined to identify that director.

Bellevue Youth To Stand Trial For Kidnap, Assault

Kansas City (AP) — A federal magistrate found there was probable cause to believe that Allen Lanz Holloway, 18, Bellevue, Neb., kidnaped an Omaha, waitress. Holloway was ordered held for trial in the U.S. District Court for Western Missouri.

After a preliminary hearing Monday, Magistrate Calvin K. Hamilton transferred the case to Judge Elmo B. Hunter and permitted Holloway to be returned to Papillion, Neb., where he is charged with a first degree sexual assault on a 17-year-old Omaha girl in July.

After the preliminary, Holloway refused to forego the formality of indictment; and the next step is presentation of the government's evidence to a federal grand jury.

The U.S. district attorney's office said Tuesday it did not know when this would be done.

Lodge News — The "Sunday Journal and Star" has it.

Leaders Plan 'Sneak' Increase—Thone

Washington (AP) — Rep. Chaires Thone, R-Neb., says congressional leadership plans to "sneak an increase in federal spending for so called public service jobs to 2½ times the present amount."

In his weekly newsletter, Thone said this would result in a $7 billion expenditure in the next fiscal year, compared to $2.7 billion spent in the fiscal year ended June 30. Thone said he voted against that spending.

Thone declared: "Strategy of the congressional leadership is to push for additional spending late in this fiscal year. These liberal leaders figure that if the number of public service jobs can be made 2 or 2½ times larger in the last month or two of this fiscal year, it will add a relatively small amount to this year's budget deficit."

Thone said they figure that "once these people are on the public payroll, Congress will have to vote the money to pay their salaries for all of the next fiscal year."

Thone said the way to encourage full employment "is to reduce federal spending so as to encourage investments by private individuals and firms."

Dyas Begins Lincoln Phase Of Attempt For Senate Seat

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Handing out leaflets on a sunny January noon hour in front of the University of Nebraska's student union, Hess Dyas Tuesday embarked on the Lincoln phase of his campaign for the U.S. Senate.

It is too early to know where he and his Democratic primary opponent, Omaha Mayor Edward Zorinsky, will differ on issues, since Zorinsky has not yet outlined an issue platform, Dyas said.

"We'll begin developing issues as we go along," he said.

"My emphasis right now is to set the tone for my campaign — to go directly to the people to talk to them personally about their concerns," Dyas said.

"Hi, I'm Hess Dyas, a candidate for the Senate," he interrupted to greet passersby, handing out a one-page excerpt from his campaign announcement statement.

Several stopped to engage him in brief conversation.

"People need more personal contact with their senator," he said.

"We need to talk specifics about monopoly power, unfair tax laws, jobs, prices."

It's his guess, Dyas said, that "it will take some time to draw comparisons (with Zorinsky) with regard to issues."

Dyas, the 1974 First District Democratic congressional nominee, opened his Senate campaign in Omaha Monday.

Tuesday's Lincoln schedule began at 6:45 a.m., and included visits to the Havelock shops, insurance companies, campuses, shopping centers, a senior citizens meeting and the Goodyear plant.

Dyas took time out to complete his filing as a candidate at the Statehouse and visit with Gov. J. James Exon.

Dyas Going West

During the remainder of the month, he plans to campaign in 65 western Nebraska communities.

"The people are not in control of their government," he said in a formal announcement statement.

"The government is wasteful, it is unresponsive and it operates under the wrong set of priorities.

"And the cost for this government falls too heavily on the middle-income taxpayer and too lightly on the rich and powerful who have managed to twist tax laws for their own benefit."

Dyas said the people need to "control the monopolies and the excessive economic power of the huge multi-national corporations."

Decries Money's Clout

Too often, in government, he said, "the influence of big money has been greater than the influence of public opinion."

Government needs to act to help provide jobs, hold down prices, place a ceiling on "outrageous" interest rates, restore "some equity" to the tax system and hold down government expenditures," Dyas said.

Hess Dyas

"I believe in a free market, full production economy for America's farmers," he said, with establishment of on-farm grain reserves with 90% loan guarantees.

"If I should win," Dyas said, "I think I could bring to the task the sense of outrage, mission and hope needed to do a difficult, but necessary, job."

At stake is the Senate seat being vacated by Republican Sen. Roman Hruska.

'No Comment' On Pet Board's Personnel

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

Humane Society Board President Dr. Robert White said he had "no comment" Tuesday on whether board members debated whether to fire Humane Society Director Bernard Patton.

Dr. White declined to comment on whether the board even discussed personnel problems of any kind at its monthly meeting.

Dr. White, a dentist, reportedly has been trying to make some changes in the way the Humane Society operates since he took office last summer.

City Councilman Dick Baker repeatedly has told fellow lawmakers that Dr. White "is trying to make changes out there, but he's not getting any support from his board."

Baker, a frequent critic of Patton, was instrumental in setting up a committee to study the city's animal control problems. That committee recently recommended that the city take over many duties now being handled by the Humane Society, a private organization.

Two former Humane Society employes are going to attend Tuesday's meeting to voice their concerns over how Patton handles employes and the public.

Steve Gans and Chris Hollers said they were barred from attending the meeting, however, after being told by Dr. White not to come.

The former employes, both of whom say they were dismissed by Patton, said the meeting place was suddenly changed from the regular place, the Richman-Gordman department store.

Dr. White said the meeting was at the Red Rooster restaurant instead. He said he was not instrumental in seeking a change in meeting places. Dr. White declined to elaborate on why the meeting place was changed.

Gans and Ms. Hollers contend the change was made to keep the public from attending.

Dr. White said he told Gans and Ms. Hollers not to attend because a lawsuit was pending against Patton and he felt it would be inappropriate for the matter to be discussed "at this time."

"I don't think we have any business passing judgment on anything until the court has decided," Dr. White said.

Ms. Hollers filed that lawsuit in Municipal Court charging that Patton pushed her through a doorway at the Humane Society shelter.

Patton has pleaded not guilty to those assault charges. A Jan. 27 trial date has been set.

DeCamp May Run For Congress

State Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh says he is seriously considering a bid for the Republican nomination to the House from the 3rd District because "the district needs to be more effectively represented."

DeCamp, a 34-year-old attorney, is thinking of challenging Rep. Virginia Smith of Chappell, who will seek a second term on the GOP ticket.

Another state senator, Richard Lewis of Holbrook, also is considering challenging Mrs. Smith in the primary. Lewis said Tuesday he had not made a final decision.

Richard Lewis

Considers Contest

DeCamp said he was "giving very serious thought" to the bid, but said he would not likely enter the race if Lewis did, since a crowded primary ballot would give the incumbent an advantage.

DeCamp filed for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate in 1972. He switched his party affiliation to Republican later.

DeCamp was re-elected to a second Unicameral term in 1974, thus his seat would not be in jeopardy if he ran for the House.

Murder Trial Date For Peery Set

Wesley Peery, accused of the June 6 shooting death of Marianne Mitzner, pleaded innocent to first degree murder and robbery, during a Tuesday morning arraignment in Lancaster County District Court.

Both charges stem from the death of Mrs. Mitzner and a robbery at the Havelock Coin Shop which she managed.

Judge Dale Fahrnbruch set Peery's trial for the two-week jury term beginning Feb. 23.

It was the second time that Peery was arraigned on the two charges. Last August, District Court Judge Samuel Van Pelt ruled that there was not enough evidence that Peery might have committed the crimes to bind him over the district court.

The charges were refiled and a second preliminary hearing was held in Lancaster County Court.

Judge Fahrnbruch will rule later on an oral motion that a bond be set for Peery. Peery is currently being held without bond at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

Power Agency Name Approved

Grand Island (UPI) — The name of the board which will run the proposed 150 megawatt power plant for Hastings and Grand Island is the Great Plains Power Agency.

The city councils in the cities approved the name during their regular meetings Monday.

The council at Grand Island also approved the letting of bids for the nearly $8 million turbo-generator for the plant and an engineering services contract on the facility.

Utilities director Bob Olson said the contract with Lutz, Daily and Brain of Shawnee Mission, Kan., is for 5% of the total project cost, estimated at $68 million.

Proud Says He Opposes Gun Control

Omaha (AP) — Former State Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha, a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate, says he is against gun control, with the possible exception of "Saturday night specials."

Proud said he believes gun control legislation would disarm the citizens and arm the criminals.

"I likewise look with disfavor upon gun registration laws because they are the first step to gun control," said Proud.

Debt-Ridden GI Mall Sale Set Next Month By Court

Grand Island (UPI) — Ownership of the Conestoga Mall may change in February but it probably will be sold in June.

Hall County District Judge Donald Weaver has ruled the mall should be sold Feb. 17 to pay more than $450,000 in mechanic liens owed to Platte Valley Construction Co. and Watson Construction Co.

Weaver said the sale will be subject to liens and other encumbrances of record.

That means whoever buys the mall next month will have to pay more than $3 million in debts to Union America Trust and Mortgage Co. of Omaha by June 17.

Last year, Weaver ruled in favor of the finance company in its foreclosure action.

The sale to pay off the debt is scheduled for June.

Business Expects To Spend Less On Equipment, Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business leaders expect to buy a lower volume of equipment and facilities this year, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The dropoff means the general economic recovery could count on even less support from business spending than last year, when spending was down an estimated 10 per cent in volume.

Commerce said its regular survey of business plans on spending on the capital goods and facilities necessary to expand production and create new jobs showed spending will be off about 4 per cent in volume this year.

The value of the goods business plans to buy will be up by $6.19 billion over last year to a total of $119.68 billion. But capital goods price increases expected at 10 per cent by business planners will reduce the buying power of those dollars, resulting in the lower volume.

The recovery so far has been fueled mainly by consumer buying, and most economists consider strong business spending essential to maintain the growth of the economy.

Both manufacturing and merchandising firms said they expect higher sales for this year, with manufacturers expecting an 11.8 per cent advance and trade firms expecting a 9 per cent increase.

But since most companies are currently operating well below full capacity, they apparently feel no urgent need for a rapid expansion of production facilities.

The Commerce survey was taken in November and December, about the time businesses were putting the finishing touches on their budgets for this year. Expected spending levels were little changed, however, from the results of a survey taken in October and November, which projected capital spending at an annual rate of $119.5 billion over the first half of this year.

The expected increase in the amount of dollars spent this year was higher for nonmanufacturing industries than manufacturing industries — 6 per cent as opposed to 5 per cent.

Provident S&L Names Sidles New President

Provident Savings and Loan Association held its annual shareholders meeting Tuesday to elect officers for 1976 and review last year's financial operations.

Officers are Phil Sidles, president; W. H. Howey, vice president; Frank Sidles, secretary-treasurer, and Elsa Kaiser, assistant secretary.

Re-elected to the board of directors was Jesse Williams. Continuing on the board are Phil Sidles, Frank Sidles, W. H. Howey, Carl Olson, Earl Carter, and Paul Schorr III.

The president reported that last year savings deposits increased 18% to $10,224,124; mortgages rose 19% to $10,990,068 and total assets rose 18% to $12,095,356.

Cornhusker Bank Elects G. Frampton

Cornhusker Bank held its annual shareholders meeting Tuesday to elect bank officers and present last year's financial statement.

Bank officers for 1976 are: G. A. Frampton, chairman of the board; Robert Frampton, vice chairman; Alice Dittman, president and board secretary; James Mastera, executive vice president; Cecile Frampton, vice president; Kenneth Ward, vice president and cashier; Mel Hain, assistant vice president; Marilyn Horky and Rosie VanArsdall, assistant cashiers.

Appointed to the board of directors were Norman Bulling, Alice Dittman, Cecile Frampton, G. A. Frampton, Robert Frampton, Forest Hutson, A. Leicester Hyde, James Mastera, Robert McGill, John Stewart and Karl Witt.

The financial statement showed operating income increased 11%, but operating expenses rose 15%. Loans rose 5% to $4,616,584; deposits were up 15% to $8,209,779; and total assets increased 15% to $8,915,123. Bank president Alice Dittmer said the largest increase in assets occurred in savings accounts, indicating the public wants a return on their money while still having it easily accessible.

New Beef Standards Take Effect Feb. 23

WASHINGTON (AP) — Slightly leaner beef will qualify for top government grades under new federal standards being put into effect Feb. 23, nearly a year after they were first proposed.

In setting the date, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday that the leaner meat will now qualify for the prime and choice grades, a move expected to "encourage producers to raise meat-type cattle with a minimum excess of fat."

The change was proposed March 12, 1975, and was to take effect last April 14.

But consumer groups and others filed court challenges, contending that the new standards would force consumers to pay more for choice grades by allowing leaner beef to qualify for the more expensive cuts.

In the past, the tenderest and juiciest beef cuts have come from grain-fattened cattle and have included a maximum amount of fat, or marbling, in the lean. The leanest beef, under the old standards, usually has come from cattle which have not been fed much or any grain, or from older animals.

A U.S. district court in Omaha, Neb., issued an injunction preventing USDA from using the new grades, but the U.S. Court of Appeals in St. Louis overturned the ruling last November.

Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun, on Jan. 9, denied a request for a stay of the revised standards, clearing the way for the department to put the changes into effect next month.

In the future, the department said, all beef carcasses will be graded for both quality and yield of meat. Currently regulations call for grading either quality or yield or both.

Grades such as prime, choice and good identify the eating quality of beef, while Grades 1 through 5 indicate the percentage of retail cuts in the carcass.

Department officials said that eventually the new grades should lead to a reduction in the amount of excess fat on beef cattle by providing more incentive for farmers and feed lot operators to produce leaner cattle.

In effect, the new rules will expand the prime and choice beef grades and make the third-level grade, U.S. good, narrower. Normally good-grade beef sells more cheaply than choice or prime.

A spokesman for the Consumer Federation of America, which opposed the USDA's changes, said the new standards will mean that "consumers will wind up paying choice prices for good beef," after the rules take effect.

Department officials said that the slight reductions in the requirements for marbling-flecks of fat within the lean will result in slightly leaner beef in prime and choice grades.

Panel Urged To Secure Funds

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Members of a special mental retardation panel were urged Tuesday to take an active role in securing funds for community programs for the retarded.

That request was made by representatives of the six regional programs for the retarded during the second meeting of a five-member panel established under a court agreement to direct the state's retardation efforts.

Linda Glenn, executive director of community programs in the five-county Omaha area, referred to resistance by state senators and Gov. J. James Exon to requests for more money, and told the panel, "you're the only clout we've got."

Roger Harper, executive director of community programs in the Hastings region, said, "I do think the panel has a part in the fiscal process."

A cutback in federal funds distributed by the state and Exon's refusal to commit more state money to the programs have forced cutbacks in staff and programs.

Such funding problems have cropped up periodically, Harper said, and have hurt the stability of the community programs.

The community programs, which reportedly work with 2,500 retarded persons, are seeking a $3 million deficit appropriation to get them through the year.

Harper said the funding crisis has left programs "in a shambles — we've lost momentum."

Several months ago Harper's Region 3 programs won accreditation from a joint evaluating team.

"If the joint accreditation committee came back today, we'd lose accreditation immediately," Harper said.

Ms. Glenn agreed, saying the quality of some ENCOR programs has dropped greatly in recent months.

The panel is charged with devising a plan for identifying retarded persons now at Beatrice State Home and other state institutions who could be better served in community programs and with directing the switch from institutions to community settings.

As part of a settlement in a lawsuit regarding the rights of the retarded to treatment, a goal was set for reducing the number of retarded at Beatrice within three years from more than 1,000 to 250 residents.

That settlement has stirred opposition from advocates of the retarded, who say Beatrice is the best place for many retarded individuals.

Ms. Glenn said she has no doubts that the community programs could care for more retarded in community programs as foreseen by the settlement.

Questions about the availability of medical services for the multiple-handicapped retarded in areas outside Lincoln and Omaha aren't valid, she said.

"That's a big ogre that's been raised," she said.

Harper said adequate medical personnel are available in Scottsbluff, North Platte, Grand Island, Hastings and Norfolk. However, Dr. Patricia Stivrins, a Lincoln pediatrician and panel member, questioned Harper's statements by pointing to the lack of pediatricians outstate.

Harper also urged the panel to confront the issue of whether parental consent should be required to move a retarded person from Beatrice to a community program.

He said many retarded people at Beatrice could benefit from community programs but cannot because parents prefer Beatrice.

Funding questions and the fact the Legislature is not bound by the panel's actions, Harper said, give him "the ominous feeling that we'll find ourselves back in court."

Douglas: Homes For Veterans On Welfare

Disabled veterans who are not dependent on public welfare will find it more difficult to get admitted to a state veterans' home as a result of a State Justice Department opinion released Tuesday.

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas said a veteran with personal resources cannot be admitted to a state veterans' home unless the veterans' home offers a type of care needed but not available elsewhere.

State Public Institutions Director Jack Cleavenger requested the opinion to settle questions about who can be admitted to a state veterans home.

Cleavenger said some of the 600 or so disabled veterans now in the homes at Grand Island, Norfolk and Scottsbluff may have sufficient personal resources that they don't qualify.

"There may be some in there," Cleavenger said. "But I don't know how you'd kick them out."

In the future, Cleavenger said the department will follow the Justice Department advice for new admissions.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Terry Schaaf, who wrote the opinion, said, "It has been indicated . . . that applicants are attempting to qualify for admission on a showing that care provided by the veterans' home is more desirable than care provided elsewhere . . .

"It is our opinion that the (law) . . . refers to the nature of the care as opposed to solely the quality or desirability of the care. Therefore, it would appear that the veterans home could require a showing by an applicant . . . that he is in need of a specific type of care and that such care cannot be obtained in the private sector."

Leaders Plan 'Sneak' Increase—Thone

Washington (AP) — Rep. Chalres Thone, R-Neb., says congressional leadership plans to "sneak an increase in federal spending for so called public service jobs to 2½ times the present amount."

In his weekly newsletter, Thone said this would result in a $7 billion expenditure in the next fiscal year, compared to $2.7 billion spent in the fiscal year ended June 30. Thone said he voted against that spending.

Thone declared: "Strategy of the congressional leadership is to push for additional spending late in this fiscal year. These liberal leaders figure that if the number of public service jobs can be made 2 or 2½ times larger in the last month or two of this fiscal year, it will add a relatively small amount to this year's budget deficit."

Thone said they figure that "once these people are on the public payroll, Congress will have to vote the money to pay their salaries for all of the next fiscal year."

Thone said the way to encourage full employment "is to reduce federal spending so as to encourage investments by private individuals and firms."

George Burrows

Burrows Calls For Probe Of High Officials Of NFO

By United Press International

Nebraska State Sen. George Burrows of Adams Tuesday asked the state Justice Department to conduct an investigation into the management of the National Farmers Organization, saying worthwhile NFO goals should not stand in the way of a good close look.

"The most worthy and high goals of the National Farmers Organization cannot justify sweeping under the rug incompetence, mismanagement, false promises and other activities that are not of the high standards demanded by this state," the lawmaker said.

Burrows singled out specifically for investigation the activities of NFO President Oren Lee Staley as well as other national officers, directors and officers of trusts and custodial accounts in the name of the NFO.

Iowa Trust Cited

The state senator made the request of Attorney General Paul Douglas saying it was "due to the manner in which the above (referring to Staley and other officials) have conducted their activities (that) substantial amounts of money were lost in the Iowa Trust."

Even though it was technically an Iowa Trust, Burrows said Nebraskans shared in the losses.

"Some estimates of this loss to Nebraska farmers exceed $1 million," he said. "Therefore, special emphasis should be made on the activities involved in the management of the Iowa Trust."

Burrows also said there were also some problems with the Minnesota Trust and therefore Douglas should conduct an investigation and take "appropriate corrective actions to assure similar deficiencies do not occur in the state of Nebraska" itself.

Protection Provided

The senator said Nebraska law does provide some protections for NFO members, but those protections are not there.

"Because of the uncooperative attitude and lack of cooperation in accomplishing bonding and accountability procedures under (the law), the members may not yet be receiving the adequate protection through competent business management," he said.

Burrows also said he understood the NFO was interfering with the rights of its members to testify.

"It has come to my attention that allegations were made that testifying at Department of Agriculture and legislative hearings constitute cause for expulsion from the National Farmers Organization through kangaroo court proceedings in Corning, Iowa," he said, adding, "these allegations were made by a national director outside the state of Nebraska."

Burrows declined to identify that director.

Bellevue Youth To Stand Trial For Kidnap, Assault

Kansas City (AP) — A federal magistrate found there was probable cause to believe that Allen Lanz Holloway, 18, Bellevue, Neb., kidnaped an Omaha, waitress. Holloway was ordered held for trial in the U.S. District Court for Western Missouri.

After a preliminary hearing Monday, Magistrate Calvin K. Hamilton transferred the case to Judge Elmo B. Hunter and permitted Holloway to be returned to Papillion, Neb., where he is charged with a first degree sexual assault on a 17-year-old Omaha girl in July.

After the preliminary, Holloway refused to forego the formality of indictment; and the next step is presentation of the government's evidence to a federal grand jury.

The U.S. district attorney's office said Tuesday it did not know when this would be done.

Hamilton Chairman Of County Board

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County-city merger efforts, and the Comprehensive Plan for county and city growth over the next 25 years will be major areas of interest for the Lancaster County Board's new chairman.

Bruce Hamilton, 23, was elected chairman of the board and Jan Gauger was chosen vice chairman at the board's annual reorganization meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Gauger, who served as chairman of the board the past year, had said she did not want to continue as chairman.

Mrs. Gauger, whose four-year term on the board expires in December, said she wanted the time to campaign. After the board vote Tuesday, Mrs. Gauger said she would officially file for re-election next Tuesday.

As chairman, Hamilton will serve on the City-County Implementation Committee charged with moving toward a merger of the two governments, and the Officials Committee, one of the initial links in the planning process for the Comprehensive Plan.

"And I intend to give them my full attention," said Hamilton of those two groups.

Hamilton and other city and county leaders have been critical of the delays in the Comprehensive Plan and Hamilton said he hopes to "help move that along."

He also hopes to take a look at the County Board office and personnel duties to see if there are ways to increase staff efficiency.

"The beginning of the year just seems like a logical time to generate some ideas about how to operate more efficiently," he said.

Commissioner Robert Colin will serve as chairman of the County Welfare Board and Mrs. Gauger will be chairman of the Board of Equalization. The three commissioners comprise the membership of those two boards.

Other committee assignments for the year included County-City Building Commission, Gauger and Colin; Community Emergency Work Shop, Bob Clark, human service director; City-County Health Board, Gauger; City Park and Recreation Advisory Board, Gauger.

Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation advisory board, Wayne Hart, administrative assistant; Lancaster Manor board, Colin; Lincoln Action Program board, Clark; Civil Defense Advisory Board, Colin; Air Pollution Advisory Council, Gauger; Region II Crime Commission Board, Colin; Region V Human Services Board, Hamilton; Health Systems Agency, Hamilton; and Pre-Trial Diversion Advisory Board, Hamilton.

First Residents At Last Move Into Juvenile Attention Center

The new Lancaster County Juvenile Attention Center, plagued by minor security problems, has officially opened its doors.

Three youths Tuesday moved into the attention center, 2220 S. 10th, said Jon Hill, center director.

The brick, one-story complex was scheduled to open in early fall, but security problems, including breakable windows and easily opened perimeter doors, delayed the opening.

The security problems have been ironed out, though the county is still negotiating the cost of some of the changes with the architect, said Robert Clark, county human services director.

Planning for the more than $460,000 complex started more than four years ago and the building was built with a series of federal grants and some local money.

The complex, which can house up to 19 youths, was officially named the Jennie B. Harrel Attention Center For Youth after the woman who directed the Westview detention home for many years.

For the first two weeks the attention center staff will work only with those youths who would have been placed in the Westview home, Hill said.

Then the staff of 20, including many part-time people, will begin working with youths who are currently detained in the County-City Jail, he said.

"We are assuming that we can handle about 90% of the youths that the jail used to take," said Hill, adding that those who become severe problems will be returned to the more secure jail facility.

"We want to do this in stages (taking the more manageable youths for the first two weeks) so that we don't make any mistakes."

The staff spent the past week in an intensive training program, learning the philosophy of the center and techniques of dealing with problem youngsters, Hill said.

The center will eventually be working with about 9 or 10 youths at a time for an average stay of less than a week.

Motions To Move Cases To Juvenile Court Denied

Lancaster County Court Judge Jeffre Cheuvront has denied requests by defense attorneys representing five juveniles charged with robbery that the cases be transferred to juvenile court.

Charged in connection with a rash of armed robberies here during a recent six-week period are Robert Griffith, Lorenzo Jones, Mark Hicks, Forrest Lee Wade and David Williams. All are 17, except Griffith, who is 16.

In making the decision, Cheuvront noted that all are unemployed and none are attending school. The incidents involved violence or the threat of violence, Cheuvront wrote in his decision, and the nature of the offenses was considered in denying transfer.

Cheuvront also denied the transfer from county court of a case against Preston Keys, 17, involving two counts of burglary.

"The court notes that a subsequent complaint has been filed against the defendant alleging the offense of robbery during the period he was out on bond in this matter," Cheuvront wrote.

NWU Choir Sets Concert

The Nebraska Wesleyan University swing choir, "Touch of Class," will perform in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Enid Miller Theatre on campus.

The 18-member group, which combines vocal, instrumental and dance talents into its program of popular music, is directed by Dr. William Wyman, assistant professor of music and choral activities director at NWU.

Gauger Says She'll Seek Re-Election

With the filing deadline two months off only one candidate has emerged for the lone county opening — county commissioner.

Current Commissioner Jan Gauger, whose four-year term is up for grabs this year, announced she will officially file for re-election next week.

And one rumored candidate possibility, Republican George "Bus" Knight said Tuesday that he will not seek the commissioner post from the First District.

Several county elected officials privately tried to persuade Knight, a retired banker, to oppose Mrs. Gauger, also a Republican. Knight served as treasurer for Mrs. Gauger's 1972 campaign.

The Democrats have not yet come up with a challenger for Mrs. Gauger's seat.

Election commission personnel said that one man has inquired about the filing procedures, though no one has yet filed as a candidate for the First District opening.

Filing deadline for the office is March 12 with the primary election for the Democratic and Republican nomination set for May 11.

Voters in the First District (north Lincoln and the northern part of the county) select the primary candidates. Voters throughout the county then vote for the commissioner post during the Nov. 2 election.

Business Expects To Spend Less On Equipment, Facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Business leaders expect to buy a lower volume of equipment and facilities this year, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The dropoff means the general economic recovery could count on even less support from business spending than last year, when spending was down an estimated 10 per cent in volume.

Commerce said its regular survey of business plans on spending on the capital goods and facilities necessary to expand production and create new jobs showed spending will be off about 4 per cent in volume this year.

The value of the goods business plans to buy will be up by $6.19 billion over last year to a total of $119.68 billion. But capital goods price increases expected at 10 per cent by business planners will reduce the buying power of those dollars, resulting in the lower volume.

The recovery so far has been fueled mainly by consumer buying, and most economists consider strong business spending essential to maintain the growth of the economy.

Both manufacturing and merchandising firms said they expect higher sales for this year, with manufacturers expecting an 11.5 per cent advance and trade firms expecting a 9 per cent increase.

But since most companies are currently operating well below full capacity, they apparently feel no urgent need for a rapid expansion of production facilities.

The Commerce survey was taken in November and December, about the time businesses were putting the finishing touches on their budgets for this year. Expected spending levels were little changed, however, from the results of a survey taken in October and November, which projected capital spending at an annual rate of $119.5 billion over the first half of this year.

The expected increase in the amount of dollars spent this year was higher for nonmanufacturing industries than manufacturing industries — 6 per cent as opposed to 5 per cent.

Provident S&L Names Sidles New President

The president reported that last year savings deposits increased 18% to $10,324,124; mortgages rose 19% to $10,990,068 and total assets rose 18% to $12,095,356.

Appointed to the board of directors were Norman Bulling, Alice Dittman, Cecile Frampton, G. A. Frampton, Robert Frampton, Forest Hutson, A. Leicester Hyde, James Mastera, Robert McGill, John Stewart and Karl Witt.

The financial statement showed operating income increased 11%, but operating expenses rose 15%. Loans rose 5% to $4,616,584; deposits were up 15% to $8,209,779; and total assets increased 15% to $8,915,123. Bank president Alice Dittmer said the largest increase in assets occurred in savings accounts, indicating the public wants a return on their money while still having it easily accessible.

New Beef Standards Take Effect Feb. 23

WASHINGTON (AP) — Slightly leaner beef will qualify for top government grades under new federal standards being put into effect Feb. 23, nearly a year after they were first proposed.

In setting the date, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday that the leaner meat will now qualify for the prime and choice grades, a move expected to "encourage producers to raise meat-type cattle with a minimum excess of fat."

The change was proposed March 12, 1975, and was to take effect last April 14.

But consumer groups and others filed court challenges, contending that the new standards would force consumers to pay more for choice grades by allowing leaner beef to qualify for the more expensive cuts.

In the past, the tenderest and juiciest beef cuts have come from grain-fattened cattle and have included a maximum amount of fat, or marbling, in the lean. The leanest beef, under the old standards, usually has come from cattle which have not been fed much or any grain, or from older animals.

A U.S. district court in Omaha, Neb., issued an injunction preventing USDA from using the new grades, but the U.S. Court of Appeals in St. Louis overturned the ruling last November.

Supreme Court Justice Harry A. Blackmun, on Jan. 9, denied a request for a stay of the revised standards, clearing the way for the department to put the changes into effect next month.

In the future, the department said, all beef carcasses will be graded for both quality and yield of meat. Currently regulations call for grading either quality or yield or both.

Grades such as prime, choice and good identify the eating quality of beef, while Grades 1 through 5 indicate the percentage of retail cuts in the carcass.

Department officials said that eventually the new grades should lead to a reduction in the amount of excess fat on beef cattle by providing more incentive for farmers and feed lot operators to produce leaner cattle.

In effect, the new rules will expand the prime and choice beef grades and make the third-level grade, U.S. good, narrower. Normally good-grade beef sells more cheaply than choice or prime.

A spokesman for the Consumer Federation of America, which opposed the USDA's changes, said the new standards will mean that "consumers will wind up paying choice prices for good beef," after the rules take effect.

Department officials said that the slight reductions in the requirements for marbling-flecks of fat within the lean will result in slightly leaner beef in prime and choice grades.

N. America Said Sole Hope For Grain Needs Of Future

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

North America is the sole hope of producing the grain needed to feed a world population which is expected to double by the year 2010, University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner, said Tuesday.

Varner, speaking to 400 persons attending the first joint meeting of the Nebraska Water Resources Association, the Nebraska State Irrigation Association, and the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts, called for bold aggressive water management in the state.

"Nebraska, with the richest underground water resources in the U.S., holds a trump card in the world food race," he said.

Noting that world food reserves have dropped from 105 days to 31 days in 10 years, Varner warned, "Only the U.S., Canada and Australia are grain exporting nations."

Varner expressed fears that a drouth could leave the major food producing states vulnerable to a catastrophe.

Varner cited reports that subsoil moisture over most of Nebraska is in the worst condition since the 1930's. "The fall of 1975," Varner said, "was the driest in the history of Nebraska weather records."

Varner challenged the water resource leaders to move with a new sense of urgency in three areas:

Take another look at the amount of water leaving the state.

Move vigorously in the area of groundwater re-charge.

Address the matter of water conservation with more imagination, such as improving the efficiency of irrigation systems.

The three associations presented awards to:

The Jefferson County Board of Commissioners, for their cooperation with natural resources districts in promoting proper resource management.

State Sen. Maurice A. Kremer of Aurora, for his efforts to improve ground water management in the state.

Cyril P. Shaughnessey of St. Paul, for his long service as a legal advisor to various resources districts.

Polson New President Of Trade Board

Kansas City (AP) — Chester W. Polson, a regional vice president and manager for Continental Grain Co., stepped up a notch Tuesday and became president of the Kansas City Board of Trade.

Edward J. Egan, southwest operations manager for the Pillsbury Co., became the new man in the succession of officers when he was elected second vice president.

Frank Baumgartner, vice president of Simonds-Shields-Theis Grain Co., automatically succeeded Polson as first vice president of the world's largest market for dark hard winter wheat.

Polson was reared on a farm at Nesel, Kan., and his connection with the grain business dates to 1937, when he joined the U.S. Department of Agriculture after graduation from high school. His work in the government's farm programs continued in Manhattan, Kan., Washington and Dallas; and for seven years he was in charge of all grain programs at the Dallas office of the Commodity Credit Corp.

Polson joined Continental in 1950 in Kansas City, worked in its New York and Fort Worth offices and returned to Kansas City in 1969.

Egan is a native of Yankton, S.D., and joined Pillsbury when he graduated from the University of South Dakota in 1948. He worked in Minneapolis, in Wichita and Atchison, Kan., and in Omaha, Neb., before being transferred to Kansas City in 1963.

Baumgartner was born at Salina, Kan., and is a graduate of the University of Kansas. He has been a member of the Kansas City Board of Trade since 1953.

Blaze Strikes Greeley Firm

Greeley (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin destroyed the offices and showroom of the S. E. Smith & Sons Lumber Co., early Tuesday.

Firemen from Greeley, aided by units from Scotia and Spalding, contained the flames to the lumber yard.

The cause of the blaze is under investigation by the state fire marshal's office.

A damage estimate was not available, and no injuries were reported.

Brandeis Estate Tax Is $223,722

Omaha (UPI) — The estate of E. John Brandeis, who headed J.L. Brandeis & Sons Stores for 26 years, has paid $223,722 to Douglas County in inheritance taxes, Deputy County Attorney Henry Wendt said.

Wendt indicated, however, that a credit of $50,000 may still be allowed the estate if it reaches agreement in an inheritance tax claim by the state of California.

Attorneys for the estate declined to reveal the valuation on which the tax was based.

Hamilton Chairman Of County Board

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

County-city merger efforts, and the Comprehensive Plan for county and city growth over the next 25 years will be major areas of interest for the Lancaster County Board's new chairman.

Bruce Hamilton, 33, was elected chairman of the board and Jan Gauger was chosen vice chairman at the board's annual reorganization meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Gauger, who served as chairman of the board the past year, had said she did not want to continue as chairman.

Mrs. Gauger, whose four-year term on the board expires in December, said she wanted the time to campaign. After the board vote Tuesday, Mrs. Gauger said she would officially file for re-election next Tuesday.

As chairman, Hamilton will serve on the City-County Implementation Committee charged with moving toward a merger of the two governments, and the Officials Committee, one of the initial links in the planning process for the Comprehensive Plan.

"And I intend to give them my full attention," said Hamilton of those two groups.

Hamilton and other city and county leaders have been critical of the delays in the Comprehensive Plan and Hamilton said he hopes to "help move that along."

He also hopes to take a look at the County Board office and personnel duties to see if there are ways to increase staff efficiency.

The beginning of the year just seems like a logical time to generate some ideas about how to operate more efficiently," he said.

Commissioner Robert Colin will serve as chairman of the County Welfare Board and Mrs. Gauger will be chairman of the Board of Equalization. The three commissioners comprise the membership of those two boards.

Other committee assignments for the year included County-City Building Commission, Gauger and Colin; Community Emergency Work Shop, Bob Clark, human service director; City-County Health Board, Gauger; City Park and Recreation Advisory Board, Gauger.

Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation advisory board, Wayne Hart, administrative assistant; Lancaster Manor board, Colin; Lincoln Action Program board, Clark; Civil Defense Advisory Board, Colin; Air Pollution Advisory Council, Gauger; Region II Crime Commission Board, Colin; Region V Human Services Board, Hamilton; Health Systems Agency, Hamilton; and Pre-Trial Diversion Advisory Board, Hamilton.

First Residents At Last Move Into Juvenile Attention Center

The new Lancaster County Juvenile Attention Center, plagued by minor security problems, has officially opened its doors.

Three youths Tuesday moved into the attention center, 2220 S. 10th, said Jon Hill, center director.

The brick, one-story complex was scheduled to open in early fall, but security problems, including breakable windows and easily opened perimeter doors, delayed the opening.

The security problems have been ironed out, though the county is still negotiating the cost of some of the changes with the architect, said Robert Clark, county human services director.

Planning for the more than $450,000 complex started more than four years ago and the building was built with a series of federal grants and some local money.

The complex, which can house up to 19 youths, was officially named the Jennie B. Harrel Attention Center For Youth after the woman who directed the Westview detention home for many years.

For the first two weeks the attention center staff will work only with those youths who would have been placed in the Westview home, Hill said.

Then the staff of 20, including many part-time people, will begin working with youths who are currently detained in the County-City Jail, he said.

"We are assuming that we can handle about 90% of the youths that the jail used to take," said Hill, adding that those who become severe problems will be returned to the more secure jail facility.

"We want to do this in stages (taking the more manageable youths for the first two weeks) so that we don't make any mistakes."

The staff spent the past week in an intensive training program, learning the philosophy of the center and techniques of dealing with problem youngsters, Hill said.

The center will eventually be working with about 9 or 10 youths at a time for an average stay of less than a week.

Motions To Move Cases To Juvenile Court Denied

Lancaster County Court Judge Jeffre Cheuvront has denied requests by defense attorneys representing five juveniles charged with robbery that the cases be transferred to juvenile court.

Charged in connection with a rash of armed robberies here during a recent six-week period are Robert Griffith, Lorenzo Jones, Mark Hicks, Forrest Lee Wade and David Williams. All are 17, except Griffith, who is 16.

In making the decision, Cheuvront noted that all are unemployed and none are attending school. The incidents involved violence or the threat of violence, Cheuvront wrote in his decision, and the nature of the offenses was considered in denying transfer.

Cheuvront also denied the transfer from county court of a case against Preston Keys, 17, involving two counts of burglary.

"The court notes that a subsequent complaint has been filed against the defendant alleging the offense of robbery during the period he was out on bond in this matter," Cheuvront wrote.

NWU Choir Sets Concert

The Nebraska Wesleyan University swing choir, "Touch of Class," will perform in concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Enid Miller Theatre on campus.

The 18-member group, which combines vocal, instrumental and dance talents into its program of popular music, is directed by Dr. William Wyman, assistant professor of music and choral activities director at NWU.

Gauger Says She'll Seek Re-Election

With the filing deadline two months off only one candidate has emerged for the lone county opening — county commissioner.

Current Commissioner Jan Gauger, whose four-year term is up for grabs this year, announced she will officially file for re-election next week.

And one rumored candidate possibility, Republican George "Bus" Knight said Tuesday that he will not seek the commissioner post from the First District.

Several county elected officials privately tried to persuade Knight, a retired banker, to oppose Mrs. Gauger, also a Republican. Knight served as treasurer for Mrs. Gauger's 1972 campaign.

The Democrats have not yet come up with a challenger for Mrs. Gauger's seat.

Election commission personnel said that one man has inquired about the filing procedures, though no one has yet filed as a candidate for the First District opening.

Filing deadline for the office is March 12 with the primary election for the Democratic and Republican nomination set for May 11.

Voters in the First District (north Lincoln and the northern part of the county) select the primary candidates. Voters throughout the county then vote for the commissioner post during the Nov. 2 election.

Court Upholds Gun Transfer Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former convicts and other potentially dangerous persons violate a federal law whenever they buy a gun received from an out-of-state supplier, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

By a 6-2 vote, the court upheld the conviction of a former convict who bought a revolver at a Booneville, Ky., store in 1967. Police found the weapon on the floorboard of his car a few hours after they arrested him for drunken driving.

The ex-convict, Pearl Barrett, was found guilty and sentenced to three years in prison. He was charged with violating a federal law making it a crime for specified categories of presumably dangerous individuals to receive any firearm or ammunition which has moved across a state line.

In appealing his conviction, Barrett argued that the federal law did not apply to him because he did not receive the gun directly through interstate channels. The gun was manufactured in Massachusetts and shipped to Booneville by a North Carolina distributor.

Speaking through Justice Harry A. Blackmun, the court said this didn't make any difference.

"Congress did not intend merely to restrict interstate sales but sought broadly to keep firearms away from the persons Congress classified as potentially irresponsible and dangerous," Blackmun wrote.

The law applies to convicted felons, persons under indictment, fugitives from justice, drug users and mental defectives.

Justice Potter Stewart, dissenting for himself and Justice William H. Rehnquist, said the law prohibits only the receipt of firearms or ammunition "as part of an interstate transaction."

In other decisions, the court:

— Ruled 5 to 3 that the Internal Revenue Service must issue a notice of deficiency before attempting to collect income taxes in midyear from persons it suspects may flee the country or otherwise evade their taxes. Unless a deficiency notice is issued, the court said, the taxpayer can sue to prevent the IRS from collecting.

—Ruled 8 to 0 that a corporation cannot recover profits made by an investor in less than a six-month period unless the investor owned more than 10 per cent of the corporation before he bought the securities on which he made a profit.

Unless he did, said the court, he was not in a position to profit from inside information, so the recovery law should not apply.

Justice John Paul Stevens did not take part in any of the decisions, since the cases were argued before he became a member of the court on Dec. 19.

Cyclamate Not Accorded Totally Clean Bill Of Health

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-appointed panel concluded Tuesday that there is no evidence that the artificial sweetener cyclamate causes cancer in animals, but the scientists stopped short of giving the sugar substitute a totally clean bill of health.

Climaxing an intensive six-month review, the final report from the six scientists will be submitted within the next two to three weeks to the director of the National Cancer Institute.

From there, it will be transmitted to the Food and Drug Administration which must decide whether to lift the ban clamped on cyclamate in 1969 when a question of whether it causes cancer was raised.

Abbott Laboratories, which had asked for permission to resume marketing cyclamate, said the panel's conclusion had removed the last roadblock and that there was no longer any reason for the FDA to withhold approval.

"Now that the cancer issue has been disposed of ... the issuance of a food additive order on cyclamate should proceed promptly," said Abbott vice president Richard W. Kasperson. "We see no valid scientific reason for the FDA to delay further."

The six scientists from some of the nation's largest universities said that, while 20 animl feeding studies conducted around the world had failed to establish the cancer-causing property of cyclamate, no conclusions could be reached on the sweetener's potential carcinogenicity in humans.

The committee said that under the present limitations of science and evidence gathered in several cyclamate studies, it could say only in 95 per cent probability that the substance, 30 to 50 times sweeter than sugar, does not cause cancer, but that there is a nagging doubt over whether it may be a weak carcinogen.

The panel chairman, Dr. Arnold L. Brown of Mayo Medical School, said, "Science today just is not good enough to answer this question to everyone's satisfaction."

Morton To Advise Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has named Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton to a White House advisory job described as including incidental political duties.

Morton's main duties will be as counselor to the President on economic and domestic policy, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Tuesday in announcing the appointment to the position at a $44,600 a year salary.

Morton, 61, was chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1969-71. There had been reports that he would become a chief political adviser for Ford's campaign this year.

Nessen told reporters that Morton would have "incidental duties as liaison with the President Ford Committee and the Republican National Committee."

Nessen emphasized that Howard B. Callaway will continue to run Ford's election campaign and that Callaway has the President's "full confidence and support."

Morton was recruited, according to Nessen, because the President wanted to avail himself of Morton's expertise on domestic and economic policy as a former congressman and secretary of both the interior and commerce departments.

These two policy areas would be Morton's "substantive duties" Nessen said.

Morton, however, will be able to relieve Ford's chief of staff Richard Cheney and Robert Hartmann, who heads the speech writing staff, of their day-to-day political duties. But along with Morton, they will still be available as political advisers, Nessen said.

Morton will take over his new job later this week, occupying a recently refurbished Executive Office Building suite that President Richard M. Nixon used as his private working office.

Morton's commerce job will be filed temporarily by a deputy, Nessen said, until his successor, Elliot L. Richardson, can take over.

Amtrak Alters Pet Policy

Washington (AP) — Amtrak announced it will not allow pets in any passenger areas of its trains after Feb. 14 but will continue to carry them inside baggage cars.

The corporation has been allowing first class passengers to keep their pets with them in parlor cars and sleeping car roomettes. However, Amtrak said numerous complaints by passengers led it to change this policy.

Amtrak said pets would be carried in baggage cars only if the animals were inside secure, well-ventilated containers. Pets will not be allowed aboard trains that do not have baggage cars and will not be loaded or unloaded at stations that do not handle checked baggage.

Most of Amtrak's short-haul trains, including the Metroliners and the new Amfleet cars, have no baggage cars and thus no accommodations for pets.

N. America Said Sole Hope For Grain Needs Of Future

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

North America is the sole hope of producing the grain needed to feed a world population which is expected to double by the year 2010, University of Nebraska President D. B. Varner, said Tuesday.

Varner, speaking to 400 persons attending the first joint meeting of the Nebraska Water Resources Association, the Nebraska State Irrigation Association, and the Nebraska Association of Resources Districts, called for bold agressive water management in the state.

"Nebraska, with the richest underground water resources in the U.S., holds a trump card in the world food race," he said.

Noting that world food reserves have dropped from 105 days to 31 days in 10 years, Varner warned, "Only the U.S., Canada and Australia are grain exporting nations."

Varner expressed fears that a drouth could leave the major food producing states vulnerable to a catastrophe.

Varner cited reports that subsoil moisture over most of Nebraska is in the worst condition since the 1930's. "The fall of 1975," Varner said, "was the driest in the history of Nebraska weather records."

Varner challenged the water resource leaders to move with a new sense of urgency in three areas:

Take another look at the amount of water leaving the state.

Move vigorously in the area of groundwater re-charge.

Address the matter of water conservation with more imagination, such as improving the efficiency of irrigation systems.

The three associations presented awards to:

The Jefferson County Board of Commissioners, for their cooperation with natural resources districts in promoting proper resource management.

State Sen. Maurice A. Kremer of Aurora, for his efforts to improve ground water management in the state.

Cyril P. Shaughnessey of St. Paul, for his long service as a legal advisor to various resources districts.

Polson New President Of Trade Board

Kansas City (AP) — Chester W. Polson, a regional vice president and manager for Continental Grain Co., stepped up a notch Tuesday and became president of the Kansas City Board of Trade.

Edward J. Egan, southwest operations manager for the Pillsbury Co., became the new man in the succession of officers when he was elected second vice president.

Frank Baumgartner, vice president of Simonds-Shields-Theis Grain Co., automatically succeeded Polson as first vice president of the world's largest market for dark hard winter wheat.

Polson was reared on a farm at Rozel, Kan., and his connection with the grain business dates to 1937, when he joined the U.S. Department of Agriculture after graduation from high school. His work in the government's farm programs continued in Manhattan, Kan., Washington and Dallas; and for seven years he was in charge of all grain programs at the Dallas office of the Commodity Credit Corp.

Polson joined Continental in 1959 in Kansas City, worked in its New York and Fort Worth offices and returned to Kansas City in 1969.

Egan is a native of Yankton, S.D., and joined Pillsbury when he graduated from the University of South Dakota in 1948. He worked in Minneapolis, in Wichita and Atchison, Kan., and in Omaha, Neb., before being transferred to Kansas City in 1953.

Baumgartner was born at Salina, Kan., and is a graduate of the University of Kansas. He has been a member of the Kansas City Board of Trade since 1953.

Blaze Strikes Greeley Firm

Greeley (AP) — A fire of undetermined origin destroyed the offices and showroom of the S. E. Smith & Sons Lumber Co., early Tuesday.

Firemen from Greeley, aided by units from Scotia and Spalding, contained the flames to the lumber yard.

The cause of the blaze is under investigation by the state fire marshal's office.

A damage estimate was not available, and no injuries were reported.

Brandeis Estate Tax Is $223,722

Omaha (UPI) — The estate of E. John Brandeis, who headed J.L. Brandeis & Sons Stores for 26 years, has paid $223,722 to Douglas County in inheritance taxes, Deputy County Attorney Henry Wendt said.

Wendt indicated, however, that a credit of $50,000 may still be allowed the estate if it reaches agreement in an inheritance tax claim by the state of California.

Attorneys for the estate declined to reveal the valuation on which the tax was based.

Court Upholds Gun Transfer Law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former convicts and other potentially dangerous persons violate a federal law whenever they buy a gun received from an out-of-state supplier, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

By a 6-2 vote, the court upheld the conviction of a former convict who bought a revolver at a Booneville, Ky., store in 1967. Police found the weapon on the floorboard of his car a few hours after they arrested him for drunken driving.

The ex-convict, Pearl Barrett, was found guilty and sentenced to three years in prison. He was charged with violating a federal law making it a crime for specified categories of presumably dangerous individuals to receive any firearm or ammunition which has moved across a state line.

In appealing his conviction, Barrett argued that the federal law did not apply to him because he did not receive the gun directly through interstate channels. The gun was manufactured in Massachusetts and shipped to Booneville by a North Carolina distributor.

Speaking through Justice Harry A. Blackmun, the court said this didn't make any difference.

"Congress did not intend merely to restrict interstate sales but sought broadly to keep firearms away from the persons Congress classified as potentially irresponsible and dangerous," Blackmun wrote.

The law applies to convicted felons, persons under indictment, fugitives from justice, drug users and mental defectives.

Justice Potter Stewart, dissenting for himself and Justice William H. Rehnquist, said the law prohibits only the receipt of firearms or ammunition "as part of an interstate transaction."

In other decisions, the court:

— Ruled 5 to 3 that the Internal Revenue Service must issue a notice of deficiency before attempting to collect income taxes in midyear from persons it suspects may flee the country or otherwise evade their taxes. Unless a deficiency notice is issued, the court said, the taxpayer can sue to prevent the IRS from collecting.

—Ruled 8 to 0 that a corporation cannot recover profits made by an investor in less than a six-month period unless the investor owned more than 10 per cent of the corporation before he bought the securities on which he made a profit.

Unless he did, said the court, he was not in a position to profit from inside information, so the recovery law should not apply.

Justice John Paul Stevens did not take part in any of the decisions, since the cases were argued before he became a member of the court on Dec. 19.

Cyclamate Not Accorded Totally Clean Bill Of Health

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government-appointed panel concluded Tuesday that there is no evidence that the artificial sweetener cyclamate causes cancer in animals, but the scientists stopped short of giving the sugar substitute a totally clean bill of health.

Climaxing an intensive six-month review, the final report from the six scientists will be submitted within the next two to three weeks to the director of the National Cancer Institute.

From there, it will be transmitted to the Food and Drug Administration which must decide whether to lift the ban clamped on cyclamate in 1969 when a question of whether it causes cancer was raised.

Abbott Laboratories, which had asked for permission to resume marketing cyclamate, said the panel's conclusion had removed the last roadblock and that there was no longer any reason for the FDA to withhold approval.

"Now that the cancer issue has been disposed of . . . the issuance of a food additive order on cyclamate should proceed promptly," said Abbott vice president Richard W. Kasperson. "We see no valid scientific reason for the FDA to delay further."

The six scientists from some of the nation's largest universities said that, while 20 animl feeding studies conducted around the world had failed to establish the cancer-causing property of cyclamate, no conclusions could be reached on the sweetener's potential carcinogenicity in humans.

The committee said that under the present limitations of science and evidence gathered in several cyclamate studies, it could say only in 95 per cent probability that the substance, 30 to 50 times sweeter than sugar, does not cause cancer, but that there is a nagging doubt over whether it may be a weak carcinogen.

The panel chairman, Dr. Arnold L. Brown of Mayo Medical School, said, "Science today just is not good enough to answer this question to everyone's satisfaction."

Morton To Advise Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has named Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton to a White House advisory job described as including incidental political duties.

Morton's main duties will be as counselor to the President on economic and domestic policy, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Tuesday in announcing the appointment to the position at a $44,600 a year salary.

Morton, 61, was chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1969-71. There had been reports that he would become a chief political adviser for Ford's campaign this year.

Nessen told reporters that Morton would have "incidental duties as liaison with the President Ford Committee and the Republican National Committee."

Nessen emphasized that Howard B. Callaway will continue to run Ford's election campaign and that Callaway has the President's "full confidence and support."

Morton was recruited, according to Nessen, because the President wanted to avail himself of Morton's expertise on domestic and economic policy as a former congressman and secretary of both the interior and commerce departments.

These two policy areas would be Morton's "substantive duties" Nessen said.

Morton, however, will be able to relieve Ford's chief of staff Richard Cheney and Robert Hartmann, who heads the speech writing staff, of their day-to-day political duties. But along with Morton, they will still be available as political advisers, Nessen said.

Morton will take over his new job later this week, occupying a recently refurbished Executive Office Building suite that President Richard M. Nixon used as his private working office.

Morton's commerce job will be filed temporarily by a deputy, Nessen said, until his successor, Elliot L. Richardson, can take over.

Amtrak Alters Pet Policy

Washington (AP) — Amtrak announced it will not allow pets in any passenger areas of its trains after Feb. 14 but will continue to carry them inside baggage cars.

The corporation has been allowing first class passengers to keep their pets with them in parlor cars and sleeping car roomettes. However, Amtrak said numerous complaints by passengers led it to change this policy.

Amtrak said pets would be carried in baggage cars only if the animals were inside secure, well-ventilated containers. Pets will not be allowed aboard trains that do not have baggage cars and will not be loaded or unloaded at stations that do not handle checked baggage.

Most of Amtrak's short-haul trains, including the Metroliners and the new Amfleet cars, have no baggage cars and thus no accommodations for pets.

Cockfighting Penalties Bill Sent On To Final Reading

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Cockfighting may soon be a thing of the past in Nebraska.

The Legislature Tuesday took tentative steps to effectively outlaw the practice by proposing major legal penalties for both the owners of fighting gamecocks and the spectators at cockfights.

Sent on its way to final reading on a 29-11 vote was an amended bill designed to wipe out what Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha described as "this barbarous practice."

Cockfighting is illegal in Nebraska now, but the only penalty is a $30 fine against the owners or trainers of gamecocks.

That represents "a $30 licensing fee," Chambers said.

The new proposal, contained in LB674, would increase that penalty to a fine of $500 to $1,000 for the first offense, and a fine of $1,000 to $1,500 or a possible 30-day jail sentence, or both, for subsequent offenses.

And spectators could be fined between $25 and $100.

Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha originally proposed the increased penalty for cockfighting, but said the bill amended by the Judiciary Committee with Chambers' assistance was an improved measure.

Other Matches Banned

It also outlaws similar matches between dogs, bulls, bears or other animals.

Chambers gained 29-0 adoption of an amendment specifically exempting from the bill hunting practices, rodeos or raising animals for show.

Some senators had feared that LB674 might prohibit the use of hunting dogs to track or catch other animals.

Cockfighting, Chambers said, causes "great pain and suffering to animals," resulting in a "brutalization of society."

Children are taught that it is "noble and proper to train animals to kill one another" rather than a sensitivity to "all God's living creatures," he said.

"They call it a sport," he said.

Gambling Involved

But it is used as a gambling device, he noted.

When the bill received its public hearing last year, Chambers said, it was opposed by "a motley group of individuals."

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh had filed a motion to kill the bill, but he was not present to argue his case Tuesday.

The bill jumped its second of three floor hurdles on a 29-11 roll call vote, with Lancaster County's six-member delegation split down the middle.

Voting to advance were Sens. Steve Fowler, Roland Luedtke and Shirley Marsh, all of Lincoln.

Opposition votes were cast by Sens. Wally Barnett and Harold Simpson, both of Lincoln, and Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

Personal Property Tax Said Still Unfair Burden

The principle that the personal property tax is unfair because it taxes the tools of production is still valid, the president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation said Tuesday.

Wendell Gangwish of Wood River was responding to a possible legislative proposal that, he said, would cripple the personal property tax exemption law and produce an unnecessary rural-urban conflict.

State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue has said he is considering introduction of a bill to freeze or eliminate such tax exemptions. Current law will reduce by 62½% the personal property taxes for agriculture and business by 1977.

Gangwish said the issue was fought out in 1970 when it was added to the Nebraska Constitution by public vote and when it survived Gov. J. James Exon's veto in 1972.

He noted that most Nebraska taxpayers have not paid a personal property tax since 1967.

Panel To Introduce 8 Proposals

By The Associated Press

The Unicameral's Judiciary Committee voted Tuesday to introduce eight bills, among them a pair of crime compensation measures.

The crime compensation bills would have the state pay claims of up to $10,000 for injury or death stemming from crimes of violence, and provide for restitution by offenders in lieu of jail terms in property loss offenses.

A bill on marriage would lower the allowable age to 17 for males if parents agree. The state now allows marriage at 16 for girls if the parents agree, but bars it for boys until 18.

Among other bills were a pair to ban discrimination, one targeting housing discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status and the other regarding employment if the discrimination is on the basis of marital status.

The committee also decided to introduce a bill setting up a division in the Justice Department that would aid county attorneys on cases. The attorney general already offers such help, but wants a bill to bolster his program.

Among bills that couldn't garner enough support for introduction was a proposed amendment to the state constitution that would allow judges to deny bailable offenses if they determined that accused persons were dangerous to society.

Another would increase the number of municipal judges allowed in Omaha to 11 and in Lincoln to five. Law now allows nine and four, respectively.

Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke, chairman of the committee, said he believes enough support can be found later to get the panel to introduce the bill increasing the number of municipal judges.

Wheel Tax Legislation Is Introduced

Legislation that would allow counties to impose a wheel tax was introduced Tuesday by State Sen. William Nichol of Scottsbluff.

Nichol said he offered LB740 on behalf of the County Officials Association. The bill would provide counties the option of raising revenue by other than the property tax. Several counties are at or near their mill levy maximum.

Nichol's bill would allow 91 counties to charge a registration fee for vehicles owned or used there. The two Nebraska counties left out, Douglas and Lancaster, are the state's largest population centers.

Omaha and Lincoln, the cities in those two counties, already have registration fees for vehicles in effect.

Nichol noted that technically the fee called for in his bill couldn't be called a wheel tax in the statute, but amounts to the same thing.

No amount is specified in the bill, leaving both imposition of the fee and how much it should be to county officials.

Revenue from the optional fee, however, is earmarked in the bill. It would have to be used to upgrade county roads and bridges.

Senator Wants Label To Give Origin

By United Press International

State Sen. Tom Fitzgerald of Omaha wants to know where his suits are made and Utica Sen. Douglas Bereuter says that tax money should stay where it was intended.

As a result, both men have introduced bills in the Legislature.

Fitzgerald has offered LB732 to his colleagues suggesting that foreign-made products be so designated in any advertising done by retail outlets.

Although the bill would cover all foreign-made products, the Omaha lawmaker said the whole thing started when he discovered that two suits he bought were made in Korea.

Label Hidden

"Oh, they're good suits," Fitzgerald said. But what he didn't like was that the label telling him where they were made was hidden inside an inner pocket.

"I've been labor-oriented all my life," the senator said, "and I always buy American products."

Except, he noted, in the case of his two suits.

America First

The lawmaker's rational for his bill is simple:

"Let's support our own country first. We should keep our own workers working before we worry about some other country."

On taxes, Lincoln, Omaha and now Bellevue levy city sales taxes.

The problem, according to Bereuter, is the three communities aren't allowed to keep all of the money collected as a result of that levy. The State Revenue Department now collects a 3% fee. His LB726 would knock that down to 1%.

"I think it's a money maker" for the Revenue Department, Bereuter said.

'Fee Too Large'

"My feeling is that the Revenue Department is charging the three cities too large a fee for a function that is largely automated and therefore inexpensive," he said, adding if the department disagrees with him, he'd certainly like to hear about it when the bill comes up for hearing.

In terms of tax collections, Bereuter has already compiled the latest available statistics. He said they came from the communities themselves and not the Revenue Department.

In Bellevue's case, the figures are as yet projections because of the newness of the city sales tax there.

The City of Lincoln now collects some $5,776,000 a year in gross sales tax revenue, Omaha collects $12,940,862 and Bellevue expects about $750,000.

Bereuter said if his bill is passed, Lincoln would realize $115,000 in savings, Omaha's share would be $260,000 and Bellevue's share would be $15,000 plus.

"It's their money and I think they should keep it unless there's a good reason why they shouldn't," Bereuter said.

Under Bereuter's bill, any collection fees the Revenue Department gets would go into the state general fund. The money now goes into a Revenue Department cash fund.

Gas Utilities Regulation Bill Ready

By The Associated Press

Legislation that would transfer regulatory and rate-setting powers over gas utilities to the Public Service Commission is drafted and ready for Unicameral introduction.

State Sen. John DeCamp said Tuesday he will offer the measure if he can determine whether the Nebraska League of Municipalities will give it support.

DeCamp said that informal meetings with some city officials from across the state produced support, but he is uncertain what the official stand of the league would be.

"Do enough cities think they want it or not?" DeCamp mused. He said that question probably hinges on whether benefits regarding natural and other gas rate levels would outweigh the massive change involved in abandoning city regulation.

The bill exempts city-owned gas utilities from commission regulation.

The bill not only transfers rate analysis and setting powers to the state agency regulating other utilities, but also provides for the gas utilities to bear the cost of rate analysis by the commission in such cases.

Gas utilities would be assessed at the rate of one-fifth of one per cent on their gross operating revenues to fund rate review work by the commission.

Cockfighting Penalties Bill Sent On To Final Reading

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Cockfighting may soon be a thing of the past in Nebraska.

The Legislature Tuesday took tentative steps to effectively outlaw the practice by proposing major legal penalties for both the owners of fighting gamecocks and the spectators at cockfights.

Sent on its way to final reading on a 29-11 vote was an amended bill designed to wipe out what Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha described as "this barbarous practice."

Cockfighting is illegal in Nebraska now, but the only penalty is a $20 fine against the owners or trainers of gamecocks.

That represents "a $20 licensing fee," Chambers said.

The new proposal, contained in LB574, would increase that penalty to a fine of $500 to $1,000 for the first offense, and a fine of $1,000 to $1,500 or a possible 30-day jail sentence, or both, for subsequent offenses.

And spectators could be fined between $25 and $100.

Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha originally proposed the increased penalty for cockfighting, but said the bill amended by the Judiciary Committee with Chambers' assistance was an improved measure.

Other Matches Banned

It also outlaws similar matches between dogs, bulls, bears or other animals.

Chambers gained 29-0 adoption of an amendment specifically exempting from the bill hunting practices, rodeos or raising animals for show.

Some senators had feared that LB574 might prohibit the use of hunting dogs to track or catch other animals.

Cockfighting, Chambers said, causes "great pain and suffering to animals," resulting in a "brutalization of society."

Children are taught that it is "noble and proper to train animals to kill one another" rather than a sensitivity to "all God's living creatures," he said.

"They call it a sport," he said.

Gambling Involved

But it is used as a gambling device, he noted.

When the bill received its public hearing last year, Chambers said, it was opposed by "a motley group of individuals."

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh had filed a motion to kill the bill, but he was not present to argue his case Tuesday.

The bill jumped its second of three floor hurdles on a 29-11 roll call vote, with Lancaster County's six-member delegation split down the middle.

Voting to advance were Sens. Steve Fowler, Roland Luedtke and Shirley Marsh, all of Lincoln.

Opposition votes were cast by Sens. Wally Barnett and Harold Simpson, both of Lincoln, and Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly.

Personal Property Tax Said Still Unfair Burden

The principle that the personal property tax is unfair because it taxes the tools of production is still valid, the president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation said Tuesday.

Wendell Gangwish of Wood River was responding to a possible legislative proposal that, he said, would cripple the personal property tax exemption law and produce an unnecessary rural-urban conflict.

State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue has said he is considering introduction of a bill to freeze or eliminate such tax exemptions. Current law will reduce by 62½% the personal property taxes for agriculture and business by 1977.

Gangwish said the issue was fought out in 1970 when it was added to the Nebraska Constitution by public vote and when it survived Gov. J. James Exon's veto in 1972.

He noted that most Nebraska taxpayers have not paid a personal property tax since 1967.

Panel To Introduce 8 Proposals

By The Associated Press

The Unicameral's Judiciary Committee voted Tuesday to introduce eight bills, among them a pair of crime compensation measures.

The crime compensation bills would have the state pay claims of up to $10,000 for injury or death stemming from crimes of violence, and provide for restitution by offenders in lieu of jail terms in property loss offenses.

A bill on marriage would lower the allowable age to 17 for males if parents agree. The state now allows marriage at 16 for girls if the parents agree, but bars it for boys until 18.

Among other bills were a pair to ban discrimination, one targeting housing discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status and the other regarding employment if the discrimination is on the basis of marital status.

The committee also decided to introduce a bill setting up a division in the Justice Department that would aid county attorneys on cases. The attorney general already offers such help, but wants a bill to bolster his program.

Among bills that couldn't garner enough support for introduction was a proposed amendment to the state constitution that would allow judges to deny bailable offenses if they determined that accused persons were dangerous to society.

Another would increase the number of municipal judges allowed in Omaha to 11 and in Lincoln to five. Law now allows nine and four, respectively.

Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke, chairman of the committee, said he believes enough support can be found later to get the panel to introduce the bill increasing the number of municipal judges.

Parent Group To Education Board: Take MACOS And Chuck It

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

An informal parent group Tuesday condemned the Lincoln Public Schools approach to student personal-social growth programs, and asked the Board of Education to isolate them from the curriculum or offer them in alternative schools.

In a related action, freshman board member La Pansing decried "Man: A Course of Study" (MACOS) as being insensitive to possible effects on "children's emotional development and needs."

"I have some very strong reservations" about continuing to offer MACOS, Mrs. Pansing said. Declaring herself a maverick to pressures, she said that the board should present a "united front" on the course. She did not elaborate.

Other Objections Made

MACOS is only one of the objections raised by Mrs. Thomas E. Chadwell, 3934 S. 17th, who spoke for the parent group. She presented a statement signed by herself and her husband, and by Mr. and Mrs. Lorance H. Newburn II, 7841 Garland.

"We'd like to see you (school board) take all this material and chuck it," Mrs. Chadwell said of MACOS, Transactional Analysis, "Breakthru," Kaleidoscope Capers, Life and Death series, situation ethics, cultural awareness, informal psychological testing and a continuing list that is "salt-and-peppered throughout the curriculum."

But wholesale elimination of programs and materials would affect budgets, jobs and reputations, Mrs. Chadwell said, noting she recognizes too that it's "not my right to deny them to anyone else, either," who wants that kind of schooling for his children.

Alternatives Sought

Thus, she sought "partial elimination," such as isolating courses, offering alternates, or placing personal-social growth programs at the beginning or end of the school day. The group proposed a third choice, alternate schools for such projects, at elementary, junior and senior high levels.

The group contends schools are "undermining" and "trespassing" on parental rights by "taking over" their traditional responsibilities in forming children's personalities, religious beliefs, morals and values, Mrs. Chadwell said.

The companion result, she said, is neglect of teaching fundamental facts and knowledge, respect for authority and love of country.

The theme of the parents' objections is opposition to schools trying to "help children find out who they are.

"It is our position that the problem of who and what an individual is cannot possibly be dealt with apart from who and what God is," she said, "and that is strictly parental property."

'Up To Parents'

Mrs. Chadwell noted the parents aren't calling for a return strictly to old-fashioned basics. But "it is up to the parents, not the schools, to decide which parts of a child's total education will be handled in the schools."

While "many parents are not fulfilling" those obligations, Mrs. Chadwell said, that shouldn't "remove the right to do so from those of us who are . . .

"We are not afraid to have (children) taught how to think," Mrs. Chadwell said, but personal-social growth infusion in classes is "teaching them what to think."

Mrs. Pansing too made the same observation, pointing out that students are a "captive audience."

In denouncing MACOS, Mrs. Pansing said she was voicing criticism by "many parents and some teachers," after she had read "all the MACOS materials" and spent "months thoroughly studying" it, as well as consulting "experts."

Violence Decried

Mrs. Pansing said the MACOS written materials are "replete with violence which our sixth-grade children are asked to role-play." She read aloud, at length, excerpts from a stack of MACOS books, describing murder, cannibalism, senilicide, child abuse, suicide, killing newborn girls, and "unusual sexual practices" such as wife-stealing, wife-swapping, trial marriages and adultery.

Mrs. Pansing acknowledged that children "must judge other cultures," but she said "not once in this course" do teachers point out that practices studied are "crimes in our own society."

Her presentation drew applause from a full gallery. Board President Louis Roper said the board will review "both sides" of MACOS at an 8 a.m. work session Jan. 20 in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 20th.

Roper scheduled action at the regular board meeting Jan. 27 on personal-social development practices, termed "reasonable and proper" by Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

No Measles Shot? School's Out

Children with no record of immunizations against measles will be kept out of the Lincoln Public Schools until the threat of an epidemic passes, Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday.

"I think this could be up to 750 to 1,000 youngsters that we're talking about," said Helen E. Weber, health services superviser for the school district. Families will be contacted, she and Prasch told the Board of Education.

Prasch said seven rubeola (red) measles cases have been reported, for two Lincoln Public Schools students, and five preschool and parochial school youngsters.

"It only takes one case of measles to create an epidemic," Prasch said. Mrs. Weber warned that a Hartley School student was recently sent home with a temperature of 103 degrees.

"The threat right now is at the elementary level," she said. School administrators are zeroing in on children with no shot record on file.

Hardship Ackowledged

Prasch acknowledged that barring those students from classes "will work a hardship on some folks," but the records must be updated. He said the emergency threat should last only seven to 10 days, unless new cases are reported meantime.

"Measles is not a disease to be taken lightly," Mrs. Weber said, explaining body temperatures can reach 105 degrees, and one effect can be hearing loss.

A nurse, Mrs. Weber said she has met with health officials and pediatricians, who are particularly worried that measles vaccines given children between 1962 and 1968 may have been insufficiently effective. She recommended updating, noting there is a "5% failure" even in the best vaccines.

Public officials, she said, advocate regular mass immunizations at schools, but doctors oppose that, pointing out the law already requires shots through age 12.

Shots Pushed

The district has pushed them for kindergarten through 3rd grade; 98.2% have had shots, only 32 students have not. But in grades 4 through 6, she said the process has "fallen down."

In another report, board members heard Joseph P. Rowson, district lobbyist and information head, explain that LB493, a 1975 law, failed to exempt the Lincoln Public Schools from the mandate to award automatic tenure to teachers upon hiring.

Lincoln requires a three-year probationary period, supported by the board and the Lincoln Education Association (LEA) of teachers. Rowson said LB493 appears to conflict with an earlier, more detailed law still on the books, to which the 1975 measure "would not stand up."

May Seek Amendment

Rowson said the district might ask Lincoln state senators to sponsor an amendment to exempt it from discarding teacher probationary requirements.

In other business, the board:

—Heard Prasch announce that, beginning second semester, Hartley, Mickle, Northeast High and Lincoln High will become "special help" centers for Vietnamese refugee students, a total of 81 who may transfer to the centers voluntarily. Transportation will be provided. The district has applied for federal funds available at $300 each to subsidize special refugee needs.

—Commended retiring Lincoln High Principal Bill Boger for outstanding service.

—Recognized the LEA to represent teachers and school staff, except administrators, in collective bargaining; and provided for three principals to sit on the board contract negotiations team of top administrators, reviving participation which was dropped last year.

—Deferred action on the 1976-77 school calendar, after board members objected to the proposed two-week Christmas vacation as too long.

—Approved bids to buy with trade-ins new 78-passenger and 48-passenger buses from Misle Chevrolet for a total of $41,740.

—Awarded a $9,307 bid to Anderson Fire Equipment Co. of Omaha for a district-wide snow and tornado warning monitor communications system.

—Awarded bids totaling $32,202 to eight firms for Lincoln Northeast High shop addition equipment.

—Heard Youth Service System officials ask school help in community coordination to serve disoriented children's needs. YSS now helps runaway youths continue their studies.

—Exempted the Salvation Army from paying fees for any school building use.

New School Boundaries Drawn Up

The Lincoln Board of Education drew new boundary lines Tuesday, putting some homes in different zones for school building attendance.

The unanimous action came after months of discussion and public comment. Revisions are intended to respond to current and future residential development and population shifts.

Boundaries for eight schools remain unchanged. Others, designed to recognize land use changes or natural barries (such as railroad tracks), will affect no children.

Board members directed the public schools administration to write official descriptions of the revised boundaries. When they are ratified, the board will then set the effective date, tentatively planned for September.

The board also "closed" five schools to transfer students. That means the buildings are at capacity, and no applications to transfer in from other attendance zones will be accepted. The schools are West Lincoln Elementary, Irving Junior High, East Junior High, East Senior High and Southeast High.

Supt. John Prasch said the revisions are intended to "simplify lines as much as possible" for the public, in a year when few buildings are closed to transfer students; that is, students have a wide choice and likely approval to attend schools distant from their homes.

And transporting more students past some walk-in-only zones will allow the district the best use of now-under-used buildings, Prasch said.

The superintendent in earlier deliberations had noted that boundary changes are often controversial, producing lively community debate. But the revision talk Tuesday put one man in the audience to sleep, his head leaning far back, then waking himself with a start by his own deep, raspy breathing.

Schools whose boundaries will remain unchanged include Bethany, Brownell, Elliott, Hartley, Kahoa, Pyrtle, Randolph and Zeman.

New boundaries for school buildings include:

Beattie Elementary: Change to reflect new boundaries for new Hill School, using Hwy.2 as a south division line

Belmont: Change to place west line on I-180, north line at Superior, and east boundary at the line which describes a walk-in area. This leaves a zone to the north and east, which will be a transportation area to McPhee.

Calvert: Change to exclude area bounded by 52nd Street, College View Academy property line, Calvert Street and city park. This area will be added to Holmes zone. All children now in Calvert will be allowed to stay, and transportation will be provided to both schools from this area.

Havelock: Change north line to Burlington Northern R.R. tracks. This leaves a rural area north of the tracks to be included in the Huntington zone, for which there are already transportation routes established.

Hawthorne: Change north boundary to O Street.

Hill: Starting with the outside district boundary and Pioneers Blvd., eastward on Pioneers and Hwy. 2 to 33rd, south on 33rd extended to district edge, west and north on outside fringe to Pioneers.

Holmes: Change south line to match Calvert description, east line to exclude Manor Court, and Hawthorne boundary to match Lincoln High-East High dividing line.

Huntington: Change north boundary to include all areas between C&NW R.R. track and east edge of district which lies north of Cornhusker Hwy. Busing from north of Cornhusker is already available to Huntington; this change avoids necessity of establishing routes to other schools if this area develops.

McPhee: Absorb old Hayward area using Salt Creek as west boundary; includes areas north of West Lincoln School walk-in distances, and north and east of Belmont School walk-in distance. This assures continued McPhee enrollment and relief for crowding at West Lincoln and Belmont.

Morley: Change to include Manor Court and use Antelope Creek rather than Van Dorn as a boundary. Thirteen children are involved, all already attending Morley.

Norwood Park: Change north and south lines to use railroad tracks. This puts new development next to Mahoney Park into the Pershing School area.

Pershing: Change east boundary from 70th Street to the east line of the district between the Rock Island R.R. tracks and Adams Street.

Prescott: Match existing high school boundary on south side. This avoids forcing students out of Southeast High but accomplishes the same purpose of simplifying lines.

Riley: Change south line to O Street.

Rousseau: Change south boundary to match Hill edge.

Saratoga: Change west boundary to Salt Creek

West Lincoln: Change south and east lines to use Salt Creek and I-180 as dividing lines and establish Adams Street as the north boundary. The school becomes strictly walk-in.

Culler Junior: Set the boundary to coincide with the Riley-Brownell dividing line between Garland and Holdrege Streets. Extend line on Holdrege into non-district area. Nine students are involved, but both schools are open to transfers.

Dawes: Match Havelock and Norwood Park Schools boundaries as dividing line with Mickle; involves 29 students, but both schools are open to transfers.

Everett: Match Everett and Park Schools lines on the north side and include all non-district area west of the UP R.R. and south of the Goodrich line.

Irving: Extend east boundary from Van Dorn southward along the edge of the district and continuing into non-district area on lines between the UP tracks and 27th Street.

Lefler: Match Holmes-Calvert change.

Mickle: Match Pershing, Havelock and Norwood Park changes, and extend boundaries into non-district area between C&RI tracks and Holdrege Street.

Pound: Match Calvert-Holmes change, extend boundaries into non-district area along Antelope Creek and 27th Street.

Whittier: Change south line to include all of Elliott area, match northern boundary to Belmont line. This permits children in Prescott on transfer to enter Irving if they live in this area.

Lincoln High-Northeast High: Adjust boundary to use C&NW track instead of 33rd Street north of Cornhusker, match Culler-Whittier line in Hartley area and O Street in Riley area.

East High-Lincoln High: Change line from 52nd to 50th Street between Randolph and Valley Road.

Boundary changes approved which will affect no children include:

Arnold Elementary: Change east line to use the interstate highway and the Union Pacific tracks, replacing an imaginary line through the airport.

Clinton: Change north line to match Whittier boundary.

Lake View: Change east boundary to Salt Creek.

Meadow Lane: Match junior and senior high lines in southwest corner.

Park: Change west line to Salt Creek, and north line to O Street.

Sheridan: Change southwest corner to match Prescott revision; since both schools are open to transfer, no students will be forced to change.

Goodrich Junior: Match Belmont boundary at Salt Creek. Change east line to Chicago & Northwestern R.R. instead of 33rd Street.

Northeast High-East High: No change, except to extend line south on 84th Street and then east into non-district area on O Street.

East High-Southeast High: No change, except to extend boundary in non-district area on line of Antelope Creek.

Southeast High-Lincoln High: No change, except to extend line into non-district area on UP R.R.

Parent Group To Education Board: Take MACOS And Chuck It

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

An informal parent group Tuesday condemned the Lincoln Public Schools approach to student personal-social growth programs, and asked the Board of Education to isolate them from the curriculum or offer them in alternative schools.

In a related action, freshman board member Lu Pansing decried "Man: A Course of Study" (MACOS) as being insensitive to possible effects on "children's emotional development and needs."

"I have some very strong reservations" about continuing to offer MACOS, Mrs. Pansing said. Declaring herself a maverick to pressures, she said that the board should present a "united front" on the course. She did not elaborate.

Other Objections Made

MACOS is only one of the objections raised by Mrs. Thomas E. Chadwell, 3934 S. 17th, who spoke for the parent group. She presented a statement signed by herself and her husband, and by Mr. and Mrs. Lorance H. Newburn II, 7341 Garland.

"We'd like to see you (school board) take all this material and chuck it," Mrs. Chadwell said of MACOS, Transactional Analysis, "Breakthru," Kaleidoscope Capers, Life and Death series, situation ethics, cultural awareness, informal psychological testing and a continuing list that is "salt-and-peppered throughout the curriculum."

But wholesale elimination of programs and materials would affect budgets, jobs and reputations, Mrs. Chadwell said, noting she recognizes too that it's "not my right to deny them to anyone else, either," who wants that kind of schooling for his children.

Alternatives Sought

Thus, she sought "partial elimination," such as isolating courses, offering alternates, or placing personal-social growth programs at the beginning or end of the school day. The group proposed a third choice, alternate schools for such projects, at elementary, junior and senior high levels.

The group contends schools are "undermining" and "trespassing" on parental rights by "taking over" their traditional responsibilities in forming children's personalities, religious beliefs, morals and values, Mrs. Chadwell said.

The companion result, she said, is neglect of teaching fundamental facts and knowledge, respect for authority and love of country.

The theme of the parents' objections is opposition to schools trying to "help children find out who they are.

'Up To Parents'

Mrs. Chadwell noted the parents aren't calling for a return strictly to old-fashioned basics. But "it is up to the parents, not the schools, to decide which parts of a child's total education will be handled in the schools."

While "many parents are not fulfilling" those obligations, Mrs. Chadwell said, that shouldn't "remove the right to do so from those of us who are . . .

"We are not afraid to have (children) taught how to think," Mrs. Chadwell said, but personal-social growth infusion in classes is "teaching them what to think."

Mrs. Pansing too made the same observation, pointing out that students are a "captive audience."

In denouncing MACOS, Mrs. Pansing said she was voicing criticism by "many parents and some teachers," after she had read "all the MACOS materials" and spent "months thoroughly studying" it, as well as consulting "experts."

Violence Decried

Mrs. Pansing said the MACOS written materials are "replete with violence which our sixth-grade children are asked to role-play." She read aloud, at length, excerpts from a stack of MACOS books, describing murder, cannibalism, senilicide, child abuse, suicide, killing newborn girls, and "unusual sexual practices" such as wife-stealing, wife-swapping, trial marriages and adultery.

Mrs. Pansing acknowledged that children "must judge other cultures," but she said "not once in this course" do teachers point out that practices studied are "crimes in our own society."

Her presentation drew applause from a full gallery. Board President Louis Roper said the board will review "both sides" of MACOS at an 8 a.m. work session Jan. 20 in the Public Schools Administration Building, 720 S. 20th.

Roper scheduled action at the regular board meeting Jan. 27 on personal-social development practices, termed "reasonable and proper" by Ron Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction.

No Measles Shot? School's Out

Children with no record of immunizations against measles will be kept out of the Lincoln Public Schools until the threat of an epidemic passes, Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday.

"I think this could be up to 750 to 1,000 youngsters that we're talking about," said Helen E. Weber, health services superviser for the school district. Families will be contacted, she and Prasch told the Board of Education.

Prasch said seven rubeola (red) measles cases have been reported, for two Lincoln Public Schools students, and five preschool and parochial school youngsters.

"It only takes one case of measles to create an epidemic," Prasch said. Mrs. Weber warned that a Hartley School student was recently sent home with a temperature of 103 degrees.

"The threat right now is at the elementary level," she said. School administrators are zeroing in on children with no shot record on file.

Hardship Ackowledged

Prasch acknowledged that barring those students from classes "will work a hardship on some folks," but the records must be updated. He said the emergency threat should last only seven to 10 days, unless new cases are reported meantime.

"Measles is not a disease to be taken lightly," Mrs. Weber said, explaining body temperatures can reach 105 degrees, and one effect can be hearing loss.

A nurse, Mrs. Weber said she has met with health officials and pediatricians, who are particularly worried that measles vaccines given children between 1962 and 1968 may have been insufficiently effective. She recommended updating, noting there is a "5% failure" even in the best vaccines.

Public officials, she said, advocate regular mass immunizations at schools, but doctors oppose that, pointing out the law already requires shots through age 12.

Shots Pushed

The district has pushed them for kindergarten through 3rd grade; 98.2% have had shots, only 32 students have not. But in grades 4 through 6, she said the process has "fallen down."

In another report, board members heard Joseph P. Rowson, district lobbyist and information head, explain that LB493, a 1975 law, failed to exempt the Lincoln Public Schools from the mandate to award automatic tenure to teachers upon hiring.

Lincoln requires a three-year probationary period, supported by the board and the Lincoln Education Association (LEA) of teachers. Rowson said LB493 appears to conflict with an earlier, more detailed law still on the books, to which the 1975 measure "would not stand up."

May Seek Amendment

Rowson said the district might ask Lincoln state senators to sponsor an amendment to exempt it from discarding teacher probationary requirements.

In other business, the board:

—Heard Prasch announce that, beginning second semester, Hartley, Mickle, Northeast High and Lincoln High will become "special help" centers for Vietnamese refugee students. a total of 81 who may transfer to the centers voluntarily. Transportation will be provided. The district has applied for federal funds available at $300 each to subsidize special refugee needs.

—Commended retiring Lincoln High Principal Bill Bogar for outstanding service.

—Recognized the LEA to represent teachers and school staff, except administrators, in collective bargaining; and provided for three principals to sit on the board contract negotiations team of top administrators, reviving participation which was dropped last year.

—Deferred action on the 1976-77 school calendar, after board members objected to the proposed two-week Christmas vacation as too long.

—Approved bids to buy with trade-ins new 78-passenger and 48-passenger buses from Misle Chevrolet for a total of $41,740.

—Awarded a $9,307 bid to Anderson Fire Equipment Co. of Omaha for a district-wide snow and tornado warning monitor communications system.

—Awarded bids totaling $32,202 to eight firms for Lincoln Northeast High shop addition equipment.

—Heard Youth Service System officials ask school help in community coordination to serve disoriented children's needs. YSS now helps runaway youths continue their studies.

—Exempted the Salvation Army from paying fees for any school building use.

New School Boundaries Drawn Up

The Lincoln Board of Education drew new boundary lines Tuesday, putting some homes in different zones for school building attendance.

The unanimous action came after months of discussion and public comment. Revisions are intended to respond to current and future residential development and population shifts.

Boundaries for eight schools remain unchanged. Others, designed to recognize land use changes or natural barries (such as railroad tracks), will affect no children.

Board members directed the public schools administration to write official descriptions of the revised boundaries. When they are ratified, the board will then set the effective date, tentatively planned for September.

The board also "closed" five schools to transfer students. That means the buildings are at capacity, and no applications to transfer in from other attendance zones will be accepted. The schools are West Lincoln Elementary, Irving Junior High, East Junior High, East Senior High and Southeast High.

Supt. John Prasch said the revisions are intended to "simplify lines as much as possible" for the public, in a year when few buildings are closed to transfer students; that is, students have a wide choice and likely approval to attend schools distant from their homes.

And transporting more students past some walk-in-only zones will allow the district the best use of now-under-used buildings, Prasch said.

The superintendent in earlier deliberations had noted that boundary changes are often controversial, producing lively community debate. But the revision talk Tuesday put one man in the audience to sleep, his head leaning far back, then waking himself with a start by his own deep, raspy breathing.

Schools whose boundaries will remain unchanged include Bethany, Brownell, Elliott, Hartley, Kahoa, Pyrtle, Randolph and Zeman.

New boundaries for school buildings include:

Beattie Elementary: Change to reflect new boundaries for new Hill School, using Hwy.2 as a south division line.

Belmont: Change to place west line on I-180, north line at Superior, and east boundary at the line which describes a walk-in area. This leaves a zone to the north and east, which will be a transportation area to McPhee.

Calvert: Change to exclude area bounded by 52nd Street, College View Academy property line, Calvert Street and city park. This area will be added to Holmes zone. All children now in Calvert will be allowed to stay, and transportation will be provided to both schools from this area.

Havelock: Change north line to Burlington Northern R.R. tracks. This leaves a rural area north of the tracks to be included in the Huntington zone, for which there are already transportation routes established.

Hawthorne: Change north boundary to O Street.

Hill: Starting with the outside district boundary and Pioneers Blvd., eastward on Pioneers and Hwy. 2 to 33rd, south on 33rd extended to district edge, west and north on outside fringe to Pioneers.

Holmes: Change south line to match Calvert description, east line to exclude Manor Court, and Hawthorne boundary to match Lincoln High-East High dividing line.

Huntington: Change north boundary to include all areas between C&NW R.R. track and east edge of district which lies north of Cornhusker Hwy. Busing from north of Cornhusker is already available to Huntington; this change avoids necessity of establishing routes to other schools if this area develops.

McPhee: Absorb old Hayward area using Salt Creek as west boundary; includes areas north of West Lincoln School walk-in distances, and north and east of Belmont School walk-in distance. This assures continued McPhee enrollment and relief for crowding at West Lincoln and Belmont.

Morley: Change to include Manor Court and use Antelope Creek rather than Van Dorn as a boundary. Thirteen children are involved, all already attending Morley.

Norwood Park: Change north and south lines to use railroad tracks. This puts new development next to Mahoney Park into the Pershing School area.

Pershing: Change east boundary from 70th Street to the east line of the district between the Rock Island R.R. tracks and Adams Street.

Prescott: Match existing high school boundary on south side. This avoids forcing students out of Southeast High but accomplishes the same purpose of simplifying lines.

Riley: Change south line to O Street.

Rousseau: Change south boundary to match Hill edge.

Saratoga: Change west boundary to Salt Creek

West Lincoln: Change south and east lines to use Salt Creek and I-180 as dividing lines and establish Adams Street as the north boundary. The school becomes strictly walk-in.

Culler Junior: Set the boundary to coincide with the Riley-Brownell dividing line between Garland and Holdrege Streets. Extend line on Holdrege into non-district area. Nine students are involved, but both schools are open to transfers.

Dawes: Match Havelock and Norwood Park Schools boundaries as dividing line with Mickle; involves 29 students, but both schools are open to transfers.

Everett: Match Everett and Park Schools lines on the north side and include all non-district area west of the UP R.R. and south of the Goodrich line.

Irving: Extend east boundary from Van Dorn southward along the edge of the district and continuing into non-district area on lines between the UP tracks and 27th Street.

Lefler: Match Holmes-Calvert change.

Mickle: Match Pershing, Havelock and Norwood Park changes, and extend boundaries into non-district area between C&RI tracks and Holdrege Street.

Pound: Match Calvert-Holmes change, extend boundaries into non-district area along Antelope Creek and 27th Street.

Whittier: Change south line to include all of Elliott area, match northern boundary to Belmont line. This permits children in Prescott on transfer to enter Irving if they live in this area.

Lincoln High-Northeast High: Adjust boundary to use C&NW track instead of 33rd Street north of Cornhusker, match Culler-Whittier line in Hartley area and O Street in Riley area.

East High-Lincoln High: Change line from 52nd to 50th Street between Randolph and Valley Road.

Boundary changes approved which will affect no children include:

Arnold Elementary: Change east line to use the Interstate highway and the Union Pacific tracks, replacing an imaginary line through the airport.

Clinton: Change north line to match Whittier boundary.

Lake View: Change east boundary to Salt Creek.

Meadow Lane: Match junior and senior high lines in southwest corner.

Park: Change west line to Salt Creek, and north line to O Street.

Sheridan: Change southwest corner to match Prescott revision; since both schools are open to transfer, no students will be forced to change.

Goodrich Junior: Match Belmont boundary at Salt Creek. Change east line to Chicago & Northwestern R.R. instead of 33rd Street.

Northeast High-East High: No change, except to extend line south on 84th Street and then east into non-district area on O Street.

East High-Southeast High: No change, except to extend boundary in non-district area on line of Antelope Creek.

Southeast High-Lincoln High: No change, except to extend line into non-district area on UP R.R.

Dunlop Quits; Ford Reneged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor John T. Dunlop submitted his resignation to President Ford late Tuesday, informed sources said, doing so because he felt his effectiveness had been undermined when Ford reneged on a promise to sign a bill sought by organized labor.

The sources said the President, in a private White House meeting, tried to talk Dunlop out of quitting. The secretary held firm in his decision to resign, but said he would remain in his post until Jan. 31.

White House officials confirmed only that Ford and Dunlop met for 35 minutes, but they refused to provide details.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, under questioning by reporters, acknowledged in early evening that Dunlop had asked to meet with Ford.

Labor sources said Dunlop had made clear in private Monday night that he had decided to quit and would inform Ford of his decision Tuesday.

Speculation on a successor to Dunlop has focused on W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who is held in high regard by both labor and management.

Dunlop's resignation had been expected since Ford announced before Christmas that he would veto a bill which would have increased construction-site picketing power for unions.

Dunlop supported the legislation and had earlier won Ford's endorsement of it. When he vetoed the bill, Ford conceded it had contained everything he asked for when he promised to sign it. But he said he changed his mind, saying it would lead to chaos in the construction industry.

Political observers said the veto came in an effort to mollify conservative supporters of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan who is challenging Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Openly disappointed, Dunlop spent the last several weeks trying to determine whether the President's action undercut his effectiveness with labor. Aides had said Dunlop's decision would be based not on anger, but on a careful evaluation that the veto had left him in an unworkable position.

The President formally vetoed the picketing bill on Jan. 2, triggering the resignations Jan. 8 of the nine labor members of the Collective Bargaining Committee in Construction, which Dunlop headed. One union leader declared that Dunlop no longer spoke for the administration.

The veto was an embarrassment to Dunlop, 61, who had told union leaders and key congressmen that he expected Ford to sign the bill, based on earlier statements by the President that he favored the principle of the legislation.

Petition Drive Will Continue

The drive to get the 4,828 signatures required to call a grand jury investigation into the shooting death of two black Lincoln men will continue for another two weeks.

The petition drive which was to end Tuesday fell short of its goal, said Cynthia Grandberry of the Justice for Lewis Committee Tuesday.

The petition seeks an investigation into the shooting deaths of Sherdell Lewis on Sept. 24 and Elijah Childers on Feb. 1. Both men were shot by local law enforcement officers.

Under state law the petition organizers have 90 days to collect signatures of 4,828 registered voters in the county.

The 90-day period is counted from the date of the first signature submitted to the District Court. Therefore the committee can extend the 90 day limit by throwing out signatures collected early in the drive, thus making the date of the first signature later.

The committee will be meeting soon to make plans for gathering more signatures, Ms. Grandberry said.

Snow Falls In Sandhills

Central Nebraska's Sandhills area received snowfall early Tuesday, with up to five inches on the ground at Seneca, located in northwestern Thomas County.

Three inches of snow fell at Mullen and Taylor.

Temperatures Tuesday in the state ranged from a low of 11 degrees at Burwell to a high of 46, shared by Lincoln and Omaha.

Operating Plan Revealed By Police Review Board

The Police Review Board Tuesday made available to the public its internal operating procedures.

The board, which completed its organizational meetings last week, was established to investigate citizen complaints against the Lincoln Police Department and forward recommendations to the mayor and City Council.

Thus far no complaints have been filed for the member board to deal with. Here are its operating procedures:

- Complaints of alleged misconduct, use of excessive force, abuse of authority or extreme discourtesy must be submitted to the city clerk's office within 45 days after an alleged occurrence, unless a criminal or civil action stemming from the complaint is pending.
- Complaint forms are available from the city clerk's office at the County-City Building.
- After a complaint is filed, the Police Dept. must respond in writing to the board within 10 days. After reviewing the complaint and the report from the Police Dept., the board will decide if there is sufficient evidence to hold a hearing.
- If a hearing is held, testimony from all witnesses will be taken under oath and the person lodging the complaint may be represented by an attorney.
- The officer the complaint is directed against may also be represented by an attorney. After both sides have presented their evidence, each party to the complaint may cross examine the other side, including witnesses. The board may question witnesses at any time and request any relevant evidence.
- All hearings will be conducted in open session although the board, in deliberating its decision, may go into executive session.

Chadron High School Evacuated

Chadron (AP) — A strong natural gas odor caused the evacuation of the Chadron High School Tuesday afternoon, but officials said there was no gas leak.

Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas workers were filling odorant tanks near the school. Natural gas is odorless in its natural form, and the odorant is used to give the gas a smell as a safety precaution.

Officials said a lot of the odorant spilled into the atmosphere, and was taken into the school's ventilation system.

The area was checked, but no gas leaks were found, and students were given the rest of the afternoon off.

Extra-curricular activities continued, however.

Health Director Says Milk Controversy Over Cartons

By J.L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

City-County Health Board Director Dr. E.D. Lyman wants to stick to his guns in the milk grading controversy.

Lyman told the board of health Tuesday night that the proposed milk grade ordinance which has caused so much talk lately doesn't really raise a controversy about the type of milk being sold, but the cartons it is sold in.

In a memorandum to the board, Lyman specifically stated, among other things, that "Adoption of the proposed Grade A Milk Ordinance would in no way change the present practice of bottling Grade A milk in Grade B containers."

That statement came, Lyman said, after printed statements from Lincoln Dairy owner Harry Breslow who said if the ordinance passes he'll have to throw away some $10,000 worth of milk cartons labeled for Grade B.

Lyman had earlier acknowledged the fact that the dairy was bottling Grade A milk in the cartons and told the board, last month, that Breslow probably just wanted to use up the cartons.

Board member Dick Baker, also a city councilman, noted that the city body had sent the proposal back to the health board without approval because he was approached by Breslow and an attorney who asked for a chance to present their case to the health board at the next regular meeting in February.

Lyman assured the board that a recent study by the State Department of Agriculture showed only one dairy in Nebraska is producing Grade B milk and it is supplied by two producers. He added that the number of Grade B producers has never been big since "the differences in requirements which producers and processors must meet are negligible."

Assistant City Attorney William Blake threw some new light on the subject when he said Breslow contends he is producing Grade B milk. He added that a legal battle might brew since Breslow's attorney has cited the 1960 State Supreme Court ruling that the Legislature didn't have the right to ban the sale of a food product which is "wholesome, nutritious, healthful and fit for human consumption."

Lyman said, "Well, we're not inspecting any Grade B producers, and we should know who they are, because if they aren't inspected, that's serious."

Board member Dr. William Nye said, "We've got our feet in it, let's find out if we're right or wrong."

Board member Jan Gauger moved to table the matter pending an executive session. Following that session, according to Lyman, the group decided to wait until it has heard from Breslow at the next meeting before taking any further action.

Dunlop Quits; Ford Reneged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor John T. Dunlop submitted his resignation to President Ford late Tuesday, informed sources said, doing so because he felt his effectiveness had been undermined when Ford reneged on a promise to sign a bill sought by organized labor.

The sources said the President, in a private White House meeting, tried to talk Dunlop out of quitting. The secretary held firm in his decision to resign, but said he would remain in his post until Jan. 31.

White House officials confirmed only that Ford and Dunlop met for 35 minutes, but they refused to provide details.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen, under questioning by reporters, acknowledged in early evening that Dunlop had asked to meet with Ford.

Labor sources said Dunlop had made clear in private Monday night that he had decided to quit and would inform Ford of his decision Tuesday.

Speculation on a successor to Dunlop has focused on W.J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Concilation Service, who is held in high regard by both labor and management.

Dunlop's resignation had been expected since Ford announced before Christmas that he would veto a bill which would have increased construction-site picketing power for unions.

Dunlop supported the legislation and had earlier won Ford's endorsement of it. When he vetoed the bill, Ford conceded it had contained everything he asked for when he promised to sign it. But he said he changed his mind, saying it would lead to chaos in the construction industry.

Political observers said the veto came in an effort to mollify conservative supporters of former California Gov. Ronald Reagan who is challenging Ford for the Republican presidential nomination.

Openly disappointed, Dunlop spent the last several weeks trying to determine whether the President's action undercut his effectiveness with labor. Aides had said Dunlop's decision would be based not on anger, but on a careful evaluation that the veto had left him in an unworkable position.

The President formally vetoed the picketing bill on Jan. 2, triggering the resignations Jan. 8 of the nine labor members of the Collective Bargaining Committee in Construction, which Dunlop headed. One union leader declared that Dunlop no longer spoke for the administration.

The veto was an embarrassment to Dunlop, 61, who had told union leaders and key congressmen that he expected Ford to sign the bill, based on earlier statements by the President that he favored the principle of the legislation.

Petition Drive Will Continue

The drive to get the 4,828 signatures required to call a grand jury investigation into the shooting death of two black Lincoln men will continue for another two weeks.

The petition drive which was to end Tuesday fell short of its goal, said Cynthia Grandberry of the Justice for Lewis Committee Tuesday.

The petition seeks an investigation into the shooting deaths of Sherdell Lewis on Sept. 24 and Elijah Childers on Feb. 1. Both men were shot by local law enforcement officers.

Under state law the petition organizers have 90 days to collect signatures of 4,828 registered voters in the county.

The 90-day period is counted from the date of the first signature submitted to the District Court. Therefore the committee can extend the 90 day limit by throwing out signatures collected early in the drive, thus making the date of the first signature later.

The committee will be meeting soon to make plans for gathering more signatures, Ms. Grandberry said.

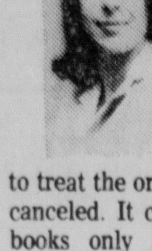
—Staying Ahead—

Rule May Help Mail-Order Buyer

By JANE BRYANT QUINN



Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — If you've ever waited . . . and waited . . . and waited for something you ordered by mail, you probably vowed never to shop that way again. But with any luck, a new Federal Trade Commission regulation will prod tardy mail-order merchants into sending you the goods within a reasonable length of time — or at least warning you the shipment will be delayed.

Effective Feb. 2, the mail-order industry will have to operate under the following rules:

(1) Goods will have to be shipped within 30 days of receipt of a properly completed order, unless a longer waiting period has been specified in the advertisement. For a cash sale, this means 30 days from the day the company receives your check or money order. If you're buying on credit, it means 30 days from the day the item is charged to your account.

(If the merchant delays charging your account, you may have to wait longer than you expected for the goods. But he's being penalized, too, since he hasn't yet been able to make use of your money.)

(2) If delivery can't be accomplished within the required period, you must be notified of the delay and given an opportunity to cancel at no cost to yourself. Merchants probably will include a postage-paid postcard with their notices of delay, to facilitate cancellation. If they don't hear from you, they are entitled to assume that you're willing to wait for another 30 days.

(3) If, 30 days later, they still can't ship the goods, they have to treat the order as having been canceled. It can be kept on the books only if they get your positive consent — in effect, a reorder of the merchandise. If you don't communicate with the company at all, you should automatically receive a refund.

(4) Refunds must be mailed within seven days of cancellation. With a credit sale, any charges to your account must be removed within one billing cycle.

(5) The new regulation does not apply to merchandise ordered by telephone. If a company you're unfamiliar with gives you a choice of mailing your order or calling a toll-free number, you might consider using the mail, so you'll have some protection.

(6) The regulation does not cover services; services connected with merchandise, such as mail-order photo finishing; magazines and other serial shipments (except for the initial order); seeds and growing plants; "negative option sales," such as book clubs, where you agree to buy merchandise regularly unless notifying the company to the contrary.

Nor does it apply to COD orders. However, even where contract law might seem to bind you to accepting a COD order delivered months after you needed it, you can refuse the order at the door and, as a practical matter, probably won't hear from the company again, says the FTC's Walter Diercks.

(7) If a company runs afoul of the new rule, Diercks suggests that you write, reminding them of their obligations. If a couple of weeks goes by without a response, write a letter explaining what happened to the Bureau of Consumer Protection, FTC, Washington, D.C. 20580.

You'll receive a form letter in reply, explaining that the FTC can't represent you personally. But the name of the violator will be put on file. If a number of complaints come in about the same company, it could lead to a lawsuit — and consumers inconvenienced by negligent delivery would share in any court-awarded damages.

Furthermore, a copy of your letter will be sent to the Post Office's Consumer Advocate's Office, which tries to help people recover money from mail-order merchants who have bilked them.

One tip on recovering the money yourself: if you paid by check, the name of the bank that cashed it will probably be legible on the cancellation mark. If letters to the company bring no response, write or call the bank's legal office.

(c) 1976, The Washington Post Company

Market Posts First Decline Of New Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded its first decline of the new year Tuesday in a head-on clash of buyers and profit takers that resulted in the second highest trading session in the history of the New York Stock Exchange.

NYSE turnover came to 34.53 million shares, just short of the 35.16 million-share record established last Feb. 13.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up nearly 70 points in the first seven sessions of 1976, dropped back 9.45 to 912.94.

Declining issues outpaced gainers 916 to 631 among the 1,929 traded on the Big Board.

The crush of activity that hit the market from the opening left the exchange's ticker tape running as much as 28 minutes late at one stage.

That time lag was by far the largest ever under the present setup for reporting trades. On April 10, 1968, the tape ran 41 minutes late, but some procedures used in running it now were not in effect then.

Analysts noted that the trades in other markets of NYSE-listed issues which were added to the tape last June contributed substantially to its inability to keep up.

They also noted, however, that the lag seemed to betoken a large number of the kind of small trades normally associated with individual investors rather than the big institutions.

Brokers saw the market's turbulence as the result of a full-force meeting of conflicting elements in the market place. On one side were buyers encouraged by a continued decline in interest rates and by the market's display of strength so far this year.

Wheat, Soybean Futures Decline

Chicago (AP) — Wheat and soybean futures prices declined on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

There appeared to be little outside influence on the market.

A decline in silver futures at the opening appeared to have a weakening effect on the grain and soybean complex markets.

In addition, high closing prices in soybean and soybean oil prices Monday sparked profit-taking in those commodities in early dealings.

Soybeans declined almost 10 cents a bushel, soybean meal was lower and soybean oil prices were mixed.

Cold futures, declined.

—Staying Ahead—

Rule May Help Mail-Order Buyer

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — If you've ever waited ... and waited ... and waited for something you ordered by mail, you probably vowed never to shop that way again. But with any luck, a new Federal Trade Commission regulation will prod tardy mail-order merchants into sending you the goods within a reasonable length of time — or at least warning you the shipment will be delayed.

Effective Feb. 2, the mail-order industry will have to operate under the following rules:

(1) Goods will have to be shipped within 30 days of receipt of a properly completed order, unless a longer waiting period has been specified in the advertisement. For a cash sale, this means 30 days from the day the company receives your check or money order. If you're buying on credit, it means 30 days from the day the item is charged to your account.

(If the merchant delays charging your account, you may have to wait longer than you expected for the goods. But he's being penalized, too, since he hasn't yet been able to make use of your money.)

(2) If delivery can't be accomplished within the required period, you must be notified of the delay and given an opportunity to cancel at no cost to yourself. Merchants probably will include a postage-paid postcard with their notices of delay, to facilitate cancellation. If they don't hear from you, they are entitled to assume that you're willing to wait for another 30 days.

(3) If, 30 days later, they still can't ship the goods, they have to treat the order as having been canceled. It can be kept on the books only if they get your positive consent — in effect, a reorder of the merchandise. If you don't communicate with the company at all, you should automatically receive a refund.

(4) Refunds must be mailed within seven days of cancellation. With a credit sale, any charges to your account must be removed within one billing cycle.

(5) The new regulation does not apply to merchandise ordered by telephone. If a company you're unfamiliar with gives you a choice of mailing your order or calling a toll-free number, you might consider using the mail, so you'll have some protection.

(6) The regulation does not cover services; services connected with merchandise, such as mail-order photo finishing; magazines and other serial shipments (except for the initial order); seeds and growing plants; "negative option sales," such as book clubs, where you agree to buy merchandise regularly unless notifying the company to the contrary.

Nor does it apply to COD orders. However, even where contract law might seem to bind you to accepting a COD order delivered months after you needed it, you can refuse the order at the door and, as a practical matter, probably won't hear from the company again, says the FTC's Walter Diercks.

(7) If a company runs afoul of the new rule, Diercks suggests that you write, reminding them of their obligations. If a couple of weeks goes by without a response, write a letter explaining what happened to the Bureau of Consumer Protection, FTC, Washington, D.C. 20580.

You'll receive a form letter in reply, explaining that the FTC can't represent you personally. But the name of the violator will be put on file. If a number of complaints come in about the same company, it could lead to a lawsuit — and consumers inconvenienced by negligent delivery would share in any court-awarded damages.

Furthermore, a copy of your letter will be sent to the Post Office's Consumer Advocate's Office, which tries to help people recover money from mail-order merchants who have bilked them.

One tip on recovering the money yourself: if you paid by check, the name of the bank that cashed it will probably be legible on the cancellation mark. If letters to the company bring no response, write or call the bank's legal office.

Market Posts First Decline Of New Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market recorded its first decline of the new year Tuesday in a head-on clash of buyers and profit takers that resulted in the second highest trading session in the history of the New York Stock Exchange.

NYSE turnover came to 34.53 million shares, just short of the 35.16 million-share record established last Feb. 13.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up nearly 70 points in the first seven sessions of 1976, dropped back 9.45 to 912.94.

Declining issues outpaced gainers 916 to 631 among the 1,929 traded on the Big Board.

The crush of activity that hit the market from the opening left the exchange's ticker tape running as much as 28 minutes late at one stage.

That time lag was by far the largest ever under the present setup for reporting trades. On April 10, 1968, the tape ran 41 minutes late, but some procedures used in running it now were not in effect then.

Analysts noted that the trades in other markets of NYSE-listed issues which were added to the tape last June contributed substantially to its inability to keep up.

They also noted, however, that the lag seemed to betoken a large number of the kind of small trades normally associated with individual investors rather than the big institutions.

Brokers saw the market's turbulence as the result of a full-force meeting of conflicting elements in the market place. On one side were buyers encouraged by a continued decline in interest rates and by the market's display of strength so far this year.

Wheat, Soybean Futures Decline

Chicago (AP) — Wheat and soybean futures prices declined on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

There appeared to be little outside influence on the market.

A decline in silver futures at the opening appeared to have a weakening effect on the grain and soybean complex markets.

In addition, high closing prices in soybean and soybean oil prices Monday sparked profit-taking in those commodities in early dealings.

Soybeans declined almost 10 cents a bushel, soybean meal was lower and soybean oil prices were mixed.

Cold futures, declined.

Convict Believes He's Losing Day

MARION, Ill. (AP) — When you've a spare moment to scrutinize the new calendar you'll find more time on your hands than usual in 1976. It's a 366-day leap year.

Most of us take such leaps in stride. But time weighs more heavily on people at the Marion Federal Penitentiary, and such events are of special interest.

Take, for example, Henry M. Gargano, a 43-year-old Lamont, Ill., man serving 199 years for murder while committing bank robbery. He's dusted off an astronomical adjustment which hasn't been used since 1600, in an effort to have his sentence reduced.

Jailed on Aug. 16, 1968, his term expires on Nov. 1, 2166. It's not quite as bad as it sounds because, if he behaves, prison officials say he can accumulate enough good time off for release 65 years early.

Until he and four others left the maximum-security prison without permission in October, forfeiting the good time they'd already accumulated, his release date was 167 days earlier. Informing Gargano of his loss, the records department recently notified him of his new release date, Aug. 10, 2102 — if he's good.

After lengthy calculations, Gargano decided he'd been robbed. No one had taken "Jump Year" into account, he said. He figures they owe him an entire day.

It takes just about 365 days, five hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds for the earth to orbit the sun once. That's roughly 365¼ days, or one year. Every four years one day, Feb. 29, is added to take up the slack. It's called leap year.

Without additional tinkering, though, we'd lose a day every 120 years or so because of the 11 minute, 14 seconds discrepancy between the 365¼ days and the actual length of the year. Eventually, New Year's Day would fall on Jan. 2. Thus, Gargano notes, an extra day must be worked in every few centuries or so.

Dr. John Gammel, a St. Louis University physicist, says: "He's quite right about that. The 21st century, if you include the year 2000 is one day longer than the ordinary century. It would, as he said it would, contain 36,525 days."

On the presumption the judge had 365¼-day years in mind — and, thus, 36,524-day centuries — Gargano says his release date doesn't add up.

In a letter to the records keeper he writes: "You claim that it is 08—10—2102. I come up with 08—09—2102.

"At this point in time you may be somewhat skeptical in regards the sincerity of my revelation and-or motives, thinking perhaps that I'm just trying to squirm out of that one day. If so, try to think positively for a change as I'm sure my past record will reflect that I am a person far removed from entertaining the thought of larceny on such a lowly scale."

Honeymoon In Church Steeple

Dodgeville, Wis. (UPI) — Honeymoon in a church steeple?

"It's bringing us a lot of great compliments," said Don Quinn, a retired airline pilot turned motel operator.

"People like it, and when they find how plush it is, they are doubly appreciative."

Quinn said he thought of the idea after learning that the Civil War era Methodist church in Dodgeville, with its 67-foot white steeple, was slated for demolition.

"I just dreaded the thought of it being smashed," he explained. "I first got interested in saving portions of old buildings because of their historical importance — and the fact they contain such fantastic wood."

Quinn noted, for example, that the motel's supper club was converted from one of the largest dairy barns in the area, while the motel annex is the former Chicago & North Western Railroad depot at Dodgeville.

But his proudest renovation is the steeple itself. It was moved to the site of the main motel and placed on a base made of brick and concrete from the old Dodgeville water tower about six months ago.

Quinn charges $100-a-night for weekends, but the price includes two dinners, champagne, fruit basket and cheese. The weekday rate is $50-a-night.

The steeple is divided into three levels of 12-by-12 feet of living space and a winding stairway was added..

The focal point of the first level, the bathroom, is an oversized bathtub fashioned from a huge copper Swiss cheese kettle salvaged from an old cheese factory.

In a bedroom, muted colors flow in from the fantail church windows which were a part of the steeple. On the upper level, with the spire, there's a view of the surrounding countryside.

Floors and walls are heavily carpeted and the ornately carved woodwork, the contrasting colors and textures of the brick base, dark shingles and large copper ball atop the spire, make the steeple a memorable bedroom for any honeymooning couple.

You Slow Baby If You Interrupt

Nashville, Tenn. (AP) — It's not only impolite to interrupt, but if you interrupt your baby's babble, it may slow down his or her speech development, a psychologist says.

Dr. Peter Vietze, director of the infant learning program at Peabody College here, said this was one of the findings from a study of infants' learning development.

"Traditionally mothers are taught to reinforce babies — the sooner you respond, the more likely it is to have effect," Vietze said in an interview.

"One of the rules of reinforcement is that you reinforce immediately — but it doesn't say when. What we found is that if the mother responds before the baby is finished, essentially interrupting the baby, it doesn't seem to be as beneficial as if she waits for the baby to finish."

He compared it to an adult conversation. "If you are talking with a person who continues to interrupt you, you may eventually give up trying to converse with that person."

Therefore, mothers who are more sensitive to letting their babies talk may have babies who develop language earlier than others, said Vietze.

In the study, observers visited 51 infants at home, watched the mothers feed, bathe and play with the babies and recorded all forms of verbal communication. The visits were made when the infants were 2½ months old, 6½ months old and 13 months old.

Vietze said results indicated babies begin using patterns of adult human dialogue at age 2 months to 6 months.

"We found that 2-month-old infants and their mothers begin learning how to listen to each others' sounds in a highly social adult manner, which becomes more apparent when the child reaches 6 months.

"This was noted by the baby's learning to stop making sounds when the mother speaks and the mother in return learning to listen when the baby makes sounds."

Convict Believes He's Losing Day

MARION, Ill. (AP) — When you've a spare moment to scrutinize the new calendar you'll find more time on your hands than usual in 1976. It's a 366-day leap year.

Most of us take such leaps in stride. But time weighs more heavily on people at the Marion Federal Penitentiary, and such events are of special interest.

Take, for example, Henry M. Gargano, a 43-year-old Lamont, Ill., man serving 199 years for murder while committing bank robbery He's dusted off an astronomical adjustment which hasn't been used since 1600, in an effort to have his sentence reduced.

Jailed on Aug. 16, 1968, his term expires on Nov. 1, 2166. It's not quite as bad as it sounds because, if he behaves, prison officials say he can accumulate enough good time off for release 65 years early.

Until he and four others left the maximum-security prison without permission in October, forfeiting the good time they'd already accumulated, his release date was 167 days earlier. Informing Gargano of his loss, the records department recently notified him of his new release date, Aug. 10, 2102 — if he's good.

After lengthy calculations, Gargano decided he'd been robbed. No one had taken "Jump Year" into account, he said. He figures they owe him an entire day.

It takes just about 365 days, five hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds for the earth to orbit the sun once That's roughly 365¼ days, or one year. Every four years one day, Feb. 29, is added to take up the slack It's called leap year Without additional tinkering, though, we'd lose a day every 120 years or so because of the 11 minute, 14 seconds discrepancy between the 365¼ days and the actual length of the year. Eventually, New Year's Day would fall on Jan 2 Thus, Gargano notes, an extra day must be worked in every few centuries or so.

Dr John Gammel, a St. Louis University physicist, says "He's quite right about that. The 21st century, if you include the year 2000 is one day longer than the ordinary century It would, as he said it would, contain 36,525 days "

On the presumption the judge had 365¼-day years in mind — and, thus, 36,524-day centuries — Gargano says his release date doesn't add up.

In a letter to the records keeper he writes: "You claim that it is 08—10—2102. I come up with 08—09—2102.

"At this point in time you may be somewhat skeptical in regards the sincerity of my revelation and-or motives, thinking perhaps that I'm just trying to squirm out of that one day. If so, try to think positively for a change as I'm sure my past record will reflect that I am a person far removed from entertaining the thought of larceny on such a lowly scale."

Honeymoon In Church Steeple

Dodgeville, Wis. (UPI) — Honeymoon in a church steeple?

"It's bringing us a lot of great compliments," said Don Quinn, a retired airline pilot turned motel operator.

"People like it, and when they find how plush it is, they are doubly appreciative."

Quinn said he thought of the idea after learning that the Civil War era Methodist church in Dodgeville, with its 67-foot white steeple, was slated for demolition.

"I just dreaded the thought of it being smashed," he explained. "I first got interested in saving portions of old buildings because of their historical importance — and the fact they contain such fantastic wood."

Quinn noted, for example, that the motel's supper club was converted from one of the largest dairy barns in the area, while the motel annex is the former Chicago & North Western Railroad depot at Dodgeville.

But his proudest renovation is the steeple itself. It was moved to the site of the main motel and placed on a base made of brick and concrete from the old Dodgeville water tower about six months ago.

Quinn charges $100-a-night for weekends, but the price includes two dinners, champagne, fruit basket and cheese. The weekday rate is $50-a-night.

The steeple is divided into three levels of 12-by-12 feet of living space and a winding stairway was added.

The focal point of the first level, the bathroom, is an oversized bathtub fashioned from a huge copper Swiss cheese kettle salvaged from an old cheese factory.

In a bedroom, muted colors flow in from the fantail church windows which were a part of the steeple. On the upper level, with the spire, there's a view of the surrounding countryside.

Floors and walls are heavily carpeted and the ornately carved woodwork, the contrasting colors and textures of the brick base, dark shingles and large copper ball atop the spire, make the steeple a memorable bedroom for any honeymooning couple.

Creighton Edges K-State In Overtime

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Regardless of team loyalties, a true basketball fan had to be impressed with Creighton and Kansas State here Tuesday night at Omaha Civic Auditorium.

"I told several people that was a great example of college basketball," noted Creighton coach Tom Apke after his Bluejays stopped K-State, 79-76 in overtime. "To play that super hard with reckless abondon for 45 minutes—not 40—was college basketball at its best."

Another "at its best" might have been Creighton's superb field goal shooting.

While assuming a 46-40 halftime advantage, the Bluejays connected on 75 (that's right, 75) per cent of their field goal attempts. In fact, CU tallied on a fine 65.4 per cent overall on 36 of 55 field goals.

Surprisingly, Apke wasn't entirely pleased with that effort.

"We shot 75 per cent, but as far as pure shooting, look at our free throws," he explained. "We only hit 7 of 13 from the line and that isn't very good shooting."

But Creighton hit the key free throws when it was mandatory.

Ahead 77-76 with just eight seconds remaining in overtime, sophomore Rick Apke hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation to insure Creighton's eleventh victory against four losses, K-State fell to 9-4.

Despite taking game-high scoring honors with 26 points, KSU's high-scoring guard Chuckie Williams connected on just 13 of 30 field goal efforts.

"We didn't hold Chuckie Williams to 26 points," Apke explained. "We tried to make it very difficult for him to have that wide-open shot. It was team defense as much as it was one-on-one individual defense. The big guys (Daryl Heeke and Tim McConnell) did a great job on Williams."

Williams and his backcourt mate, Mike Evans, who hit seven of 15 field goal attempts for 16 points, consistently hit the key basket that pulled KSU from a 12-point first-half deficit.

Leading 36-24 with 5:33 to play before intermission, KSU outscored Creighton, 16-8 to close within 44-40 with nine seconds left.

But it was Apke who banked in a basket with three seconds left to propel Creighton to a 46-40 halftime advantage. Apke took Bluejay scoring honors with 22 points.

Crediting rebounding as a major factor in winning its second straight home overtime victory, Apke noted the improved boardplay.

"I was disappointed we weren't helping out that much in the first half (when KSU took a 14-11 rebounding edge)," he said. "But I think it was our rebounding in the second half (which aided CU to a 37-32 overall advantage) that really helped us."

KSU coach Jack Hartman, talking in subdued tones, praised Creighton for its ability to make the key play when it appeared KSU was gaining momentum.

"Give them credit for shooting it down when they had to," he said. "I thought we played real well at times and so did they.

They had chances . . . we had chances. What more can you say?"

Hartman cited his team's first-half comeback, but lamented the Wildcats' poor free throw shooting.

"I liked our effort, but I didn't like those missed free throws," he said. "We only hit eight of 16. That's not very good, but that happens sometimes."

As 7,265 screaming fans yelled encouragement, Creighton seemed to respond at the proper time.

"We really enjoy support from our fans. It helps us," Apke said. "Our crowds are usually better after the holidays."

Kidding about his second victory over a Big Eight team (the earlier win was over Iowa State at Ames), Apke said it boosted the Bluejays' confidence.

"We're right in the middle of Big Eight country. Many of our fans were complaining that we're in the Missouri Valley Conference and we were being shutout in the Big Eight. I think this helps."

K-State opens Big Eight action with a Saturday afternoon regionally-televised affair against Nebraska at Manhattan. Creighton hosts Oklahoma City on Thursday night.

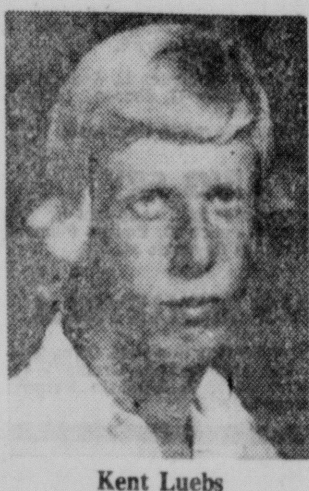
Luebs Gives Lift To Wood River

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor



Kent Luebs
Wood River Center

Dale Smidt had no more height, so he had no choice. The Wood River basketball coach had to move 6-6 senior Kent Luebs inside this season.

The switch has paid off handsomely. The Eagles are off to a 9-0 start and own the No. 1 perch in the Sunday Journal and Star's Class C ratings.

"Kent has started three years for us," Smidt says of Luebs. "He played a wing as a sophomore and a forward, operating mostly outside last year.

"I never told him he was moving inside this year. He just went inside," Smidt says. "He had to take over and he understood it."

The results have been impressive 22-point and 11-rebound averages for Luebs, who averaged 10 points and 8 rebounds for last season's state tourney qualifying team.

Part of the reason for keeping Luebs outside in the past has been his weight. He weighs only 175 pounds and because of his build, isn't likely to put on much more, according to Smidt.

Beefy Forwards

"We may not have any height to go with Kent," Smidt says of 6-0 forwards Danny Soto and Sean Sandburg, "but we have some beef. Both weigh 200 pounds. They can't get up as high, but they don't get pushed around either."

While they concentrate on helping Luebs with the rebounding effort, guards Matt Moyer (5-8) and Steve Budd (6-0) contribute to the scoring punch.

Moyer averages 12 points a game. That was more or less expected. He started last season. The big surprise has been the outside shooting of Budd. He's averaging 11 points a game.

Junior Mike DeVore is Wood River's sixth man, but he's like another starter, according to Smidt.

"We're real fortunate we have six who can play well at any time," he says. "If we have an edge over other Class C teams, it's in our fourth, fifth and sixth positions. Depth is very important. We're still looking to fill those seventh and eighth spots."

It's been at least 12 years since Wood River has earned a No. 1 rating in basketball, says Smidt, in his 10th year as the Eagles' head coach.

Second Before

"We've been second a couple times the last four years, but never first," he points out. "It's kind of scary. But it means a lot. I'd much rather be rated than not."

Wood River owns a pair of wins over Class B St. Paul, which has beaten Broken Bow handily. Broken Bow pressed Class B power Holdrege before losing in overtime on the road last weekend.

The Eagles also have beaten Class B Grand Island Northwest, which counts Cozad and Schuyler among its victims this season (Schuyler defeated previously No. 1-rated Ord by 21 on the road last weekend).

Wood River hasn't seen the last of Class B competition this season either. The Eagles close against Grand Island Central Catholic and Aurora in February.

"I've always felt if you're going to be halfway good, you've got to play the good competition," Smidt says. "When you play the better teams, you learn. You know you can't get away with playing sloppy basketball."

Northeast Girls Halt Southeast

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Lincoln Northeast's Hank Willemsen smiles when he talks about his man-to-man defense.

And not because he's talking about girls playing a "man's" defense.

He's smiling because his Northeast girls team chalked up its sixth victory against one defeat with a 36-22 triumph over Southeast in the Rocket's gym before 650 fans Tuesday night.

And the girls' man-to-man defense was a definite factor according to Willemsen.

Great Defense

"That was great defense," Willemsen said. "They were just on 'em like a blanket."

What was more remarkable about the defense was Northeast holding Southeast to just 16 points in the last 30 minutes of the game, after giving up the first six points in less than two minutes.

"We did get off to kind of a slow start," Willemsen said remembering a 6-0 deficit before guard Cindy Nelson hit a 15-footer with 5:41 left in the first quarter. "We had to make a motion adjustment against their zone before we could get going."

When Northeast finally got untracked, the Rockets outscored coach Jerry Harkrader's Knights 14-2 over the next 10 minutes gaining a 16-9 advantage with 2:35 left in the half.

Northeast's Pam Samuelson and Terri Amend were chief contributors to the Rocket's cause accounting for 10 of 14 second quarter points.

Amend Praised

"Amend sure came in and did a good job for us," Willemsen said of his 5-9 sophomore center. "She shut down Griffin (JoAnn) in the middle and scored well around the basket."

Amend and Samuelson both scored in double figures for Willemsen.

Samuelson connected on four of seven field goal attempts and led the Rockets to 80% team free throw shooting with five of five from the stripe.

Amend was five for 12 from the field hitting four of five shots during a second and third quarter stretch.

The Rockets bogged down in the third quarter as Southeast closed the gap to 24-18.

Streak Ends Doubt

But eight straight points in the final stanza ended any doubt of the eventual winner.

Suzanne Sutton and Griffin were the Knight's leading scorers with nine and seven points respectively.

Northeast will take its 6-1 record to Grand Island next Tuesday for a Trans-Nebraska Conference game.

The Knights, now 3-2, must rebound quickly from the loss as Millard comes to the Capital City for a Thursday game at Southeast.

Big Eight Officials Switch Track Meet To Nebraska

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

St. Louis — The Big Eight Conference dispensed with some internal business Tuesday at its "caucus" on NCAA legislation to be considered at the convention here and then began the tedious task of studying and deciding how it will vote on the proposals to be considered.

The internal business was the switching of the conference outdoor track and field meet from Iowa State to Nebraska's Ed Weir Stadium. The dates will be May 14-15.

The move was made at the request of league coaches. They wanted the meet to be held on an all-weather track because of the importance of getting the best possible performances from the athletes in an Olympic year.

"The coaches wanted to be sure of having the best competitive conditions because of the importance of meeting qualifying standards for the Olympic trials," Commissioner Chuck Neinas said.

Iowa State's track, located in old Clyde Williams Stadium, is a six-lane cinder track while Nebraska's oval has a tartan surface.

The conference meet was held at Lincoln two years ago, but weather conditions weren't ideal. A torrential downpour of rain fell during most of the meet.

The Big Eight didn't change its annual spring business meetings, which are set for May 10-14 at Iowa State. The golf championships also will be in Ames.

"We weren't actively seeking the meet," Don Bryant, NU sports information director said. "But we are happy to accept it and help out the conference in an Olympic year." Bryant represented athletic director Bob Devaney at the meeting.

DeLoss Dodds, track coach and acting athletic director at Kansas State, made the presentation to the directors and faculty representatives on hand for the meeting.

Husker faculty representative Keith Broman said conference officials got through a study of the 79 items left over from last August's special convention and 93 of the 224 proposals which will be considered at the 70th regular convention beginning Thursday. Those left over will be discussed in a morning meeting Wednesday.

The conference will favor a reorganization of the NCAA, creating a division of "super" football powers and a new Division IA, Broman said.

Neinas also said league members will vote "to go back to where we were before the August convention," to rescind the rules which were passed under the guise of economy, but which actually attempted to create equality.

The Big Eight also will oppose the proposed "aid-based-on-need" plan for athletic scholarships and support the proposal which would rescind the limits placed on the size of coaching staffs.

Broman said Nebraska would ask for a delay in putting into effect the overall maximum number of grants that can be in effect at any one time.

"In effect, our proposal allows for a gradual process in reducing grants-in-aid in sports other than football and basketball," Broman said. "This will enable an institution to award aid to incoming prospects in those sports without jeopardizing continuation of aid to athletes enrolled prior to August of last year."

He said there is no proposal before the convention that would change the 95 limit of tenders that can be in effect at any one time in football. The conference merely is seeking, in effect, to delay for two years the process of getting from a higher number to a lower number.

Meanwhile, Husker football coach Tom Osborne was a speaker at the American Football Coaches Association clinic, which began Tuesday morning at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel.

He also appeared before the AFCA ethics committee as a result of the censure and penalty NU received in connection with the illegal trip to the Sugar Bowl game a year ago of two Huskers, Vince Ferragamo and Ray Phillips.

"This is a standard procedure of the coaches association for coaches who have been censured or who have been on probation," Osborne said. "It was more of a conversation than a hearing." The ethics committee is composed of four coaches at NCAA schools.

Colleges Eye Sudden-Death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The American Football Coaches Association is in favor of a form of sudden-death overtime for all college football games, it was learned Tuesday.

Other rule-change recommendations would:

—Reduce all 15-yard penalties to 10 yards except for personal fouls.

—Adopt the professional rule that any fourth-down offensive fumble inside the defensive team's 10-yard line recovered by the offense be marked at the spot of the fumble. This would rule out gains near the goal line on forward fumbles.

—Add 15 yards for roughing the passer even if the pass is completed.

Bellevue Topples NWU

Bellevue — Hot second-half shooting boosted Bellevue to its sixth win in its last eight games as the Bruins downed Nebraska Wesleyan Tuesday night 91-80.

The loss marked the worst non-conference season ever for the Plainsmen, now 1-10, having lost their last four games.

Wesleyan took a 40-38 halftime lead behind the shooting of forward Bob Otto, who hit seven of eight shots in the first half, including a bucket with six seconds left to give NWU the lead.

Neither team could establish a firm command of the game, as the score was tied 11 times. But with 14:40 left Bellevue, now 8-4, took the lead for good on a shot by freshman Mike Burkhart. Burkhart hit six of eight shots from the field in the game and scored 16 points.

Bruin scoring leader Greg Smith, a 6-4 junior forward, led all scorers with 24 points, 20 in the second half.

The Bruins connected on 22 of 35 field goals in the second half (63%) and outrebounded NWU 23-16 in the second stanza. Bellevue hit 56% for the game and held a 40-34 rebounding edge.

Bellevue's other forward Bob Drake scored 23 points, while Otto paced the Plainsmen with 22 points. NWU guards Angelo Lilly and Bob Knollenberg scored 16 points each.

The Plainsmen return to Lincoln to open the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season Saturday against league favorite Hastings at 7:30 p.m.

Suit Spurs NFL To Postpone Expansion, College Drafts

MIAMI (AP) — The National Football League said Tuesday it had postponed both its scheduled expansion draft to stock the Tampa Bay and Seattle franchises and its college draft in the wake of a joint suit filed by the two new teams against the NFL Players Association.

The expansion draft had been scheduled for Jan. 23-24 and the college draft had been set for Feb. 3-4. Both were put off following the announcement of the suit filed in federal court in Miami, and there was no indication when they would be held.

The suit was filed Tuesday by owner Hugh Culverhouse of Tampa and managing general partner Herman Sarkowsky of Seattle against the players' union, key union officials and player representatives of the current 26 NFL teams. The suit asks that an injunction be issued to prohibit the players' union from any interference in the stocking of the franchises. In effect, it asks the court to sanction the veterans' draft.

The union had previously threatened to try and stop the veteran draft, although it has taken no legal action. But Tuesday's actions delays the two drafts indefinitely and thus temporarily halts any future plans being made by any NFL team.

Each team must decide which players it is going to make available to Tampa Bay and Seattle, and then must also plan its college draft. In conjunction with those drafts, teams might negotiate trades. All of that must now await another court case.

If the action drags out, the league would presumably go ahead with the college draft. But Tuesday's suit could conceivably mean that Tampa and Seattle will not have NFL teams next season.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the delay is necessary in order to permit the court sufficient time to determine the legality of the veteran draft. And he said it would be impractical to conduct the college draft with Seattle and Tampa Bay participating, then find that expansion to the two cities had to be postponed or abandoned because of their inability to receive the allocation of veterans.

If the veteran draft were found to be illegal, the future of Tampa and Seattle would be clouded.

Culverhouse, at the NFL's Super Bowl headquarters, said, "as a lawyer myself, I would hope this matter would be resolved in three or four or maybe six weeks."

Asked why he was taking legal action when none has yet been taken by the players' union, Culverhouse said: "I don't take to threats."

Players' union head Ed Garvey said last month that the union would attempt to stop any draft of veteran players. On Tuesday, Garvey declined comment on the action.

Culverhouse declined to speculate on whether the postponements might cost him potential players from the college draft, players who might now sign with the Canadian Football League.

"I don't want to prejudice this case," he said. "All I know is that I have a contract to stock my team from others and all I'm asking is for the court to make a legal determination on that."

Culverhouse said that, prior to his filing the suit, he was in contact with a number of other NFL club owners. "There was," he said, "some varying opinion—but there was no disagreement as such, with my decision. None voiced any objection."

He also said he had spoken with Rozelle but declined to state the nature of the commissioner's comments.

Culverhouse and Sarkowsky said the suit had been filed because of the positions taken on the veteran allocation by the union and as a result of the recent Minneapolis court decision on the Rozelle Rule.

In that case, a federal judge ruled illegal the compensation clause that allows Rozelle to turn over players and-or draft choices to teams which lose free agents who have played out their options.

The Seattle-Tampa suit points out that the veteran player draft is the same that has been used to stock past NFL expansion teams and that it "will not in any respect restrict or restrain any competition for the services" of veteran NFL players.

The suit alleges that the union has threatened to disrupt the expansion plans and has engaged in willful interference with the rights of the two new teams.

Creighton Edges K-State In Overtime

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Omaha — Regardless of team loyalties, a true basketball fan had to be impressed with Creighton and Kansas State here Tuesday night at Omaha Civic Auditorium.

"I told several people that was a great example of college basketball," noted Creighton coach Tom Apke after his Bluejays stopped K-State, 79-76 in overtime. "To play that super hard with reckless abondon for 45 minutes—not 40—was college basketball at its best."

Another "at its best" might have been Creighton's superb field goal shooting.

While assuming a 46-40 halftime advantage, the Bluejays connected on 75 (that's right, 75) per cent of their field goal attempts. In fact, CU tallied on a fine 65.4 per cent overall on 36 of 55 field goals.

Surprisingly, Apke wasn't entirely pleased with that effort.

"We shot 75 per cent, but as far as pure shooting, look at our free throws," he explained. "We only hit 7 of 13 from the line and that isn't very good shooting."

But Creighton hit the key free throws when it was mandatory.

Ahead 77-76 with just eight seconds remaining in overtime, sophomore Rick Apke hit both ends of a one-and-one free throw situation to insure Creighton's eleventh victory against four losses, K-State fell to 9-4.

Despite taking game-high scoring honors with 26 points, KSU's high-scoring guard Chuckie Williams connected on just 13 of 30 field goal efforts.

"We didn't hold Chuckie Williams to 26 points," Apke explained. "We tried to make it very difficult for him to have that wide-open shot. It was team defense as much as it was one-on-one individual defense. The big guys (Daryl Heeke and Tim McConnell) did a great job on Williams."

Williams and his backcourt mate, Mike Evans, who hit seven of 15 field goal attempts for 16 points, consistently hit the key basket that pulled KSU from a 12-point first-half deficit.

Leading 36-24 with 5:33 to play before intermission, KSU outscored Creighton, 16-8 to close within 44-40 with nine seconds left.

But it was Apke who banked in a basket with three seconds left to propel Creighton to a 46-40 halftime advantage. Apke took Bluejay scoring honors with 22 points.

Crediting rebounding as a major factor in winning its second straight home overtime victory, Apke noted the improved boardplay.

"I was disappointed we weren't helping out that much in the first half (when KSU took a 14-11 rebounding edge)," he said. "But I think it was our rebounding in the second half (which aided CU to a 37-32 overall advantage) that really helped us."

KSU coach Jack Hartman, talking in subdued tones, praised Creighton for its ability to make the key play when it appeared KSU was gaining momentum.

"Give them credit for shooting it down when they had to," he said. "I thought we played real well at times and so did they. They had chances . . . we had chances. What more can you say?"

Hartman cited his team's first-half comeback, but lamented the Wildcats' poor free throw shooting.

"I liked our effort, but I didn't like those missed free throws," he said. "We only hit eight of 16. That's not very good, but that happens sometimes."

As 7,265 screaming fans yelled encouragement, Creighton seemed to respond at the proper time.

"We really enjoy support from our fans. It helps us," Apke said. "Our crowds are usually better after the holidays."

Kidding about his second victory over a Big Eight team (the earlier win was over Iowa State at Ames), Apke said it boosted the Bluejays' confidence.

"We're right in the middle of Big Eight country. Many of our fans were complaining that we're in the Missouri Valley Conference and we were being shutout in the Big Eight. I think this helps."

K-State opens Big Eight action with a Saturday afternoon regionally-televised affair against Nebraska at Manhattan. Creighton hosts Oklahoma City on Thursday night.

Luebs Gives Lift To Wood River

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

Kent Luebs
Wood River Center

Dale Smidt had no more height, so he had no choice. The Wood River basketball coach had to move 6-6 senior Kent Luebs inside this season.

The switch has paid off handsomely. The Eagles are off to a 9-0 start and own the No. 1 perch in the Sunday Journal and Star's Class C ratings.

"Kent has started three years for us," Smidt says of Luebs. "He played a wing as a sophomore and a forward, operating mostly outside last year.

"I never told him he was moving inside this year. He just went inside," Smidt says. "He had to take over and he understood it."

The results have been impressive 22-point and 11-rebound averages for Luebs, who averaged 10 points and 8 rebounds for last season's state tourney qualifying team.

Part of the reason for keeping Luebs outside in the past has been his weight. He weighs only 175 pounds and because of his build, isn't likely to put on much more, according to Smidt.

Beefy Forwards

"We may not have any height to go with Kent," Smidt says of 6-0 forwards Danny Soto and Sean Sandburg, "but we have some beef. Both weigh 200 pounds. They can't get up as high, but they don't get pushed around either."

While they concentrate on helping Luebs with the rebounding effort, guards Matt Moyer (5-8) and Steve Budd (6-0) contribute to the scoring punch.

Moyer averages 12 points a game. That was more or less expected. He started last season. The big surprise has been the outside shooting of Budd. He's averaging 11 points a game.

Junior Mike DeVore is Wood River's sixth man, but he's like another starter, according to Smidt.

"We're real fortunate we have six who can play well at any time," he says. "If we have an edge over other Class C teams, it's in our fourth, fifth and sixth positions. Depth is very important. We're still looking to fill those seventh and eighth spots."

It's been at least 12 years since Wood River has earned a No. 1 rating in basketball, says Smidt, in his 10th year as the Eagles' head coach.

Second Before

"We've been second a couple times the last four years, but never first," he points out. "It's kind of scary. But it means a lot. I'd much rather be rated than not."

Wood River owns a pair of wins over Class B St. Paul, which has beaten Broken Bow handily. Broken Bow pressed Class B power Holdrege before losing in overtime on the road last weekend.

The Eagles also have beaten Class B Grand Island Northwest, which counts Cozad and Schuyler among its victims this season (Schuyler defeated previously No. 1-rated Ord by 21 on the road last weekend).

Wood River hasn't seen the last of Class B competition this season either. The Eagles close against Grand Island Central Catholic and Aurora in February.

"I've always felt if you're going to be halfway good, you've got to play the good competition," Smidt says. "When you play the better teams, you learn. You know you can't get away with playing sloppy basketball."

Northeast Girls Halt Southeast

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

Lincoln Northeast's Hank Willemsen smiles when he talks about his man-to-man defense.

And not because he's talking about girls playing a "man's" defense.

He's smiling because his Northeast girls team chalked up its sixth victory against one defeat with a 36-22 triumph over Southeast in the Rocket's gym before 650 fans Tuesday night.

And the girls' man-to-man defense was a definite factor according to Willemsen.

When Northeast finally got untracked, the Rockets outscored coach Jerry Harkrader's Knights 14-2 over the next 10 minutes gaining a 16-9 advantage with 2:35 left in the half.

Northeast's Pam Samuelson and Terri Amend were chief contributors to the Rocket's cause accounting for 10 of 14 second quarter points.

Amend Praised

"Amend sure came in and did a good job for us," Willemsen said of his 5-9 sophomore center. "She shut down Griffin (JoAnn) in the middle and scored well around the basket."

Amend and Samuelson both scored in double figures for Willemsen.

Samuelson connected on four of seven field goal attempts and led the Rockets to 80% team free throw shooting with five of five from the stripe.

Amend was five for 12 from the field hitting four of five shots during a second and third quarter stretch.

The Rockets bogged down in the third quarter as Southeast closed the gap to 24-18.

Streak Ends Doubt

But eight straight points in the final stanza ended any doubt of the eventual winner.

Suzanne Sutton and Griffin were the Knight's leading scorers with nine and seven points respectively.

Northeast will take its 6-1 record to Grand Island next Tuesday for a Trans-Nebraska Conference game.

The Knights, now 3-2, must rebound quickly from the loss as Millard comes to the Capital City for a Thursday game at Southeast.

Big Eight Officials Switch Track Meet To Nebraska

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

St. Louis — The Big Eight Conference dispensed with some internal business Tuesday at its "caucus" on NCAA legislation to be considered at the convention here and then began the tedious task of studying and deciding how it will vote on the proposals to be considered.

The internal business was the switching of the conference outdoor track and field meet from Iowa State to Nebraska's Ed Weir Stadium. The dates will be May 14-15.

The move was made at the request of league coaches. They wanted the meet to be held on an all-weather track because of the importance of getting the best possible performances from the athletes in an Olympic year.

"The coaches wanted to be sure of having the best competitive conditions because of the importance of meeting qualifying standards for the Olympic trials," Commissioner Chuck Neinas said.

Iowa State's track, located in old Clyde Williams Stadium, is a six-lane cinder track while Nebraska's oval has a tartan surface.

The conference meet was held at Lincoln two years ago, but weather conditions weren't ideal. A torrential downpour of rain fell during most of the meet.

The Big Eight didn't change its annual spring business meetings, which are set for May 10-14 at Iowa State. The golf championships also will be in Ames.

"We weren't actively seeking the meet," Don Bryant, NU sports information director said. "But we are happy to accept it and help out the conference in an Olympic year." Bryant represented athletic director Bob Devaney at the meeting.

DeLoss Dodds, track coach and acting athletic director at Kansas State, made the presentation to the directors and faculty representatives on hand for the meeting.

Husker faculty representative Keith Broman said conference officials got through a study of the 79 items left over from last August's special convention and 93 of the 224 proposals which will be considered at the 70th regular convention beginning Thursday. Those left over will be discussed in a morning meeting Wednesday.

The conference will favor a reorganization of the NCAA, creating a division of "super" football powers and a new Division IA, Broman said.

Neinas also said league members will vote "to go back to where we were before the August convention," to rescind the rules which were passed under the guise of economy, but which actually attempted to create equality.

The Big Eight also will oppose the proposed "aid-based-on-need" plan for athletic scholarships and support the proposal which would rescind the limits placed on the size of coaching staffs.

Broman said Nebraska would ask for a delay in putting into effect the overall maximum number of grants that can be in effect at any one time.

"In effect, our proposal allows for a gradual process in reducing grants-in-aid in sports other than football and basketball," Broman said. "This will enable an institution to award aid to incoming prospects in those sports without jeopardizing continuation of aid to athletes enrolled prior to August of last year."

He said there is no proposal before the convention that would change the 95 limit of tenders that can be in effect at any one time in football. The conference merely is seeking, in effect, to delay for two years the process of getting from a higher number to a lower number

Meanwhile, Husker football coach Tom Osborne was a speaker at the American Football Coaches Association clinic, which began Tuesday morning at the Chase Park Plaza Hotel.

He also appeared before the AFCA ethics committee as a result of the censure and penalty NU received in connection with the illegal trip to the Sugar Bowl game a year ago of two Huskers, Vince Ferragamo and Ray Phillips.

"This is a standard procedure of the coaches association for coaches who have been censured or who have been on probation," Osborne said. "It was more of a conversation than a hearing." The ethics committee is composed of four coaches at NCAA schools.

Colleges Eye Sudden-Death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The American Football Coaches Association is in favor of a form of sudden-death overtime for all college football games, it was learned Tuesday.

Other rule-change recommendations would:

—Reduce all 15-yard penalties to 10 yards except for personal fouls.

—Adopt the professional rule that any fourth-down offensive fumble inside the defensive team's 10-yard line recovered by the offense be marked at the spot of the fumble. This would rule out gains near the goal line on forward fumbles.

—Add 15 yards for roughing the passer even if the pass is completed.

Bellevue Topples NWU

Bellevue — Hot second-half shooting boosted Bellevue to its sixth win in its last eight games as the Bruins downed Nebraska Wesleyan Tuesday night 91-80.

The loss marked the worst non-conference season ever for the Plainsmen, now 1-10, having lost their last four games.

Wesleyan took a 40-38 halftime lead behind the shooting of forward Bob Otto, who hit seven of eight shots in the first half, including a bucket with six seconds left to give NWU the lead

Neither team could establish a firm command of the game, as the score was tied 11 times. But with 14 40 left Bellevue, now 8-4, took the lead for good on a shot by freshman Mike Burkhart. Burkhart hit six of eight shots from the field in the game and scored 16 points.

Bruin scoring leader Greg Smith, a 6-4 junior forward, led all scorers with 24 points, 20 in the second half.

The Bruins connected on 22 of 35 field goals in the second half (63%) and outrebounded NWU 23-16 in the second stanza. Bellevue hit 56% for the game and held a 40-34 rebounding edge.

Bellevue's other forward Bob Drake scored 23 points, while Otto paced the Plainsmen with 22 points. NWU guards Angelo Lilly and Bob Knollenberg scored 16 points each.

The Plainsmen return to Lincoln to open the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season Saturday against league favorite Hastings at 7:30 p.m.

Suit Spurs NFL To Postpone Expansion, College Drafts

MIAMI (AP) — The National Football League said Tuesday it had portponed both its scheduled expansion draft to stock the Tampa Bay and Seattle franchises and its college draft in the wake of a joint suit filed by the two new teams against the NFL Players Association

The expansion draft had been scheduled for Jan 23-24 and the college draft had been set for Feb 3-4 Both were put off following the announcement of the suit filed in federal court in Miami, and there was no indication when they would be held.

The suit was filed Tuesday by owner Hugh Culverhouse of Tampa and managing general partner Herman Sarkowsky of Seattle against the players' union, key union officials and player representatives of the current 26 NFL teams. The suit asks that an injunction be issued to prohibit the players' union from any interference in the stocking of the franchises In effect, it asks the court to sanction the veterans' draft.

The union had previously threatened to try and stop the veteran draft, although it has taken no legal action But Tuesday's actions delays the two drafts indefinitely and thus temporarily halts any future plans being made by any NFL team.

Each team must decide which players it is going to make available to Tampa Bay and Seattle, and then must also plan its college draft. In conjunction with those drafts, teams might negotiate trades. All of that must now await another court case.

If the action drags out, the league would presumably go ahead with the college draft. But Tuesday's suit could conceivably mean that Tampa and Seattle will not have NFL teams next season.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said the delay is necessary in order to permit the court sufficient time to determine the legality of the veteran draft. And he said it would be impractical to conduct the college draft with Seattle and Tampa Bay participating, then find that expansion to the two cities had to be postponed or abandoned because of their inability to receive the allocation of veterans.

If the veteran draft were found to be illegal, the future of Tampa and Seattle would be clouded.

Culverhouse, at the NFL's Super Bowl headquarters, said, "as a lawyer myself, I would hope this matter would be resolved in three or four or maybe six weeks."

Asked why he was taking legal action when none has yet been taken by the players' union, Culverhouse said: "I don't take to threats "

Players' union head Ed Garvey said last month that the union would attempt to stop any draft of veteran players. On Tuesday, Garvey declined comment on the action.

Culverhouse declined to speculate on whether the postponements might cost him potential players from the college draft, players who might now sign with the Canadian Football League.

"I don't want to prejudice this case," he said. "All I know is that I have a contract to stock my team from others and all I'm asking is for the court to make a legal determination on that."

Culverhouse said that, prior to his filing the suit, he was in contact with a number of other NFL club owners. "There was," he said, "some varying opinion—but there was no disagreement as such, with my decision. None voiced any objection."

He also said he had spoken with Rozelle but declined to state the nature of the commissioner's comments

Culverhouse and Sarkowsky said the suit had been filed because of the positions taken on the veteran allocation by the union and as a result of the recent Minneapolis court decision on the Rozelle Rule.

In that case, a federal judge ruled illegal the compensation clause that allows Rozelle to turn over players and-or draft choices to teams which lose free agents who have played out their options.

The Seattle-Tampa suit points out that the veteran player draft is the same that has been used to stock past NFL expansion teams and that it "will not in any respect restrict or restrain any competition for the services" of veteran NFL players

The suit alleges that the union has threatened to disrupt the expansion plans and has engaged in willful interference with the rights of the two new teams.

Major League Boycott Of Seattle Told

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Major league baseball threatened to blacklist Seattle if a suit by the city, state and King County went to trial, the governments have told the Superior Court proceeding.

The plaintiffs told the court in a motion filed Friday that they needed to raise their damage claims because of baseball's promise to boycott the city.

The city, state and county told the court their damages would total $32.5 million because Seattle, "in all probability, will not obtain a major league baseball franchise prior to the completion of the 1990 baseball season, if ever.

"Representatives of the defendants have stated that Seattle will never obtain a major league baseball franchise if the present lawsuit goes to trial," the motion said.

It also said that earlier claims by baseball that a franchise might become available have proven false, and that statements made by baseball officials recently indicate there will be no quick expansion of teams.

Lawyers for the two sides were not available immediately for comment.

The motion said that the governments originally wanted about $21 million based on the expectation that Seattle "would have a major league team by 1980."

The trial of the suit against the American League and its teams opened Monday, despite the alleged threat.

Baseball's lawyer told the court Tuesday that the governments were guilty of "a shakedown" because of their efforts to use the suit to obtain a team.

American League attorney John Ferguson of Cleveland told Superior Court Judge Frank Howard that the nine-woman, three man jury should not hear testimony on whether Seattle, in the late 1960s and early 1970s, was able to support a major league team.

"It is terribly important to keep this from the jury—it is one of the serious innuendos," Ferguson told the court during a day devoted to processing technical and procedural motions.

"The purpose of the lawsuit, in the words of the attorney general in the newspapers, has been to bring a franchise to Seattle." That, he said, amounted to "a shakedown."

Tipoff: 7:30 p.m. Fuhrer Fieldhouse, Crete.

Crete—It will be a battle of the haves and have-nots Wednesday night when Peru State travels to Crete to face the streaking Doane Tigers in Fuhrer Fieldhouse in a non-conference game.

The Tigers, who have won six games in a row, are currently 6-5 in non-conference action and will open their Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season Saturday against Midland in Fremont.

Peru, meanwhile in 1-9 overall and 0-1 in the Nebraska College Conference.

The Tigers have averaged 83 points per game in their last six outings, including a win at Peru, and guard Joe Wharton, who has 1,047 career points, has been hitting at a 21 points per game clip in those six tilts.

Peru offers a completely new team from last year's 2-22 team. This year first year coach Jack Stewart is starting three freshmen, a sophomore and a junior.

Freshman forward Aubrey Matthews, 6-4, is currently the leading scorer, and rebounder on the Bobcat squad. Russ Mort, a 6-3 sophomore forward leads the team and the state college in field goal percentage with a .733 mark.

While the Bobcat offense hasn't been as effective as coach Stewart would like, averaging 62.1 points per game the Peru defense is fourth in the state allowing only 74.4 points per game.

"We're trying to rebuild the whole basketball image here at Peru," said Stewart. "Our recruiting is looking good and we've gained quite a following from the student body."

"We're just looking for improvement every week and hope to be able to say we've done the job by the end of the season," Stewart said.

"We caught Doane off guard early in our first game with them, but they showed their experience and talent by adjusting to us quickly," Stewart said. "We know we're facing a very well coached team, when we play Doane."

"I just hoped we can come out of the game with our heads held high knowing that we did our best and showed improvement," Stewart concluded.

Major League Boycott Of Seattle Told

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Major league baseball threatened to blacklist Seattle if a suit by the city, state and King County went to trial, the governments have told the Superior Court proceeding.

The plaintiffs told the court in a motion filed Friday that they needed to raise their damage claims because of baseball's promise to boycott the city.

The city, state and county told the court their damages would total $32.5 million because Seattle, "in all probability, will not obtain a major league baseball franchise prior to the completion of the 1990 baseball season, if ever.

"Representatives of the defendants have stated that Seattle will never obtain a major league baseball franchise if the present lawsuit goes to trial," the motion said.

It also said that earlier claims by baseball that a franchise might become available have proven false, and that statements made by baseball officials recently indicate there will be no quick expansion of teams.

Lawyers for the two sides were not available immediately for comment.

The motion said that the governments originally wanted about $21 million based on the expectation that Seattle "would have a major league team by 1980."

The trial of the suit against the American League and its teams opened Monday, despite the alleged threat.

Baseball's lawyer told the court Tuesday that the governments were guilty of "a shakedown" because of their efforts to use the suit to obtain a team.

American League attorney John Ferguson of Cleveland told Superior Court Judge Frank Howard that the nine-woman, three man jury should not hear testimony on whether Seattle, in the late 1960s and early 1970s, was able to support a major league team.

"It is terribly important to keep this from the jury—it is one of the serious innuendos," Ferguson told the court during a day devoted to processing technical and procedural motions.

"The purpose of the lawsuit, in the words of the attorney general in the newspapers, has been to bring a franchise to Seattle." That, he said, amounted to "a shakedown."

Tipoff: 7:30 p.m. Fuhrer Fieldhouse, Crete.

Crete—It will be a battle of the haves and have-nots Wednesday night when Peru State travels to Crete to face the streaking Doane Tigers in Fuhrer Fieldhouse in a non-conference game.

The Tigers, who have won six games in a row, are currently 6-5 in non-conference action and will open their Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season Saturday against Midland in Fremont.

Peru, meanwhile in 1-9 overall and 0-1 in the Nebraska College Conference.

The Tigers have averaged 83 points per game in their last six outings, including a win at Peru, and guard Joe Wharton, who has 1,047 career points, has been hitting at a 21 points per game clip in those six tilts.

Peru offers a completely new team from last year's 2-22 team. This year first year coach Jack Stewart is starting three freshmen, a sophomore and a junior.

Freshman forward Aubrey Matthews, 6-4, is currently the leading scorer, and rebounder on the Bobcat squad. Russ Mort, a 6-3 sophomore forward leads the team and the state college in field goal percentage with a .733 mark.

While the Bobcat offense hasn't been as effective as coach Stewart would like, averaging 62.1 points per game the Peru defense is fourth in the state allowing only 74.4 points per game.

"We're trying to rebuild the whole basketball image here at Peru," said Stewart. "Our recruiting is looking good and we've gained quite a following from the student body."

"We're just looking for improvement every week and hope to be able to say we've done the job by the end of the season," Stewart said.

"We caught Doane off guard early in our first game with them, but they showed their experience and talent by adjusting to us quickly," Stewart said. "We know we're facing a very well coached team, when we play Doane."

"I just hoped we can come out of the game with our heads held high knowing that we did our best and showed improvement," Stewart concluded.

Something Makes Sense

St. Louis — Believe it or not, there are some things on the agenda to be considered at the 70th NCAA Convention here this week that make sense. Many of them don't — in fact, very, very many of them don't.

Two of those that do look like wise moves might not even be considered since they're so far down on the list of 303 items of proposed legislation and since they aren't ranked under the "urgent — must be resolved" label.

The first one would end the ridiculous practice of scheduling games as far ahead as 10 to 15 years in football and almost as far ahead in basketball. The other would require that the first three days of spring football practice would be held without pads, just as is required for the first three days of preseason workouts in the fall.

The first proposal is No. 264, which means 163 legislative items must be considered before it. The other one is No. 269. Neither may make it to the floor of the convention.

If No. 264 is passed, contracts for football games won't be permitted for a period of over six years and for basketball the limit would be three years. Nebraska, for example, has non-conference games scheduled way past my retirement date, as far ahead as 1990.

If the rule is passed, all contracts signed beyond the next six seasons will be declared null and void. This would help avoid some of the mismatches that at the time of contract signing appeared to match teams of nearly equal ability.

'Most Critical Items'

Darrell Royal, Texas football coach and president of the American Football Coaches Association thinks the most critical items that must be resolved in the convention are in the area of recruiting.

"We started making restrictions in Chicago at the special convention in August in the hurried-up session," Royal said Tuesday. "But we didn't get the type of legislation that was intended."

Royal's opinions on the type of legislation, however, aren't universally shared by his peers. For example, Ben Martin of Air Force Academy, Carman Cozza of Yale, Jim "Red" Parker of Clemson, and Eddie Robinson of Grambling see many different problems than those of Royal because of different situations at each institution.

Royal, Martin, Parker, Robinson and Cozza appeared on a panel discussing problems with newsmen Tuesday afternoon and their various statements point up with basic problem of the NCAA — There are wide and varying differences in colleges, both academically and athletically, and no one set of rules ever is going to please everyone.

This fact is the most compelling one to support autonomy of conferences and independents in making their own recruiting rules, travel squad limits, coaching staff numbers and many other things.

Cozza brought up probably the least considered thing by the average fan about college athletics — the athletes themselves. All of the others on the panel agreed with him and all felt the NCAA has not been remiss in its responsibility to see that the athlete is not exploited in any manner.

GI's Finn Proves Shooting Skills

By RANDY YORK

Sixty-three per cent field goal shooting is impressive just in practice.

It's more impressive in competition. It's even more impressive in Class A competition.

It's almost unheard of when someone shoots with such accuracy while averaging 25.5 points a game.

Yet Jeff Finn, a 6-5 junior center for Grand Island's third-ranked unbeaten team, meets all the qualifications.

He put his shooting talents on display last weekend with 24 points against Columbus and 37 against Kearney to earn the Sunday Journal and Star's prep Player of the Week award.

He accomplished the 61-point weekend on the strength of 59% field goal shooting (20 of 34) and 87% free throw accuracy (21 of 24).

Against Columbus, Finn hit 9 of 15 field goals and 6 of 8 free throws. In the Islanders' win over Kearney, their eighth of the season, he connected on 11 of 19 field goal tries and cashed 15 of 16 free throws.

Before anyone wonders if Finn neglected his board duties, it should be pointed out he collected 25 rebounds last weekend — 14 against Columbus and 11 against Kearney.

Not surprisingly, Finn is the state's most prolific Class A scorer. He started the season with 19 points against Millard, then hit 28 against North Platte, 12 against Beatrice, 26 against Fremont, 33 against Holdrege, 25 against Kearney the first time, 24 against Columbus and 37 against Kearney the second time.

For the season, he's hit 82 of 131 shots for 63%. He's averaging 13 rebounds.

"Jeff has good moves for a postman," says Grand Island coach Bill Kropp. "He also gets above the bucket real well for tipins. He works hard. He wants to be a good ball player and spends time to be one. Very dedicated, very coachable."

Finn also was the starting tight end last fall on Grand Island's state-qualifying football team. "That helped make him more aggressive," Kropp notes, "but we want him to get even moreso."

If that happens this season or next, Finn's potential may be limitless. He might set his goals for a 30-point average and 70%.

But he'll be more intent on winning. "That's what he cares about most," says Kropp.

Others who'll receive Player of the Week cards include:

Daryl Stovall, Bellevue — In his first varsity starting assignment, 6-3 sophomore hit 7 of 11 field goals and 5 of 6 free throws for 19 points and collected 16 rebounds as Chieftans defeated Omaha South, 59-51. Daryl's the first in his family to compete in basketball. Older brothers Cliff and Rod were football standouts at Bellevue.

Dave Winter, Seward — Six-one senior had experienced below average shooting night, but drilled 12-foot jumpshot with four seconds remaining to give Class B-rated Bluejays 44-42 triumph over Central City.

Randy Mroczek, North Platte St. Pat's — Senior forward had 46-point weekend in unbeaten Class C team's wins over Grant and Hershey. In scoring 26 points against Grand and 20 against Hershey, he finished 20 of 33 from the field. He also retrieved 22 rebounds and played outstanding defense in both games.

Rodney Crook, Rising City — Five-nine guard scored eight points in crucial spots in team's 89-87 double overtime win over Silver Creek and registered 22 points in 74-61 win over Bradshaw. He hit 60 per cent for the weekend from the field and was credited with 15 assists.

Randy Flamig, Dalton — Junior forward hit 12 of 22 shots for 27 points and hauled down 22 rebounds as team downed Bushnell, 64-51.

Ken Adkisson, Geneva — Six-six senior had 65-point weekend in Class C team's split with Class B's Superior (62-60 win) and Fairbury (84-81 loss). He hit 30 against Superior and 35 against Fairbury. For the weekend, he hit 28 of 51 field goals, 9 of 13 free throws and collected 25 rebounds.

Dan Schmitz, Scottsbluff — In his first starting assignment, he led balanced scoring attack with 12 points and turned in strong defensive game as Bearcats upset McCook, 49-46.

Dick Seckman, Schuyler — Senior forward hit 9 of 13 shots and added a pair of free throws for 18 points and had eight rebounds as Warriors handed Ord its first loss of the season, 75-54, at Ord.

Russ Green, Omaha Benson — Junior guard's long-range basket as buzzer sounded gave Bunnies 66-64 win over Creighton Prep and No. 1 Class A rating in the Sunday Journal and Star.

Doug Holtmeier, Lexington — Junior canned 9 of 14 shots for game high 22 points in Minutemen's 62-56 win over Lincoln Pius X, then hit 16 points in Lex's 71-47 coast past Broken Bow.

Ken Misfeldt, Arlington — Senior forward registered season high 32 points as team edged fellow Class B-rated Ashland, 73-68.

By DAVE SITTLER

For a coach who thinks he has three potential all-Americans on his squad, George Nicodemus still sounds like a worried man.

"At times, we've been playing like we're sleeping," the Nebraska women's basketball coach said. "We've had too many turnovers and haven't been checking well on defense."

Nicodemus will try to iron out those problems before Wednesday night, when the Huskers host the University of Nebraska-Omaha in a 7:30 p.m. contest at the NU Coliseum.

Despite its troubles, Nebraska has built a 6-3 overall record, behind the play of center Jan Crouch, forward Darcy Williamson and guard Kathy Hawkins.

"On the basis of my previous experience with all-American selections, I can't help but think Crouch, Hawkins and Williamson have a great potential for making all-American status," said Nicodemus, who coached at John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo before joining the Nebraska staff this fall.

Crouch, a freshman from Lincoln is averaging an identical 8 points and 8 rebounds a game. Williamson, a frosh from Arapahoe and Hawkins, a junior from Omaha, are scoring at a 15.2 and 14.2 average per game.

"I think Jan (Crouch) may have come into her own during our loss (65-62) to Northwest Missouri State last week," Nicodemus said of the former Lincoln East athlete who scored 25 points in defeat.

Coming off a month-long break, UNO enters the game with a 2-3 mark.

"I know they have two highly-sought after Iowa High School players on the team," Nicodemus said.

The two are 6-4 center Jolene Blass, an all-stater for Lakeview Auburn High School, the Iowa state champion last year, and Niece Jochims, another all-stater from West Harrison, Ia., High School.

Rounding out the starting lineup for coach Dee Grindle's Mavericks will be guards Elaine Johnson and Kathy Drickey and forward Judy Mulius.

Guard Sheery Brink and forward Deb Lee will join Crouch, Williamson and Hawkins in the Nebraska lineup, according to Nicodemus.

Something Makes Sense

St. Louis — Believe it or not, there are some things on the agenda to be considered at the 70th NCAA Convention here this week that make sense. Many of them don't — in fact, very, very many of them don't.

Two of those that do look like wise moves might not even be considered since they're so far down on the list of 303 items of proposed legislation and since they aren't ranked under the "urgent — must be resolved" label.

The first one would end the ridiculous practice of scheduling games as far ahead as 10 to 15 years in football and almost as far ahead in basketball. The other would require that the first three days of spring football practice would be held without pads, just as is required for the first three days of preseason workouts in the fall.

The first proposal is No. 264, which means 163 legislative items must be considered before it. The other one is No. 269. Neither may make it to the floor of the convention.

If No. 264 is passed, contracts for football games won't be permitted for a period of over six years and for basketball the limit would be three years. Nebraska, for example, has non-conference games scheduled way past my retirement date, as far ahead as 1990.

If the rule is passed, all contracts signed beyond the next six seasons will be declared null and void. This would help avoid some of the mismatches that at the time of contract signing appeared to match teams of nearly equal ability.

'Most Critical Items'

Darrell Royal, Texas football coach and president of the American Football Coaches Association thinks the most critical items that must be resolved in the convention are in the area of recruiting.

"We started making restrictions in Chicago at the special convention in August in the hurried-up session," Royal said Tuesday. "But we didn't get the type of legislation that was intended."

Royal's opinions on the type of legislation, however, aren't universally shared by his peers. Royal, Martin, Parker, Robinson and Cozza appeared on a panel discussing problems with newsmen Tuesday afternoon and their various statements point up with basic problem of the NCAA — There are wide and varying differences in colleges, both academically and athletically, and no one set of rules ever is going to please everyone.

This fact is the most compelling one to support autonomy of conferences and independents in making their own recruiting rules, travel squad limits, coaching staff numbers and many other things.

Cozza brought up probably the least considered thing by the average fan about college athletics — the athletes themselves. All of the others on the panel agreed with him and all felt the NCAA has not been remiss in its responsibility to see that the athlete is not exploited in any manner.

Diagrams show the key offensive plays for the Dallas Cowboys and the Pittsburgh Steelers. In the Harris counter, Steeler fullback Franco Harris takes a step toward the weak side then takes a handoff from quarterback Terry Bradshaw and cuts to the opposite side between tackle and guard. The Cowboys use the 'Shotgun', in which quarterback Roger Staubach deep in the backfield and moving to his left while receivers Golden Richards, Drew Pearson and Jean Fugett head down field and Robert Newhouse heads for the sidelines.

Fullback Sweep Fake Aids Steelers' Harris Counter

By The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Steelers like to get a team looking for their fullback sweep to the weakside with Franco Harris. That's when they try to spring Harris on a counter play off the strongside tackle.

The weakside is the side without the tight end; the strongside is the side with the tight end. On the weakside sweep, Harris takes a pitch and has the option to cut upfield whenever he chooses behind the block of halfback Rocky Bleier.

On the counter, Harris takes one step to the weakside to simulate that sweep. Then he gets the handoff from quarterback Terry Bradshaw and cuts back to the opposite side to pick his way between the tackle and guard.

This is one of the Steelers' favorite plays, and is one the Dallas Cowboys are sure to see in Super Bowl X. One key block comes from the weakside guard. He steps behind the center and swings around to take the middle linebacker, whom the Steelers hope will be influenced in the wrong direction by Harris' first step to the weakside.

Beyond the element of trickery, the play also involves what is known as straight-up blocking on the strong side. That means the linemen generally block the defender in front of them, trying to take that man whichever way they can. It is up to Harris to find the opening.

"There's always a premium on basic, fundamental football," says Steeler Coach Chuck Noll. "I think there is always a premium on that. That's the biggest thing you have going for you. You try to win big games with basic fundamental football."

Confidence Peps Bradshaw

MIAMI (UPI) — Confidence is a trait nurtured by success.

Terry Bradshaw has confidence...and he also has success — and that's the big difference between the quarterback who led the underdog Pittsburgh Steelers into Super Bowl IX and the one leading the solidly favored Iron City men into Super Bowl X.

"The big thing I have this year over last season is confidence," said Bradshaw, who threw 11 more touchdown passes this season than last year when the Steelers won their first conference championship. "I feel it from my coaches and I feel it from my team. I feel more at home. I don't feel any heat or pressure. I feel I can rally this team when we're down.

"I felt the same way five years ago, but the results are a lot better now."

Bradshaw hit nine of 14 passes for 96 yards and one touchdown in Pittsburgh's initial Super Bowl engagement, directing the Steelers to a 16-6 triumph over the Minnesota Vikings. But the blond quarterback did not feel comfortable as a weapon in the massive Pittsburgh artillery. So he lost 30 pounds during the off-season, dropping from 232 to just over 200.

"I felt I was too big," Bradshaw explained. "I felt I didn't have the quickness or stamina. I wasn't utilizing all my talents."

The new, sleeker version of Terry Bradshaw hit a career high 57.7 per cent of his passes this season for 2,055 yards and 18 touchdowns, with just nine interceptions in 286 throws. He led Pittsburrgh to a 12-2 record, the best mark in the AFC, and was named as the starting quarterback for the American Conference team in next week's pro bowl in New Orleans as a reward.

But the real reward will come Sunday in the Orange Bowl against the National Conference champion Dallas Cowboys. That's when the Steelers hope, again, to prove themselves as the best team in pro football.

"We've proven ourselves all season," Bradshaw said. "Everyone was up for us and teams that a lot of people laughed at, like Chicago and Green Bay, gave us fits. We showed character this season and we showed poise and that's why we're back here.

"But if you told me before the season we'd have to go 12-2 to get into the playoffs, I'd have said you were nuts. Look at Houston —they went 10-4 and didn't even make the playoffs. We're just happy to be here."

Pittsburgh's Greene Wants Improvement

MIAMI (AP) — Mean Joe Greene squinted up at the blazing Florida sun and smiled. "I think," he said, "that a week in the sun will make me feel just fine."

Greene and his Pittsburgh Steeler teammates started thawing out Tuesday, preparing for Sunday's Super Bowl showdown with the Dallas Cowboys. The Steelers came into their preparation period with injuries to Greene and Lynn Swann while the Cowboys are healthy.

A pinched nerve in Greene's neck and a pulled groin muscle cost him five games during the regular season and the awesome defensive tackle also sat out Pittsburgh's opening playoff game against Baltimore. He returned to action in the American Football Conference championship against Oakland—the game in which Swann was carried off the field with a concussion.

Although he played all the way in the title game, Greene wasn't thrilled with his performance. "I was a long way off," he said. "Looking at the films, I didn't match the intensity of the rest of our line. But I guess that's natural because I hadn't been playing. I hope I can close the gap."

After the AFC title game, Greene was asked to rate himself physically on a scale ot 1-10. "I was about a two, I guess," he said.

And where is he on that scale now? "Oh, about a four," he said smiling. But I feel good. Just a week of being in the sun and in the Super Bowl will be conducive to be recovering."

Swann felt the same way. Clotheslined by Oakland's George Atkinson in the championship game, the wide receiver had to be carried off the field on a stretcher. "I kept trying to stay on the bench and I kept toppling off," Swann said. "I was coming and going, coming and going."

Swann said the play on which he was injured was a broken post pattern. "I had to come back under," he said.

Atkinson's tackle put Swann in the hospital for two days, but he thinks he'll be able to play against the Cowboys. "I hope to play," he said. "It depends on how I feel. I may work a little lighter this week than ordinary. I don't want to take a chance on a post-concussion syndrome," which could involve possible brain damage.

Swann said he would take it easy during the Steeler workouts. "That may affect me physically, but not mentally," he said.

Super Bowl injuries are nothing new to the Steelers. Last year, defensive end Dwight White spent the preparation week in the hospital, with viral pneumonia. He came out for the game and was outstanding in the Steelers' 16-6 victory over Minnesota. Then he returned to the hospital for two more weeks.

'Shotgun' Pass Dangerous

By The Associated Press

It's a forward toss of only 36 inches or so. But the shovel pass as executed by the Dallas Cowboys is one of the most deadly weapons out of their "Shotgun Formation."

The play as devised by Coach Tom Landry and offensive coordinator Jim Myers burned Los Angeles for Dallas' fourth touchdown in last week's 37-7 National Conference title game.

And since it also produced a touchdown in the Cowboys' season-opening victory over the Rams, this is a play the Pittsburgh Steelers may see in Super Bowl X.

The play starts with quarterback Roger Staubach seven yards deep in the spread-shotgun formation. Halfback Preston Pearson is flanked out to the right. Before the ball is snapped by center John Fitzgerald, Pearson comes in motion toward Staubach, moving in front of him.

Staubach moves laterally to his left a few steps. As he does, wide receivers Drew Pearson and Golden Richards head downfield, and Staubach has the option of passing to them. Fullback Robert Newhouse, who is flanked to the left, brushes the defensive end and then cuts to the sidelines, making him a potential pass receiver also.

Now Staubach watches the defensive end. In the Los Angeles game, Ram end Fred Dryer moved toward the sideline and stopped. So Staubach shoveled the ball to Preston Pearson, running just in front of him.

Pearson cut inside of Dryer and followed blocks by Fitzgerald and pulling guard Blaine Nye for the 19-yard touchdown. Nobody had to touch Dryer, who looked on in disgust.

P. Pearson Happy In Return

MIAMI (AP) — When he was cut by Pittsburgh before the start of the season, Preston Pearson felt little but shock and bitterness—and hoped for revenge.

But getting back into the Super Bowl with the Dallas Cowboys—and against his former teammates on the Steelers—has mellowed him.

"Naturally I was upset when the Steelers let me go," the running back said Tuesday as he and his teammates began their preparations for Super Bowl X and their shot at dethroning the National Football League's defending champions.

"But don't call this a revenge game for me," Pearson emphasized. "I'm just glad to be here. That's enough for me now. Getting cut by the Steelers was a decision I guess the coaches just had to make.

"Sure it didn't sit well with me at the time. Sure I was hurt. Upset. Angry. But that feeling didn't last long. I was thankful when Dallas picked me up and more thankful when I got to play."

Pearson will be the first player to be in three Super Bowls with three different teams— Baltimore in Super Bowl III, Pittsburgh last year and now Dallas.

Pittsburgh cut the nine-year veteran from Illinois simply because it had too many running backs. He surprisingly cleared waivers, perhaps because the ax fell so late in the exhibition season. He then was signed as a free agent by the Cowboys, who had some holes to fill in the backfield. And he signed for more than he'd made with the Steelers in 1974.

"We just looked at the list of who was available and what we needed and there he was," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said. "His name almost jumped out at us. What sold us on him was his experience. Of course, we never expected him to work into our offense as well as he did."

Pearson was second to Robert Newhouse in rushing with 509 yards and was fourth on the club in receiving with 27 receptions for 351 yards. But in the National Conference championship, Dallas' 37-7 rout of Los Angeles, Pearson was one of the biggest stars. He caught three of Roger Staubach's four touchdown passes, covering 18, 15 and 19 yards. He finished the game with seven receptions for 123 yards—and another 20 yards on seven rushes.

"That's the thing that stands out in my mind," he said, stressing the disparity of the two yardage totals. "On the ground is where I want to be known. Nobody talks about how O. J. Simpson catches the ball. How he runs with it is the whole thing. I want to be able to say I ran for 250 yards in a game some day."

He says he's proud, of course, of his performance against the Rams. "But I've got to put that game completely out of my mind now," he said. "The best thing for me—and for all of us—is to just forget about that game. If we dwell on it too much. If we sort of bathe ourselves in our own glory, it's going to kill us when Sunday comes around."

QB Staubach Surprised In Bowl Berth

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — The chances were very good a month ago that the NFC champion quarterback would be Frank Tarkenton of Minnesota, or maybe James Harris of Los Angeles, or perhaps Jim Hart of St. Louis.

But it turned out to be Roger Staubach, and Staubach wanted everyone to know Tuesday that he was just as surprised as anyone else.

"Listen, I'm just happy to be here," said Staubach who has directed the fast improving Dallas Cowboys to their Super Bowl X date with Pittsburgh.

"When we won the Super Bowl against Miami (four years ago) we had a team that was supposed to win. We had a team that had pressure on it. We had never won the big one and we knew we had to break that stigma.

"This time is 100 per cent different from a psychological standpoint. At the first of the season we were just hoping to be competitive. We were happy just to get in the playoffs. Then we were thrilled to beat Minnesota and now we are happy to be here."

So Staubach is officially on record as being pleased as punch at being in Miami this week and it sounds as if the Cowboys have accomplished all anyone could hope from them and that the Super Bowl is being treated as nothing more than a vacation.

Steelers Relaxed, Confident

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.(UPI) — Relaxed confidence for the Pittsburgh Steelers and cautious optimism for the Dallas Cowboys — those were the keynotes Tuesday as the clubs prepared for their Super Bowl X matchup Sunday in Miami's Orange Bowl.

The defending champion Steelers followed their pattern of last season when they cavorted through a week's practice in New Orleans and then throttled the Minnesota Vikings, 16-6, in Super Bowl IX. Most of the Steelers appeared relaxed and confident Tuesday as they posed for photos and handled a media throng at their Biscayne College training field in Miami.

"We were loose last year and maybe we're even looser this year," said middle linebacker Jack Lambert, who was outstanding in the Steelers' earlier playoff victories over Baltimore and Oakland en route to the American Conference title.

"We know what to expect. We won't let the distractions bother us. We know what we're capable of doing and we feel confident we'll be able to do it Sunday.

"I honestly feel this is a reflection of our coaching. Chuck Noll is not your rah-rah type. We don't get pep talks — we get game plans that work. He coaches like a professional and not like a high school coach and you're relaxed because you know you're 100 per cent prepared."

"We'll prepare for this one just like we have for every game this year," said quarterback Terry Bradshaw. "We're not about to change anything. We'll have our same old dull offense — nothing fancy, but good enough to win."

Meanwhile, free safety Cliff Harris, who will be playing in his third Super Bowl for Dallas, expressed some cautious concern.

"I think the guys are a little tight," said Harris at the Cowboys' Fort Lauderdale training site. "There's a little fear. You notice it and it'll probably show more as the week goes on. We have a lot of young guys who have never been here before and they really don't know what to expect. A lot of the veterans talked to them about all the distractions here and how it wouldn't be the same as a normal game. but I guess that's what makes it the Super Bowl.

"We've been playing a lot of pressure games recently. Nobody thought we'd beat Minnesota and nobody gave us a chance against Los Angeles, but we won those two and we're here. We're under pressure but we've reacted under pressure as the year's gone on and I hope we'll do the same Sunday."

"I'm sure we'll all be nervous as the week progresses," said quarterback Roger Staubach. "But nervousness is not necessarily a bad thing. Sometimes you play better."

There were still two big question marks for the Steelers. Wide receiver Lynn Swann has had problems recovering from a concussion suffered against Oakland in the AFC title game last week.

Fullback Sweep Fake Aids Steelers' Harris Counter

Omaha Banking Post Resigned By Hasebroock

Omaha (AP) — Robert W. Hasebroock, executive vice president of the United States National Bank in Omaha, said Tuesday he has resigned that post and will not seek reelection to the bank's board of directors.

Hasebroock said he is leaving because of dissatisfaction with the bank's executive reorganization which brought in Donald Murphy as the new president in October.

Murphy, former president of Omaha's Northwestern National Bank, succeeded Kermit Hansen, who advanced to board chairman.

Both U.S. National and Northwestern National are affiliates of the Northwest Bancorporation of Minneapolis.

Hasebroock, No. 2 man in the bank under Hansen prior to Murphy's appointment, said the reorganization "doesn't fit my career objectives."

He said he is considering several job possibilities.

Dimestore Has $500 Burglary

Lincoln police received a report of the theft of more than $500 in cash and merchandise from the Woolworth's store at 1117 O St. sometime during the weekend.

Store officials told police that someone was apparently locked inside the building when the store closed for business Saturday night. Missing was $446 in cash from a register, $23.50 in quarters and a Timex watch, they said.

Thatch Hides Timely Items

Naughton, England (UPI) — Time capsules used to be a big thing in the 1920's, but time-capsuled thatched roofs are something else.

Thatchers who recently finished putting a new cap on the Wheelhouse Inn in Naughton buried a surprise for whoever does the job next, in about 80 years' time.

They smuggled into the thatch a list of what things cost in 1975, a local newspaper, an assortment of coins, two bottles of beer — and a list of the thatchers' current wages.

Lincoln County Board Okays Recall Election

Lincoln County commissioners voted Tuesday to hold a special recall election Feb. 24.

A group of county residents began a petition drive to recall all three board members last year. The petitions were circulated in Lincoln County after the commissioners approved a comprehensive land use plan over the objections of some residents.

A suit by Robert Brown of Hershey was dismissed Dec. 23 in Lincoln County Court. That suit claimed County Clerk Virgil Burke had improperly certified signatures on the petitions.

The commissioners are Gerald Calhoun of North Platte, Leo Gutherless of Maxwell and William Dymond of Hershey.

Omaha Banking Post Resigned By Hasebroock

Omaha (AP) — Robert W. Hasebroock, executive vice president of the United States National Bank in Omaha, said Tuesday he has resigned that post and will not seek reelection to the bank's board of directors.

Hasebroock said he is leaving because of dissatisfaction with the bank's executive reorganization which brought in Donald Murphy as the new president in October.

Murphy, former president of Omaha's Northwestern National Bank, succeeded Kermit Hansen, who advanced to board chairman.

Both U.S. National and Northwestern National are affiliates of the Northwest Bancorporation of Minneapolis.

Hasebroock, No. 2 man in the bank under Hansen prior to Murphy's appointment, said the reorganization "doesn't fit my career objectives."

He said he is considering several job possibilities.

Dimestore Has $500 Burglary

Lincoln police received a report of the theft of more than $500 in cash and merchandise from the Woolworth's store at 1117 O St. sometime during the weekend.

Store officials told police that someone was apparently locked inside the building when the store closed for business Saturday night. Missing was $446 in cash from a register, $23.50 in quarters and a Timex watch, they said.

Thatch Hides Timely Items

Naughton, England (UPI) — Time capsules used to be a big thing in the 1920's, but time-capsuled thatched roofs are something else.

Thatchers who recently finished putting a new cap on the Wheelhouse Inn in Naughton buried a surprise for whoever does the job next, in about 80 years' time.

They smuggled into the thatch a list of what things cost in 1975, a local newspaper, an assortment of coins, two bottles of beer — and a list of the thatchers' current wages.

Lincoln County Board Okays Recall Election

Lincoln County commissioners voted Tuesday to hold a special recall election Feb. 24.

A group of county residents began a petition drive to recall all three board members last year. The petitions were circulated in Lincoln County after the commissioners approved a comprehensive land use plan over the objections of some residents.

A suit by Robert Brown of Hershey was dismissed Dec. 23 in Lincoln County Court. That suit claimed County Clerk Virgil Burke had improperly certified signatures on the petitions.

The commissioners are Gerald Calhoun of North Platte, Leo Gutherless of Maxwell and William Dymond of Hershey.

5 Servicemen's Bodies On Way To U.S. Burial

The bodies of Navy Lt. Cmdr. James L. Buckley and four other servicemen killed during the Vietnam War will be returned Wednesday to the United States.

Buckley, whose wife and three children reside in Lincoln, was shot down Aug. 21, 1967, over Communist China. The Chinese agreed to release his body and one other during President Ford's recent trip to China.

Mrs. Buckley said arrangements have been made for her husband's burial Monday at the Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia.

Military honor guards will meet the bodies when they arrive at Travis Air Force Base in California at noon aboard an Air Force transport.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Wednesday, January 14, 1976

Reporter David Shaw, of Los Angeles, asks which sign provokes the most response. The answer is easy. When I write about Leo, I receive more pro-and-con mail than when I comment on any of the other zodiacal signs. Why this should be, I cannot say. But it is true. Do you have the answer?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take special care in traffic. Postpone talk with relative — tendency could be for tempers to flare. Cancel short trip, if possible. Forces are scattered — people change their plans and could leave you holding bag. Know it and keep chin tucked in.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money picture is activated. What had been a block to cash flow is removed. Something occurs behind the scenes and you could be cash beneficiary. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio could be in picture. Read between the lines; be aware — and wary — of fine print.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Tendency is to make quick changes, to act on impulse, to fall in and out of love in the wink of an eye. Personality sparkles—but you can expect conflict with those who may be envious or offended by some of your alleged actions, remarks, statements.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Family "secrets" are not going to repose quietly. Shakeup due in area usually considered private domain. Taurus, Libra could figure prominently. Money, adjustment, remodeling special purchases all may be on agenda.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Friends tend to disagree, and there could be fireworks. Lovers' quarrel might also be spotlighted. You get what you want, but it might be too fast to enjoy. Know it and plan accordingly. Avoid any tendency to see as you wish instead of in light of reality.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accept responsibility. Way will also open to greater reward. Capricorn, Cancer persons could be in picture. Accent on promotion, achievement, standing in community, possible confrontation with professional superior. Stick to principles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Travel plans, publications are activated. Partner, mate expresses long-range views. You're able to get beyond the immediate, to obtain story in depth. Horizons are enlarged; ability to synthesize, interpret is enhanced. Aries may be in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Get to heart of matters — be independent in thought and action. Leo, Aquarius could figure in important ways. Accent on money as it affects partnership, other close relationship — and marriage. You'll soon know whether you have legal green light.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Wary approach to opposition, the public in general, would be wise. You teach, learn, share knowledge. Accent is on ability to "get along" with people. One close to you could challenge, test. Strive to be patient. Give logic equal time with impulse.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Highlight flexibility. Stress willingness to utilize available material. Practical methods dominate. Eschew the sensational. Gemini, Sagittarius persons might play key roles. Practical joke should be kept in proper perspective. Pet might need "special" attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Speculative instincts are activated. Quick moves, gambles are featured. Snap decision affects relationship with member of opposite sex. Another Aquarian, a Taurus or Scorpio could be in picture. Accent on change, variety, romantic episode.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on property and its value. Don't sell short. Patience now is your ally. Investigate. Ask questions. Answers are available — and obtainable. You are going to learn about security and more about the ways of the world.

IF JAN. 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are inquisitive, have great determination, "staying power" and you are attractive to the opposite sex. Project began last year beings to take hold — in June you will be handling more responsibility — and money. If single, you could marry. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life.

(Discover your love and money mates! Send 75 cents to Omarr Astrology Secrets, The Lincoln Star, P.O. Box 1111, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053. You'll find answers in Sydney Omarr's booklet, "Secret Hints for Men and Women.")

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Famous Nile Landmarks To Disappear

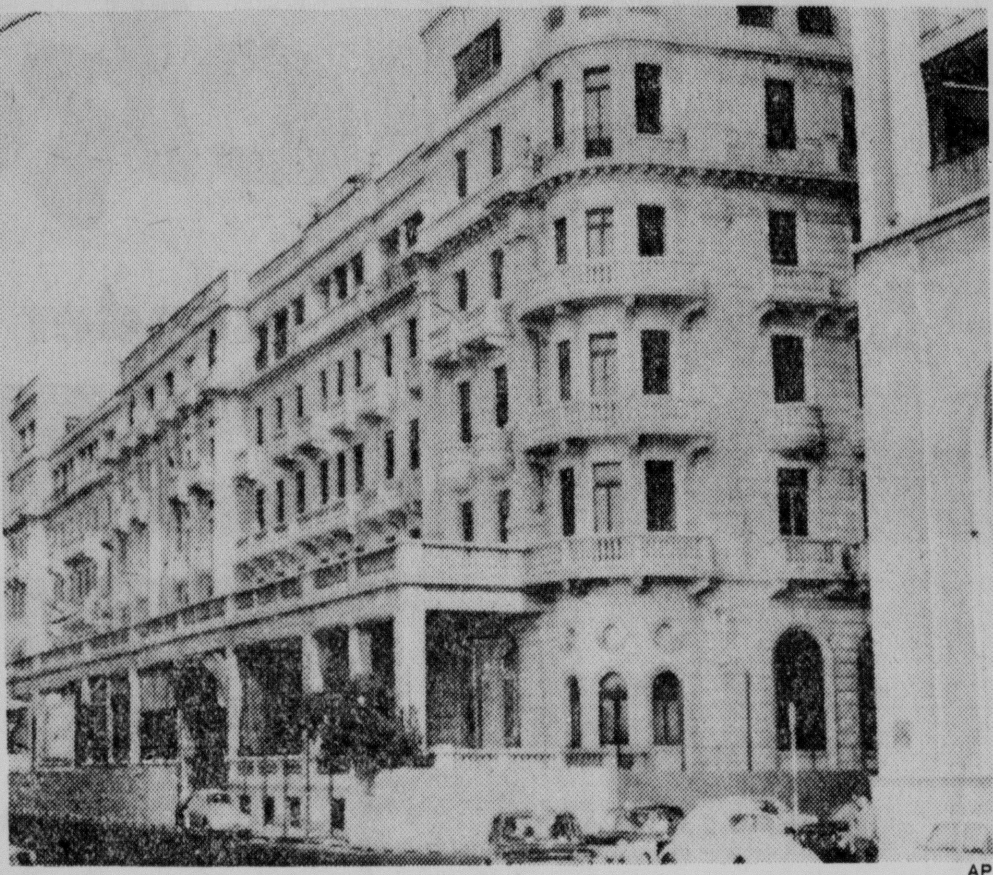
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Two famous landmarks on the banks of the Nile River harking back to the days when Britain ruled Egypt will soon disappear.

Less than a mile apart on the east bank of the river, the two buildings, the Semiramis Hotel and the Church of England's All Saints Cathedral, have been fixtures of the Cairo skyline for more than 25 years.

Named for an Iraqi princess, the Semiramis was built by Europeans in the early 1900s after a cotton boom. For years it was the meeting place of the famous and the well-to-do until two American luxury hotels were built.

Its guests included the late Aga Khan, and movie queen Rita Hayworth, who later married his son Ali.

Winston Churchill sipped tea on its terrace, savoring, as many visitors did, the broad stretch of the Nile below, dappled by a setting sun that even now makes the cream-colored, five-story building gleam like a Victorian wedding cake.



AP

SEMIRAMIS HOTEL . . . was meeting place of the famous.

There is a story, perhaps apocryphal, that Israel's current prime minister, Yitzhak Rabin, as a young officer during World War II frequented the hotel when it was the headquarters for the British army in Egypt.

Until 1952 when mobs attacked and burned them, massive British barracks were located next to the hotel. The barracks extended along the river bank to All Saints Cathedral.

In those days when Cairo was the place in the Middle East for a good time, the Semiramis Hotel was one of its focal points.

"It was where young men and girls of reputable families made their social debut," recalled Hugette Boulad, wife of a wealthy landowner and one of the regular clientele.

"The balls were fabulous. And in summer on the roof it was marvelous. Cairo at your feet, twinkling like a bracelet. A cool breeze, an orchestra, good food."

When it opened the Semiramis had Cairo's first elevators, in mahogany with brass fittings. Even in more recent times as it became a bit seedy, one still went there for croissants, considered the best in town.

But the hotel closed last summer, the furniture was sold and billboards now are going up around its perimeter. The Semiramis will be pulled down to be replaced by a pyramid-shaped, 850-room, $18 million hotel to be managed by the American Intercontinental chain.

One person who isn't sad is Abdel Kader Anwer, undersecretary of the Ministry of Tourism. He said: "To us Egyptians, the Semiramis reminds us of British occupation. Its name isn't even Egyptian. We must tear it down because it wastes space — 3,600 square meters for 180 rooms. It's run down. The Nile is eroding its foundations."

Two blocks away, parishioners at All Saints Cathedral held their last bazaar recently to raise funds for charity and a new church the government plans to build for them in another part of town.

The cathedral will be demolished to make way for a new bridge across the Nile.

"It's a shame," said one member of the congregation, " because this is one of the prettiest churches in the Middle East."

The board of the Anglican diocese agreed several years ago to allow the cathedral to be sold and demolished provided a new church was constructed elsewhere.

The cathedral was built in 1938 to hold 1,200 worshippers. Military plaques on the wall testify to the number of British soldiers that thronged to services then, but now congregations on Sunday rarely number more than 50.

All Saints plans to use an administrative building at the new site as a temporary place of worship and Sunday school until the government fulfills its promise to build the new church.

A lack of coordinated planning by the Cairo government and shortage of materials has held up construction.

Women Testify:

Sexual Harassment On Job Widespread

By Associated Press

"The first time my boss talked about a raise he put his hand on my knee.

"I walked a thin line between insulting him and yielding to him because my career was very important. It was degrading. If my boss had been a man in a bar, I could have told him to go to hell. But there was too much at stake. So I suffered."

That's how a 24-year-old woman in Nashville, Tenn., describes an episode of sexual harassment of working women, an old problem that women say shows no signs of going away.

"Sexual harassment of women at work is literally epidemic," says Lin Farley, lecturer and director of the women's division of the human affairs program at Cornell University.

Ms. Farley, who prefers the designation, testified before the New York City Human Rights Commission last spring that an estimated seven of every 10 working women have experienced sexual harassment.

Sexual harassment on the job refers to unwanted advances by bosses or managers. It can range from a pinch to a proposition, a leer to a lurch.

The victims can be young or old, pretty or homely, single or married. They can be waitresses or secretaries, cleaning women or career women.

There are no formal statistics on the problem, and the number of complaints is trifling because most women don't complain. They don't make a fuss because sexual harassment is embarassing, many women feel guilty and are afraid a complaint will cost them a job.

It is extremely difficult to prove and the burden of proof falls on the woman. Women rarely get unemployment benefits if the only reason for quitting was sexual harassment.

"It is a serious problem and exceptionally widespread," says Kay Whitlock, coordinator of the sexuality task force of the National Organization for Women.

"I imagine that almost every woman who has worked outside the home has experienced some form of harassment, from a pat on the fanny to a proposition. A lot of women are afraid that their jobs hinge on playing the game, so they do nothing."

"There is a lot of sexual harassment and a lot goes by the boards," says Charles Schwenk, deputy regional director of the lower Manhattan office of the New York State Division of Human Rights.

Under New York State human rights law, it is unlawful to deny a woman equal terms and conditions of employment.

"That covers sexual harassment and a female employe has the right to file a complaint with the state," Schwenk says.

"But few do. These cases are extremely difficult to prove because harassment usually goes on in private. It is usually one person's word against another's, unless there is evidence or witnesses."

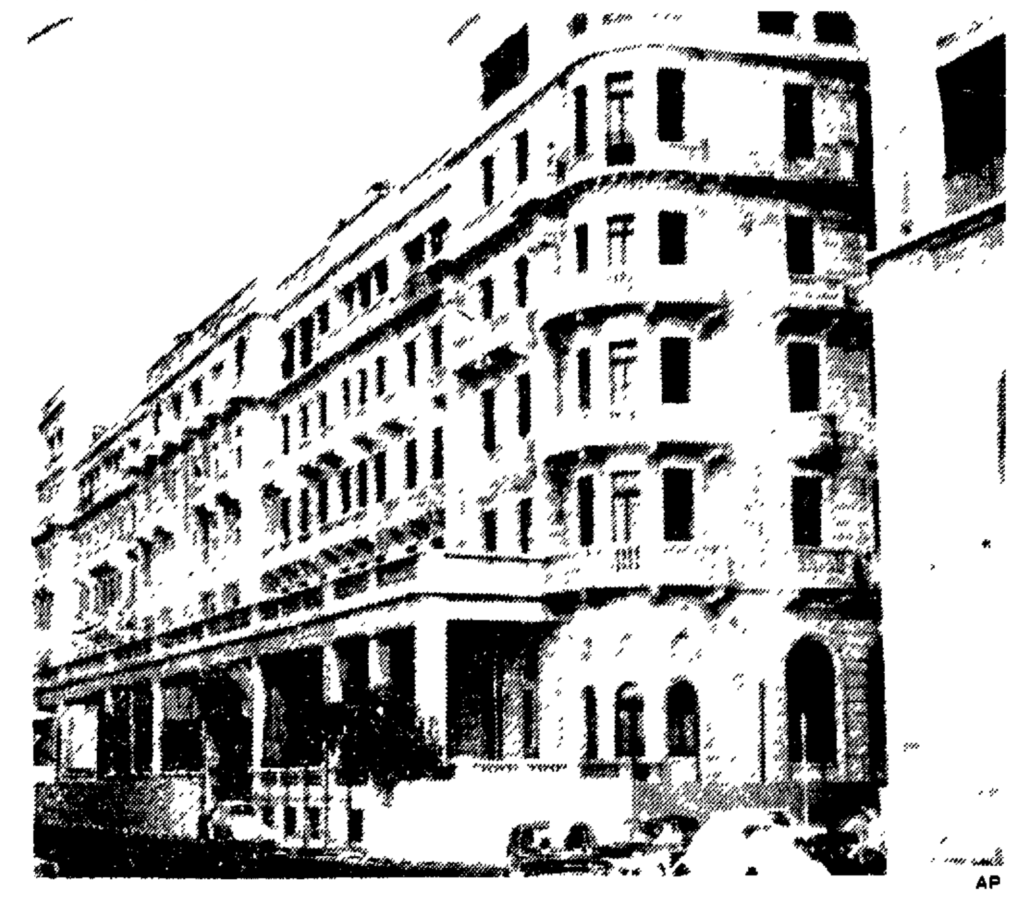
Famous Nile Landmarks To Disappear



SEMIRAMIS HOTEL . . . was meeting place of the famous.

AP

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Two famous landmarks on the banks of the Nile River harking back to the days when Britain ruled Egypt will soon disappear.

Less than a mile apart on the east bank of the river, the two buildings, the Semiramis Hotel and the Church of England's All Saints Cathedral, have been fixtures of the Cairo skyline for more than 25 years.

Named for an Iraqi princess, the Semiramis was built by Europeans in the early 1900s after a cotton boom. For years it was the meeting place of the famous and the well-to-do until two American luxury hotels were built.

Its guests included the late Aga Khan, and movie queen Rita Hayworth, who later married his son Ali.

Winston Churchill sipped tea on its terrace, savoring, as many visitors did, the broad stretch of the Nile below, dappled by a setting sun that even now makes the cream-colored, five-story building gleam like a Victorian wedding cake.

There is a story, perhaps apocryphal, that Israel's current prime minister, Yitzhak Rabin, as a young officer during World War II frequented the hotel when it was the headquarters for the British army in Egypt.

Until 1952 when mobs attacked and burned them, massive British barracks were located next to the hotel. The barracks extended along the river bank to All Saints Cathedral.

In those days when Cairo was the place in the Middle East for a good time, the Semiramis Hotel was one of its focal points.

"It was where young men and girls of reputable families made their social debut," recalled Hugette Boulad, wife of a wealthy landowner and one of the regular clientele.

"The balls were fabulous. And in summer on the roof it was marvelous. Cairo at your feet, twinkling like a bracelet. A cool breeze, an orchestra, good food."

When it opened the Semiramis had Cairo's first elevators, in mahogany with brass fittings. Even in more recent times as it became a bit seedy, one still went there for croissants, considered the best in town.

But the hotel closed last summer, the furniture was sold and billboards now are going up around its perimeter. The Semiramis will be pulled down to be replaced by a pyramid-shaped, 850-room, $18 million hotel to be managed by the American Intercontinental chain.

One person who isn't sad is Abdel Kader Anwer, undersecretary of the Ministry of Tourism. He said: "To us Egyptians, the Semiramis reminds us of British occupation. Its name isn't even Egyptian. We must tear it down because it wastes space — 3,600 square meters for 180 rooms. It's run down. The Nile is eroding its foundations."

Two blocks away, parishioners at All Saints Cathedral held their last bazaar recently to raise funds for charity and a new church the government plans to build for them in another part of town.

The cathedral will be demolished to make way for a new bridge across the Nile.

"It's a shame," said one member of the congregation, " because this is one of the prettiest churches in the Middle East."

The board of the Anglican diocese agreed several years ago to allow the cathedral to be sold and demolished provided a new church was constructed elsewhere.

The cathedral was built in 1938 to hold 1,200 worshippers. Military plaques on the wall testify to the number of British soldiers that thronged to services then, but now congregations on Sunday rarely number more than 50.

All Saints plans to use an administrative building at the new site as a temporary place of worship and Sunday school until the government fulfills its promise to build the new church.

A lack of coordinated planning by the Cairo government and shortage of materials has held up construction.

Women Testify:

Sexual Harassment On Job Widespread

By Associated Press

"The first time my boss talked about a raise he put his hand on my knee.

"I walked a thin line between insulting him and yielding to him because my career was very important. It was degrading. If my boss had been a man in a bar, I could have told him to go to hell. But there was too much at stake. So I suffered."

That's how a 24-year-old woman in Nashville, Tenn., describes an episode of sexual harassment of working women, an old problem that women say shows no signs of going away.

"Sexual harassment of women at work is literally epidemic," says Lin Farley, lecturer and director of the women's division of the human affairs program at Cornell University.

Ms. Farley, who prefers the designation, testified before the New York City Human Rights Commission last spring that an estimated seven of every 10 working women have experienced sexual harassment.

Sexual harassment on the job refers to unwanted advances by bosses or managers. It can range from a pinch to a proposition, a leer to a lurch.

The victims can be young or old, pretty or homely, single or married. They can be waitresses or secretaries, cleaning women or career women.

There are no formal statistics on the problem, and the number of complaints is trifling because most women don't complain. They don't make a fuss because sexual harassment is embarassing, many women feel guilty and are afraid a complaint will cost them a job.

It is extremely difficult to prove and the burden of proof falls on the woman. Women rarely get unemployment benefits if the only reason for quitting was sexual harassment.

"It is a serious problem and exceptionally widespread," says Kay Whitlock, coordinator of the sexuality task force of the National Organization for Women.

"I imagine that almost every woman who has worked outside the home has experienced some form of harassment, from a pat on the fanny to a proposition. A lot of women are afraid that their jobs hinge on playing the game, so they do nothing."

"There is a lot of sexual harassment and a lot goes by the boards," says Charles Schwenk, deputy regional director of the lower Manhattan office of the New York State Division of Human Rights.

Under New York State human rights law, it is unlawful to deny a woman equal terms and conditions of employment.

"That covers sexual harassment and a female employe has the right to file a complaint with the state," Schwenk says.

"But few do. These cases are extremely difficult to prove because harassment usually goes on in private. It is usually one person's word against another's, unless there is evidence or witnesses."

Crying Is Baby's Only Language

By George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm a new mother. My specific question is whether there is a certain age at which baby should sleep through the night. My baby is four months old and he still wakes up several times a night for feedings.

One friend says I should let him cry and break the waking habit. Another neighbor says babies will sleep through the night when they are ready, and ignoring their cries can make them insecure and even more demanding.

I just want to do what is best for my baby. What do you advise? — Mrs. A.J.J.

There is an endless variety of reasons why a baby cries. Soon you will be able to interpret this "language" and act accordingly.

You will learn the colicky cry, the hunger cry, the distress cry, the cry of boredom. This latter variety is the remarkable anguish that ends in mid-cry as you pick the infant up.

At four months, an infant has started to stay awake for more hours. If a nightime feeding has been eliminated, the baby may wake up according to the previous schedule.

Generally speaking, picking up a crying infant has never done any harm. But the episode must be put to some practical use. Look for a diaper pin that might be jabbing into the skin. A booty might be too tight or bedclothing too confining. The baby may be too warm or too cold. Often your fussing will serve to allay an undefined loneliness.

It is difficult to sat at what month a baby should sleep through the night. This varies. You should not necessarily expect it at four months or at six months. The best advice is to put yourself in the infant's place. His only means of communication is the cry, and no infant will cry for "no reason" at all. The cries can mean only a desire to feel the warmth and comfort of being held by the mother. That is reason enough.

Some authorities are now suggesting that babies fed "on demand" cry less in the long run than those fed on rigid time schedules.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by my doctor that I have a ganglion cyst on my wrist. It seems to be pressing on a nerve. My doctor told me not to worry about it. He said if it really hurts a lot to let him know and he would remove it.

The pain is from my thumb up into my shoulder. Could you tell me if this is serious and what can be done for it? What do they come from? Are they common? I have had it for six months. — Mrs. M.F.

Such a ganglia (cystic swelling in a tendon) often occurs on the wrist, usually on the back of it. It is not entirely clear why this happens. Often, it can be an occupational problem, as with typists or others who must use the wrists extensively.

They usually present no great problem, except that of appearance. However, a particularly large one, as you appear to have, can cause pressure on a nerve and cause wide ranging pain.

Surgery is reserved for the more serious cases. It involves excising the cyst sufficiently so that there is no recurrence. The surgery is not particularly extensive. Your doctor preferred to wait and observe the progress.

From your description, I believe it is time to return to your doctor and inquire about the possibilities of surgery to remove the cyst.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for a man to eat so much that it causes a heart attack? My husband has had two severe attacks and uses nitroglycerine pills for smaller ones. He is not overweight, nor does he have any other ailments. He does smoke, though doctors have told him to quit. — M.T.

Indeed, it is possible to eat too much. When food goes into the stomach, a series of events occurs, each of which requires an increase of blood supply. This includes digestive contractions in the stomach and intestinal walls and activation of the glands involved, each of which itself requires more blood to nourish its own muscles.

Your husband's history of heart attacks, and I suspect (from the fact that he is taking nitroglycerine) of angina pectoris, indicates that he should avoid heavy meals or any undue exercise after his meals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you tell me what "Rider's" or "Ryder's" syndrome is? What cure is available? What are the symptoms? Is it a venereal disease? — N.T.

You are apparently referring to Reiter's syndrome. This is a condition marked by inflammation of the urethra, conjunctivitis and polyarthritis. The cause is unknown, although pneumonia-type organisms have been found in the urethra or joints of some victims.

No specific treatment is available, but antibiotics have been used, as well as steroids for eye and joint inflammation. Although it resembles venereal disease, it is usually not classed as one.

Birdseed Bandit Pleads Innocent To All Charges

Culver City, Calif. (UPI) — Miklos Petrovics, the bird-lover who scared a few bank employes by brandishing an unloaded gun and demanding a load of birdseed, pleaded not guilty to three misdemeanor counts.

Petrovics, 39, was taken into custody at a Bank of America branch Tuesday after a 90-minute standoff with police and FBI agents who did not know his gun was not loaded.

He surrendered without a struggle. Bank employes told them he wanted the birdseed to save the birds which pollution is destroying.

The FBI wanted no part of him and he was charged in municipal court with brandishing a weapon, false imprisonment and trespassing.

Judge Frank W. Troost ordered him to return Jan. 16 for a pretrial hearing.

Petrovics is held in lieu of $1,000 bail.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

A new emergency first-aid method of choking saved a reported 162 lives in the first nine months of use, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

The new Heimlich method is similar to the action of popping a cork from the mouth of a compressible plastic bottle by squeezing the bottle suddenly.

The method works because air is usually already 'trapped' in the lungs, when a person chokes on food or some other foreign body. Placing the fist under the rib cage and pressing firmly and quickly in an upward fashion on the diaphragm should dislodge the foreign particle from the throat. The motion may need to be repeated more than once.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that the method is not a 'bear hug.' It is a strong pressure on the diaphragm to force the lung air into action and help dislodge the blockage in the throat. Squeezing hard in the wrong place could break ribs.

Usually, the person administering the diaphragm pressure stands behind the victim and puts arms around with fists under the rib cage. Persons have reportedly been able to help themselves by leaning over a counter or chair back to obtain the upward pressure.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — In Great Dunmow, England, a couple may appear before judge and jury to stand trial and prove their marriage has been happy for a year and a day. This is a great treat for Great Dunmow folk who have been doing it for 700 years.

The winning couple gets 40 pounds of bacon.

("A young man married is a man that's marr'd," said Will Shakespeare. Will had been around.)

The Census Bureau only counts heads every 10 years. Between times they keep all hands busy looking into trends.

Americans are marrying later in life and getting divorced earlier than they used to. In the under-30s crowd, marriage is considered a little whimsical. Like granny glasses.

At lunch the other day a two-martini father said: "So my daughter wrote me from college that she and her boy friend decided to have an 'unstructured relationship.'

"That's the modern way of saying what we used to call 'shacking up.' 'Unstructured relationship' I think means they don't take vacations together. Or maybe they don't use the same bar of soap."

Thus the Census Bureau in this off year found the Nielsen ratings on marriage are going down. If the slide continues, the whole show may be scrubbed.

Even Doris Day said a couple should live together before marriage. From Doris Day that's like the Department of Agriculture pushing hoof-and-mouth disease.

"It wasn't like that when I was in college," said the lunching father. "Bring us one more, dear, and then we'll eat." And he patted the waitress tenderly on the bottom.

Onward to better things: Nothing much from Women's Lib lately. What's the score? Are they ahead?

There's a town in Greece called Monoklissa. And in this town, once a year, they have a Women's Lib Day that's a buster. This day of freedom has been going on so long nobody knows how it started.

On this day the women of Monoklissa take over the town and do all the things men usually do.

They sit around cafes, telling stories out of Playboy. "Ha, ha, kid that's a good one! Tell the one about Lysistrata when she found the young dude in the bedroom!"

While this is going on, men stay home and slave over a hot stove. They wash dishes and complain: "She never takes me dancing anymore."

If women find a man on the street, they beat the hell out of him.

Only one man is allowed out. He's a bagpipe player who squeezes out tunes so the liberated checks can dance it up. The bagpipe player is blindfolded.

The economics of marriage would stump a computer: "Two can live as cheaply as one." One lap on the marriage track will prove this is absurd.

Alas and alack, the couple decide on divorce. It now appears that two people apart cannot live as cheaply as two together.

"Journeys end in lovers meeting," said Will Shakespeare. Will had a line for everything. He did badly in love, Will did.

Class Teaches Ventriloquism

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — A new college class will have plenty of dummies. A course in ventriloquism will be taught at Parkersburg Community College beginning Jan. 13.

"Excellent for persons who are shy or lack confidence, the class will stress voice, acting, timing and comedy," said Doris Boggs of Millwood, the instructor. She is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College in human behavior and a practicing ventriloquist.

The six-week course, which costs $15, will teach the art of throwing the voice for fun or profit, she said, but will also help students with speech problems.

To Your Good Health:

Crying Is Baby's Only Language

By George C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm a new mother. My specific question is whether there is a certain age at which baby should sleep through the night. My baby is four months old and he still wakes up several times a night for feedings.

One friend says I should let him cry and break the waking habit. Another neighbor says babies will sleep through the night when they are ready, and ignoring their cries can make them insecure and even more demanding.

I just want to do what is best for my baby. What do you advise? — Mrs. A.J.J.

There is an endless variety of reasons why a baby cries. Soon you will be able to interpret this "language" and act accordingly.

You will learn the colicky cry, the hunger cry, the distress cry, the cry of boredom. This latter variety is the remarkable anguish that ends in mid-cry as you pick the infant up.

At four months, an infant has started to stay awake for more hours. If a nightime feeding has been eliminated, the baby may wake up according to the previous schedule.

Generally speaking, picking up a crying infant has never done any harm. But the episode must be put to some practical use. Look for a diaper pin that might be jabbing into the skin. A booty might be too tight or bedclothing too confining. The baby may be too warm or too cold. Often your fussing will serve to allay an undefined loneliness.

It is difficult to sat at what month a baby should sleep through the night. This varies. You should not necessarily expect it at four months or at six months. The best advice is to put yourself in the infant's place. His only means of communication is the cry, and no infant will cry for "no reason" at all The cries can mean only a desire to feel the warmth and comfort of being held by the mother. That is reason enough

Some authorities are now suggesting that babies fed "on demand" cry less in the long run than those fed on rigid time schedules

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told by my doctor that I have a ganglion cyst on my wrist. It seems to be pressing on a nerve. My doctor told me not to worry about it. He said if it really hurts a lot to let him know and he would remove it.

The pain is from my thumb up into my shoulder. Could you tell me if this is serious and what can be done for it? What do they come from? Are they common? I have had it for six months. — Mrs. M.F.

Such a ganglia (cystic swelling in a tendon) often occurs on the wrist, usually on the back of it. It is not entirely clear why this happens Often, it can be an occupational problem, as with typists or others who must use the wrists extensively.

They usually present no great problem, except that of appearance. However, a particularly large one, as you appear to have, can cause pressure on a nerve and cause wide ranging pain.

Surgery is reserved for the more serious cases. It involves excising the cyst sufficiently so that there is no recurrence. The surgery is not particularly extensive. Your doctor preferred to wait and observe the progress.

From your description, I believe it is time to return to your doctor and inquire about the possibilities of surgery to remove the cyst.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for a man to eat so much that it causes a heart attack? My husband has had two severe attacks and uses nitroglycerine pills for smaller ones. He is not overweight, nor does he have any other ailments. He does smoke, though doctors have told him to quit. — M.T.

Indeed, it is possible to eat too much. When food goes into the stomach, a series of events occurs, each of which requires an increase of blood supply. This includes digestive contractions in the stomach and intestinal walls and activation of the glands involved, each of which itself requires more blood to nourish its own muscles.

Your husband's history of heart attacks, and I suspect (from the fact that he is taking nitroglycerine) of angina pectoris, indicates that he should avoid heavy meals or any undue exercise after his meals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you tell me what "Rider's" or "Ryder's" syndrome is? What cure is available? What are the symptoms? Is it a venereal disease? — N.T.

You are apparently referring to Reiter's syndrome. This is a condition marked by inflammation of the urethra, conjunctivitis and polyarthritis. The cause is unknown, although pneumonia-type organisms have been found in the urethra or joints of some victims.

No specific treatment is available, but antibiotics have been used, as well as steroids for eye and joint inflammation. Although it resembles venereal disease, it is usually not classed as one

Birdseed Bandit Pleads Innocent To All Charges

Culver City, Calif. (UPI) — Miklos Petrovics, the bird-lover who scared a few bank employes by brandishing an unloaded gun and demanding a load of birdseed, pleaded not guilty to three misdemeanor counts.

Petrovics, 39, was taken into custody at a Bank of America branch Tuesday after a 90-minute standoff with police and FBI agents who did not know his gun was not loaded.

He surrendered without a struggle. Bank employes told them he wanted the birdseed to save the birds which pollution is destroying.

The FBI wanted no part of him and he was charged in municipal court with brandishing a weapon, false imprisonment and trespassing.

Judge Frank W. Troost ordered him to return Jan. 16 for a pretrial hearing.

Petrovics is held in lieu of $1,000 bail.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

A new emergency first-aid method of choking saved a reported 162 lives in the first nine months of use, according to the Nebraska Medical Association.

The new Heimlich method is similar to the action of popping a cork from the mouth of a compressible plastic bottle by squeezing the bottle suddenly.

The method works because air is usually already 'trapped' in the lungs, when a person chokes on food or some other foreign body. Placing the fist under the rib cage and pressing firmly and quickly in an upward fashion on the diaphragm should dislodge the foreign particle from the throat. The motion may need to be repeated more than once.

The Nebraska Medical Association points out that the method is not a 'bear hug.' It is a strong pressure on the diaphragm to force the lung air into action and help dislodge the blockage in the throat. Squeezing hard in the wrong place could break ribs.

Usually, the person administering the diaphragm pressure stands behind the victim and puts arms around with fists under the rib cage. Persons have reportedly been able to help themselves by leaning over a counter or chair back to obtain the upward pressure.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — In Great Dunmow, England, a couple may appear before judge and jury to stand trial and prove their marriage has been happy for a year and a day. This is a great treat for Great Dunmow folk who have been doing it for 700 years.

The winning couple gets 40 pounds of bacon.

("A young man married is a man that's marr'd," said Will Shakespeare. Will had been around.)

The Census Bureau only counts heads every 10 years. Between times they keep all hands busy looking into trends.

Americans are marrying later in life and getting divorced earlier than they used to. In the under-30s crowd, marriage is considered a little whimsical. Like granny glasses.

At lunch the other day a two-martini father said: "So my daughter wrote me from college that she and her boy friend decided to have an 'unstructured relationship.'

"That's the modern way of saying what we used to call 'shacking up.' 'Unstructured relationship' I think means they don't take vacations together. Or maybe they don't use the same bar of soap."

Thus the Census Bureau in this off year found the Nielsen ratings on marriage are going down. If the slide continues, the whole show may be scrubbed.

Even Doris Day said a couple should live together before marriage. From Doris Day that's like the Department of Agriculture pushing hoof-and-mouth disease.

"It wasn't like that when I was in college," said the lunching father. "Bring us one more, dear, and then we'll eat." And he patted the waitress tenderly on the bottom.

Onward to better things: Nothing much from Women's Lib lately. What's the score? Are they ahead?

There's a town in Greece called Monoklissa. And in this town, once a year, they have a Women's Lib Day that's a buster. This day of freedom has been going on so long nobody knows how it started.

On this day the women of Monoklissa take over the town and do all the things men usually do.

They sit around cafes, telling stories out of Playboy. "Ha, ha, kid that's a good one! Tell the one about Lysistrata when she found the young dude in the bedroom!"

While this is going on, men stay home and slave over a hot stove. They wash dishes and complain: "She never takes me dancing anymore."

If women find a man on the street, they beat the hell out of him.

Only one man is allowed out. He's a bagpipe player who squeezes out tunes so the liberated chicks can dance it up. The bagpipe player is blindfolded.

The economics of marriage would stump a computer: "Two can live as cheaply as one." One lap on the marriage track will prove this is absurd.

Alas and alack, the couple decide on divorce. It now appears that two people apart cannot live as cheaply as two together.

"Journeys end in lovers meeting," said Will Shakespeare. Will had a line for everything. He did badly in love, Will did.

Class Teaches Ventriloquism

PARKERSBURG, W.Va. (AP) — A new college class will have plenty of dummies. A course in ventriloquism will be taught at Parkersburg Community College beginning Jan. 13.

"Excellent for persons who are shy or lack confidence, the class will stress voice, acting, timing and comedy," said Doris Boggs of Millwood, the instructor. She is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College in human behavior and a practicing ventriloquist.

The six-week course, which costs $15, will teach the art of throwing the voice for fun or profit, she said, but will also help students with speech problems.
